NO MONEY TRUST, SAYS MORGAN FIRM

In Statement to Pujo Committee It Denies That 180 Men Control $25,000,000,000.

EVILS DUE TO BANKING LAW

Big Financial Institutions Have Really Helped the Country to Meet a Bad Situation.

COMMITTEE ENDS HEARINGS

Davison, Hill, and Hine Are Examined —Builder of Great Northern Fears Minority Directors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Denial of the existence of a Money Trust by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. was the feature to-day of the final public hearing of the Pujo Money Trust Committee. H. P. Davison, on behalf of his partners, put before that body, over the objections of Mr. Untermyer, a statement giving their views.

This statement said that the concentration of banking interests in New York in recent years had merely been a response to the concentration of business in the country. In other nations the same concentration had gone much further, France having only 27 separate banking institutions, Great Britain 116, Germany 500, and the United States 25,000. New York was not so much a centre of finance in the United States as it was ten years ago. The $25,000,000,000 of capital supposed to be controlled by a group of 180 interlocking Directors was not fluid, but was largely represented in property and equipment. Besides, "no such control exists and no such deduction can properly be made," said the Morgan firm.

On the contrary, it was asserted in the statement and by Mr. Davison in his testimony, the methods employed by the banking interests of New York had been of real benefit to the country in view of the general situation. Such evils as had arisen were due to the present banking laws, and would vanish if a proper, strong, scientific system were created. Mr. Davison gave a pledge that the committee could rely on Morgan & Co. to "do anything in the interest of the country."

Mr. Schiff Writes of Panics.

A letter from Jacob H. Schiff, taking the view that the multiplication of banking institutions and trust companies was largely responsible for the financial troubles of 1907 and other years was also read into the record.

James J. Hill was another important witness. His testimony related chiefly to the subject of minority representation in Directorates. He saw in this lead a peril to large undertakings, because trouble makers might get on boards and hamper their work by telling their secrets and otherwise.

Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank, was the concluding witness and proved to be a very difficult one for Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee. Though he was on the stand two hours, he did not give the committee much that it had not already learned from George F. Baker and others regarding the relations of the First National Bank with Morgan & Co., the National City Bank, and others.

The committee will immediately begin the formulation of its preliminary report to Congress. Such testimony as may be obtained from William Rockefeller will be supplemental. Members of the committee feel that they have barely scratched the surface of the money situation and are in favor of a resumption of the investigation under authority of the new Sixty-third Congress.

Mr. Davison asked to be permitted to put his prepared statement into the record at the end of his testimony. Mr. Untermyer objected. Mr. Lindabury, counsel for Mr. Davison, pointed out the understanding that had been reached, whereby witnesses might be permitted to make such statements as they wished after testifying, and Chairman Pujo said the committee would take the matter under advisement. This evening, after closing the hearings, the committee agreed to put the statement in the record as an "argument." Here is the statement:

MORGAN FIRM'S REPLY.

"There have been presented to the committee elaborate tables from which it has been inferred—and in many newspapers stated as 'proved'—that a 'group' of 180 Directors 'controls' the assets of corporations whose aggregate resources are $25,000,000,000.

"No such control exists, and no such deduction can be properly made from these tables. Those who have made such deductions have fallen into several obvious errors. They fail to observe:

First—That of the total number of directorates in these particular corporations this "group" represents only about one-quarter.

Second—That upon this assumption these men, in order to exercise "control" must act and vote in every instance as a unit, although they come from different parts of the country and represent divers and frequently conflicting interests.

Third—That, upon this assumption, the Directors outside of this "group" must be mere dummies, with no voice or opinion of their own, who, in almost every instance, are overruled by a minority.

Finally—That this sum of $25,000,000,000 is not actual cash or liquid assets, susceptible of manipulation or misuse by the Directors, the fact, of course, being that a great bulk of this enormous sum is and for many years has been tied up in the form of rights of way, rails, ties, equipment, factories, plants, tools, manufactured goods, and other forms of corporate property necessary for carrying on the railroad and industrial business in the country.

"It is most regrettable and harmful that either Congress or the country at large should gain the wholly erroneous impression that these great resources are at the disposition of a small group of men, or that the corporations themselves are controlled by a minority of their various boards.

Bad Laws Cause Concentration.

"As to the point of so-called concentration, it is an unquestioned fact that New York City is the chief centre of money and credit in this country, just as London is in England and Paris in France. But it has frequently been charged that this financial growth of New York has been due to the carefully laid plans of certain men who have brought about a condition which they may utilize for their own selfish ends.

"This is not a fact. The great accumulation of money and credits in New York is due in part to purely economic conditions and in part to defects of our banking system. Through the operation of the law in relation to cash reserves, interior banks necessarily carry hundreds of millions of dollars on deposit in New York. These same institutions, in order to maintain a secondary reserve, subject to their telegraphic demand, keep in New

RECKLESS MOTORIST IN JAIL.

Wealthy Lowell Man Must Serve Six Months for Killing a Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—James H. Horsfall, a Lowell man of wealth, who has fought to the last resort the State's prosecution, was sentenced to-day to six months in Lowell Jail by Judge Chase in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge. His offense was the reckless operation of an automobile, when he ran down and fatally hurt Miss Ruth Kittredge, in Wilmington, on Nov. 11, 1911.

He was taken to Lowell by a Deputy Sheriff to begin his sentence.

Horsfall was driving his car at high speed through Wilmington when he struck Miss Kittredge, an elderly woman, who was standing by the side of another car on the road. She died as result of her injuries. The other car was damaged. Horsfall was arrested and was indicted for manslaughter, reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, and for going away without stopping after injury to person and damage to property.

He was first tried on the manslaughter count and the jury disagreed. He was acquitted of driving while intoxicated, but was found guilty of reckless driving and of running away without stopping to see what damage he had done.

CANNON'S LIST OF GREAT MEN

They Are Washington, Lincoln, Lee, and Jefferson Davis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Appealing to the House to-day to pass the Senate bill for the proposed $2,000,000 Lincoln memorial structure in Washington, former Speaker Cannon said it was a profanation of Lincoln's name to use it in connection with the promotion of a road project.

"There are certain great characters that will dwell in the history of the country," said Mr. Cannon. "First and barely first, Washington; second, Lincoln; third, Lee, a great man, a great General, who did his duty from his patriotic standpoint; fourth, Jefferson Davis, a great man performing a great service for the Republic as he saw his duty.

"A hundred years from now the ordinary reader will recall this period, and there will be in the mouths of the school children the names of Washington, Lincoln, Grant, Lee, and Jefferson Davis. But you will have to search the Congressional Record and the encyclopedias to find out about the balance of us, who have been Speakers, Members of Congress in the House and Senate.

"Take Mr. Cannon for instance. I have been Speaker for eight years. They will say, 'It does appear that there was a man from Illinois by the name of Cannon, but I don't know much about him; there was another man by the name of Cannon in Congress from Utah, and it was said that he had seventeen wives.'"

The Memorial bill will be taken up in the House next Wednesday.

CORNELL'S PROFIT, $300,000.

Belt Line Sale Yields Him That Much Over Purchase Price.

It developed yesterday at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Maltbie on the application of the Third Avenue Railway Company for authorization to purchase the stock and bonds of the Belt Line Corporation that the profit made by Edward Cornell in the matter would be about $300,000.

The expenditure for which he made himself responsible by buying up the old Central Park, North and East River Company under the nose of the New York Railways Company interests was $2,148,000, and after incorporating the Belt Line Corporation he has sold the securities of the company to the Third Avenue Railway Company for $2,450,000. The difference represents his profit.

Mr. Cornell, it was announced by Frederick W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Company, had another offer from a group of capitalists which would have netted him about $250,000. It is not certain, however, that Commissioner Maltbie will report that the property of the Belt Line Corporation warrants the capitalization applied for.

CITY HALL WATCHMAN KILLED

Larkin, Who Served There for 24 Years, Overcome by Gas.

John Larkin, night watchman at the City Hall ever since the late Hugh Grant became Mayor, was found dead late yesterday afternoon at his home, 363 West Eighteenth Street. The tube from his little gas heater to the wall had become disconnected while he was dressing, and it is supposed that the old man was unable to withstand the sudden rush of gas. He was in his eightieth year.

Larkin had been in city service for forty-four years. The first twenty were spent on the police force and after that he went to City Hall to guard its treasures at night. In the years he spent there, he came to know nearly every politician and office-holder in New York. He saw Mayors come and go. Thus he became very philosophical and would meditate aloud on the uncertainties of life to the benefit of whatever chance audience served to vary the solitude of his post. He was also known to write verse upon occasions.

For all his years in the city's employ, Larkin could never get a pension. There were technical difficulties, according to his nephew, James Donahue, with whom he lived. Larkin had finally made up his mind to retire and had set Feb. 1 as the date.

COVERNORS AT LUNCHEON.

Sulzer Tells Hadley and Dix of Roosevelt's Mistake at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri was a visitor at the Executive Chamber to-day. The Governor, with his host, ex-Gov. John A. Dix, stopped at the Capitol for Governor Sulzer and later all three went to the residence of ex-Gov. Dix, where luncheon was served.

"Here is a fine specimen of a progressive Republican Governor," Gov. Sulzer said of the executive from Missouri. Reference was made to the Republican convention at Chicago, and the part Gov. Hadley played in it.

Gov. Sulzer expressed the view that Col. Roosevelt made a mistake at that convention.

"You or I would have walked down the aisle of that convention and carried the day," he said.

"And the same result might have been accomplished in another way." Gov. Hadley replied.

The visiting Governor left this afternoon for Utica to address the State Bar Association.

POLICE GRAFT HUNT ENDS FOR A TIME

PRISONERS AFRAID TO TELL

And if State's Evidence Doesn't Turn Up Investigation Is Likely to be Dropped.

Information directly from the office of District Attorney Whitman yesterday indicated that no further attempts would be made to procure the indictments of any more persons in connection with police graft until after the trial of Patrolman Fox and possibly that of Edward J. Newell. No secret was made of the fact that the small force of investigators at the command of Mr. Whitman had been temporarily defeated by the many policemen, disorderly resort keepers, and their spies against them. A barrier had been thrown across the path of the prosecuting officials, it was said, that made further progress impossible at this time.

Unless Fox, or Newell, or Skelly, or Maas, or Wolf, who have been indicted, turn State's evidence, the investigation into police graft is deemed likely to end. It came out that the story told by George A. Sipp to the Curran Committee was an old story to Mr. Whitman before the committee heard it, and that the same was true of the story of Mrs. Mary Goode.

Mr. Whitman made strong efforts to induce some one of these persons to confess and similar pressure was brought upon Maier and Dubelier, who were arrested, but who have not yet been indicted. At the outset nearly every one of them displayed signs of yielding, but a few days later their attitude changed.

It was then that Mr. Whitman resolved to press the cases to trial as soon as he could and to delay any further investigation until at least one of the prisoners had been tried before a petit jury.

This decision removed the necessity of keeping the Extraordinary Grand Jury in session continuously. Before he left for Boston on Thursday he consented to give the jurors a vacation until Feb. 17. They have been at work for nearly three months and were clamoring for a rest.

It was said by an Assistant District Attorney yesterday that the police attempt to send Sipp to prison for a long term on a terrible charge was not lost upon the indicted men and that it was possible they had concluded that it would be better for them to run the risk of a term in prison on the charges now pending against them than to be set free and run the desperate risk of having the entire police force in arms against them.

Sipp, his son Howard, Henry Kaufmann, clerk of the Hotel Avenel, and Jacob Spielberg, one of the company that owns the hotel, were before the Grand Jury for a short time before it adjourned. They were examined in an effort to discover who it was that was paying Mrs. Dorian $27.50 a week. They were also asked who paid the expenses of Dorian's trip out of town.

Efforts were made to complete the drawing of the indictment against Patrolman Charles E. Foye, whom Alderman Curran accuses of perjury, but it could not be got ready in time. It was said that this bill would have to show that the Curran Committee had the right to administer an oath to Foye and many other technicalities had to be looked into.

ASSAIL POLICE POLICIES.

Limit on Rogues' Gallery and New Detective System Deemed Harmful.

The Curran Committee met in secret session yesterday morning and voted to end the investigation by March 15. The motion was made by Alderman Dowling, one of the Democratic members of the committee. He thought too much time was being taken in filling the record with useless information. Four or five meetings a week will be held until the work is completed. There was little opposition to the motion, because the committee has learned that only a small amount of public interest was shown in the investigation except when the testimony was of a sensational character.

Emory R. Buckner was asked if he intended to call ex-President Roosevelt as a witness. He replied that he did not know. Then he was asked why William S. Devery or Alexander S. Williams were not called for the purpose of gathering testimony concerning the old police methods for a comparison with the new methods established by Commissioner Waldo Mr. Buckner said that these matters would be discussed at some future secret session of the committee. He said that the subject of a State constabulary was of interest, and that some effort would probably be made to call witnesses familiar with this form of police control.

The committee said that it would take several months to boil the volume of testimony already taken into concrete form and to decide what legislation it would be wise to recommend. The Republican members of the committee seemed to be sure that it would be useless to make any recommendations to the present Democratic Legislature. They said it would be wiser to take plenty of time and to withhold any attempt to procure legislation until the next Legislature convenes, in 1914.

Inspector Faurot, the finger print expert, who is now in charge of the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters, was the first witness called when the committee met in open session. He told about the order issued by Commissioner Waldo in 1911 to remove from the Rogues' Gallery the pictures of all persons who were not convicted and not take any pictures of prisoners until after they were convicted. This order was given by Mayor Gaynor after the Duffy boy episode. The Inspector said the order had sadly crippled the department.

"We could not take the pictures of convicted persons now," he said, "if the Sheriff did not permit it. There is no legal provision for taking pictures."

Questioned as an expert concerning the various classes of criminals, the Inspector said that there were thousands of pickpockets in the city whose pictures were never taken because they had never been convicted of felonies. The usual charge brought against them was for disorderly conduct.

Former Deputy Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Turnbull testified that he was connected with the homicide bureau of the District Attorney's office for seven years. He was asked if the present system of scattering the detectives among the various precincts was as serviceable in catching men accused of murder as the old method of keeping a homicide bureau at Headquarters composed of picked men. He replied that the old system of a homicide bureau was a splendid idea and that it did great work.

Mr. Turnbull said that the police did not keep on the track of any murder unless it happened to create a sensation that attracted the continued attention of the newspapers. He said many murderers are now walking the streets who might have been caught and punished if the police had kept after them. Mr. Turnbull said he thought the police homicide bureau should be re-established.

"I believe that ten trained and experienced men, under a good leader," said he, "would do better work in clearing up murder cases than all the detectives assigned to the various precincts."

The committee will meet again on Wednesday.

LITTLE FIRE CLOSES BROOKLYN BRIDGE

LINES TIED UP AT RUSH HOUR

People Wedged In Gave Signs of Terror and Several Fainted—An Hour Before Blockade Was Broken.

A tiny fire, smoldering unobserved late yesterday afternoon among ropes in a temporary tool house in the Manhattan Terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge, worked itself into flames just as the evening rush hour of the office-workers was beginning and was the cause of the worst blockade on the old bridge in the last three years. Surface and elevated traffic was held up for nearly an hour and the evening was well advanced before the accustomed service of the bridge had been restored.

No one was prepared to say last evening how the fire had started, but it was surmised that a workman had left a burning gasoline torch in the tool house when he quit work for the day.

The blaze was discovered at 5:27 by James Donohue, a bridge department employe. With some idea of what a fire panic on the bridge at that hour might mean, he tried to put the little blaze out unaided. He stamped on the burning ropes and beat them with his hands, but the flames seemed to spread and some painfully burned fingers were his only reward.

Then he passed the alarm to Patrolman Roughan of the Bridge Squad, and in a few moments the fire apparatus was at the bridge under the direction of Deputy Chief Binns and Capt. O'Toole, with the reserves from the Oak Street Station. The flames were confined to the tool house and did no further damage, but they did reach some of the feed wires of the surface line, and by destroying the insulation caused a short circuit that added its confusion to the already crippled traffic.

The police had no sooner taken charge than all traffic was halted on the Bridge. The army of workers bound for Brooklyn was held up, and in a twinkling all Park Row was turned into a jostling crowd as dense as any theatre crowd in a lobby two minutes after the final curtain. This reached all the way to City Hall and seemed to spread momentarily.

Those pressed close to the police lines in the terminal experienced for a few moments all the horrors of an impending panic. The smoke could be seen rising from somewhere, and the shouts of "No danger" were not sufficiently convincing to prevent several women from fainting and many more from being sick with fear. It was more than a quarter of an hour before the police were able to say that the flames were out and the Bridge safe. It was not until then that the crowd was allowed to trickle across the bridge, moving slowly on foot along the south roadway. Many took this course, for all the drizzle.

Soon the south roadway was just a black mass of home-going Brooklynites, and even had the short circuit not held the trolley cars idle, they could not possibly have resumed the passage of the Bridge. The north roadway was also in a state of discouraging congestion, for the cars had been halted beyond the terminal, and those crossing to Manhattan were obliged to get out and walk to Park Row. It was 6:15 before the electricians had restored the free passage of the current and the stalled elevated trains could begin to remove their share of the throngs. It was after 6:30 before the surface cars began work again. In the hour of blockade it was estimated that sixty-two elevated trains and 342 surface cars had been held up.

During the blockade a large portion of the crowd that would have used the bridge ordinarily started for the Manhattan Bridge and the Subway. The entrance to the Brooklyn Bridge Subway station was choked with passengers, and many who would have preferred that route home gave up in dispair after one look at the packed stairs, and started off toward the Manhattan Bridge. Even so, some 50,000 tickets were added to the usual Subway sale at that hour, according to Inspector Hutchinson of the Public Service Commission, and as for the recently opened trolley line on the Manhattan Bridge, it was overcome with the sudden increase of patronage. Last night's business was far and away the biggest in its history.

The hour of the blockade was tempting to pickpockets. Three young men who were accused of suspicious jostling were hauled off to Police Headquarters.

Doctor Gives Morphine to Man Hopelessly Pinned in Blazing Ruins.

Special to The New York Times.

McKINLEY, Texas, Jan. 24.—Not until to-day were the full details learned of the death of E. N. Presley in the collapse of the department store here in which eight persons were killed.

Rescuers finally discovered Presley pinned under heavy timbers. It was impossible to extricate him, and the flames were beginning to burn his feet.

He cried piteously to rescuers to shoot him and when they refused he begged a physician to relieve him of his suffering. When he hesitated, Presley screamed in agony. Then the doctor gave him a strong hypodermic injection. He died a minute later.

Presley's wife, who was in Dallas, arrived on the scene a few minutes afterward.

WAITERS ATTACK THE RITZ-CARLTON

OTHER HOTELS MENACED

Strikers Fight with Police and Many Are Arrested—Managers Yearn for the Days of Devery.

Two bands of strikers, each numbering from 150 to 200 men, made a concerted attack upon the Ritz-Carlton Hotel last night, the demonstration becoming so serious that Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, who lives there, sent in a call for the police reserves from the East Fifty-first Street police station. It was the culmination of a day of rioting by the striking waiters.

The attack on the Ritz-Carlton apparently was planned with great care, for the police were caught unawares, and the only reason that more damage was not done was because four policemen proved more than a match for more than 300 waiters.

The waiters approached the Ritz-Carlton, from the west and the south, one half coming up Madison Avenue and the other half through Forty-seventh Street. Many of them had armed themselves with stones, pieces of brick, and other missiles, and the first intimation the hotel officials had that trouble was at hand was when two large stones crashed through two of the big windows on the ground floor of the Forty-sixth Street side of the hotel. That was the work of the strikers who came from the west.

Soon afterward a shout announced the arrival of the strikers who came up Madison Avenue. There was more cheers and then a brick was thrown through the glass in the revolving door, at the main entrance to the hotel on the Madison Avenue side.

Arrest Stone Thrower.

Policeman Haase of the East Fifty-first Street station was the only policeman on duty in front of the hotel. He rapped and whistled for help and two policemen on fixed post a few blocks away, ran to his aid. Another policeman who was on post several blocks up the street arrived soon afterward. Haase saw the man who had thrown the stone at the revolving door and regardless of the threats of the strikers he fought his way through the crowd and caught George Guanquinto, said to be a waiter, and who said he was 26 years old and lived at 116 Greenwich Avenue.

There was great excitment among the guests in the hotel. Commissioner Waldo took charge of the situation, and ten minutes after he telephoned twenty men under command of Lieut. Raynor and Sergt. Gray arrived in a patrol wagon. But in the meantime the four policemen had been able to drive off the strikers, and when the reserves got to the hotel the trouble was over.

Guanquinto, the prisoner, was taken to the East Fifty-first Street Station and later to the Night Court, where he was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Here is a list of places said to be either crippled or tied up by the strike which was given out at the strikers' headquarters at midnight last night; Wallick's, Elks' Club, Rector's, Archambault's, Maxim's, St. Denis, Fifth Avenue Restaurant, Folies Bergere, Murray's, Forty-second Street, Churchill's, Wellington, Moretti's, Marseilles, Louis Martin's, Netherlands, Imperial, Gotham, Hoffman House, Seville, York, Shanley's Forty-second Street, Engineers' Club, Maresi's, Martinique, Sherry's, Michaud's, Somerset, Colalizzi's, Plaza, Brevoort, Lafayette, McAlpin, Knickerbocker, Macy's Restaurant, Webster, Patterson, and Maillard's.

Six uniformed men from ex-Chief Croker's Fire Prevention Bureau, all of them ex-firemen and armed with clubs, were lined up in front of the Hotel Knickerbocker last night. It was said that Chief Croker had furnished his men at the request of James B. Regan, proprietor of the Knickerbocker.

Mr. Croker was around the hotel earlier in the evening, and it was said that he had furnished special guards to other hotels. The men said they were ready for a fight, and were not there merely to guard the house from fire.

Continued violence marked the first day of the strike. In addition to trouble at the Ritz-Carlton, there was a fight in front of Bryant Hall, to suppress which the reserves were called out; there was another fight at the Hotel Astor, in which two non-union men were beaten, and more than a dozen rioters were arrested and locked up in the course of the day, including Carlo Tresco, the Industrial Workers of the World leader. A brick was thrown through a window on the Fifth Avenue side of Delmonico's at 10 o'clock last night, the brick narrowly missing a woman patron who was seated at one of the tables in the main dining room. Sherry's restaurant, diagonally across Fifth Avenue, was deserted at 11 o'clock last night.

Some Restaurants Closed.

Demonstrations by the strikers extended from the Plaza to the Waldorf, but the restaurants in the Times Square district were the principal sufferers. Several of these were closed. At the principal hotels it was said that the service had not been affected.

An estimate put the number of strikers up to midnight last night at 4,000. In all 6,000 members of the union voted on the strike question, but of these many were out of work at the time. Many of those on strike were intimidated into quitting their jobs, they said.

Many hotel managers blamed Mayor Gaynor for the present situation, pointing out that he had crippled the police by not allowing them to club the disturbers. One of them said he longed for the days of Williams and Devery, who, he asserted, knew how to suppress strikes.

Alleging that the police were unable to cope with the waiters' strike, several hotel and restaurant managers were reported to have said that they would appeal to Sheriff Harburger if necessary. The Sheriff said last night that if necessary he would call out his deputies to protect the hotels.

Guards of police surrounded many of the hotels and restaurants yesterday to prevent a repetition of the demonstrations in which strikers broke windows at the Knickerbocker and the Belmont. The police forced the members of the Waiters' Union to move on whenever they attempted to surround the entrances to the hotels for picket duty, but in spite of their vigilance there was much disorder throughout the day.

At 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, four hundred strikers quit a meeting in their headquarters in Bryant Hall and marched to the Hotel Astor, shouting "scabs" as they gathered in front of the servants' entrance. Two non-union waiters working in the hotel were caught outside and badly beaten. A window was broken

ALFONSO TO VISIT US.

King Will Come Next Summer If Spanish Politics Will Permit It.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—It is stated by the Admiralty that King Alfonso of Spain will pay a visit to the United States, possibly next Summer, should the political situation in his kingdom permit of his doing so. It seems that Alfonso has been greatly interested on the subject of a trip to the United States since a visit to that country was made by his War Minister's son, and often has expressed a desire to make a journey there.

It is understood that the matter is now being seriously considered by the Spanish Government, with a view to carrying out the desires of the King.

During a recent conversation with Señor Azcarato, the Republican leader, and Vice President of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies, King Alfonso remarked that he was considering making a visit to the American continent.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE 81.

Entertains Some Old Friends at Dinner on His Birthday.

Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, celebrated his eighty-first birthday yesterday with a dinner in his home, 8 East Sixty-third Street. Mr. Choate entertained eighteen guests, some of his oldest friends among them.

Among the guests were Senator Elihu Root, Frederick W. Whitridge, John L. Cadwalader, Dr. Francis Kinnicut, F. K. Sturgis, and Joseph H. Choate, Jr.

Mr. Choate visits his office in Wall Street daily, but on account of the weather he spent the day at home. A great many letters of congratulations were received, and in the afternoon there were many callers. The former Ambassador is in excellent health, and he said that his birthday found him feeling well.

Observatory Unable to Get $100,000 Gift—Surrogate's Aid Asked.

W. C. Underwood, attorney for Louis S. Owsley, ancillary executor of the estate of the late Charles T. Yerkes, announced yesterday that the Yerkes Observatory had been greatly embarrassed since Mr. Yerkes's death by the inability of the executor to pay to the University of Chicago the $100,000 left to it by Mr. Yerkes for the benefit of the observatory. Mr. Underwood applied to Surrogate Fowler to have the New York funds of the estate, amounting to more than $400,000 transmitted to Mr. Owsley, so that various legacies may be paid.

The only claim against the property, the attorney said, was one of $7,000, and the only matter still left unsettled here was that of the transfer tax payment. This is fully covered by $40,000 on deposit with a trust company in New York.

Mr. Underwood said that many of the other Yerkes beneficiaries were suffering great hardship because they could not get their legacies. One, a beneficiary to the extent of $100,000, had written to him, he said, that she could not participate in the proceedings before the Surrogate because she had no money with which to engage an attorney. Surrogate Fowler said he would decide on the application.

WON'T PARADE ON MARCH 4.

National Suffrage Association Is Not Invited—Not Partisan, Anyway.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The National American Woman's Suffrage Association, as such, will take no part in the inauguration of President-elect Woodrow Wilson on March 4 next. Nor will "General" Rosalie Jones and her "army" of marchers have anything to do with the inaugural parade, although they will be here and will take part in the suffrage pageant of the day before.

Just why the women would not take part was not made clear until Mrs. Helen H. Gardener, head of the Publicity Committee, said that no invitation had been received from the Inaugural Committee of Washington.

"The association," Mrs. Gardener said, "cannot very well take part in the Inauguration, and then, you see, the Inaugural Committee has definitely declined to permit us to use the stands it has erected for the inauguration parade. This, you must understand, has nothing to do with our not taking part in the inaugural parade. We are a non-partisan body, and the parade is somewhat of a partisan affair. Therefore, our participation might be misconstrued. We have appealed to the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds for the use of the space on the south side of the Treasury Building, on which we would erect a large stand. We have hopes that the committee will grant our request."

Women Win a Point in Nevada.

CARSON, Nev., Jan. 24.—Woman suffrage passed the General Assembly here to-day with but three dissenting votes. The measure will go to the Senate on Monday, and, should it pass, as is generally expected, will be submitted to popular vote at the next general election.

SULTAN DEPOSED, IS LONDON RUMOR

Proclamation of a Republic Is Also Reported, but Officials Discredit Story.

NATION'S WAR POWER GONE

THREE KILLED WITH NAZIM

General Was Shot Dead Trying to Stop a Demonstration — Enver Bey Now the Popular Idol.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A rumor was current in London, Paris, and Berlin to-night to the effect that the Sultan of Turkey had been dethroned and a republic proclaimed.

There was no confirmation of the rumor anywhere, and it was generally discredited in official circles.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—That too much importance need not be attached to the coup d'état in Constantinople was the statement made in an authoritative quarter to-night to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

The new Government, it was stated, would speedily discover its inability to move an army to the relief of Adrianople, and, as there was no ground for assuming that the powers would stultify themselves by receding from the position they had taken, a prolongation of the war was an impossibility, even if hostilities were resumed.

While the news of the revolution and the shooting of Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Commander in Chief, caused a heavy slump on all the European Bourses to-day, there was an improvement as the day wore on. In London political circles last night the tendency was to regard the situation as not such as to inspire serious alarm.

At the meeting of the Balkan delegates the Bulgarians were for dissolving the conference and immediately denouncing the armistice, but wiser counsels prevailed, the other delegates urging that they could not agree to such a step without instructions from their Governments.

WILL WAIT FOR TURKS' REPLY.

No Intention on Part of New Government to Renew Hostilities.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Several days must elapse before the situation arising from the revolution in Constantinople becomes clear. As far as may be judged, there is no intention on the part of the new Turkish Government to force matters or resume hostilities, if any reasonable compromise with the Balkan allies is possible.

A dispatch from Constantinople to-night says that the Council of Ministers sat today to discuss their reply to the note of the powers, and that it is believed this reply, while insisting on the retention of Adrianople by Turkey, will point to Thursday's demonstration as a real indication of the national will.

The new Government is finding difficulty in filling the post of Foreign Minister. The portfolio has been offered to several Turkish Ambassadors abroad, but all have declined to enter the Cabinet. Until the Ministry is completed by the appointment of a Sheik-ul-Islam and a Foreign Minister it is probable that no definite steps will be taken. Developments in the situation are awaited throughout Europe with the greatest concern in view of the danger of active intervention by Russia.

The Balkan delegates to the Peace Conference have accepted the advice of the Ambassadors of the powers to await the reply of the new Turkish Government to the Ambassadors' note before deciding on their future course.

If that is unsatisfactory they will probably present an ultimatum to the Turkish delegates demanding a categorical answer concerning Adrianople and the Aegean Islands. Failing to obtain satisfaction, the armistice will be denounced and hostilities resumed.

Sultan with War Party.

A dispatch from Constantinople to a news agency says:

"I learn on high authority that the Young Turk Committee was well aware that the Sultan unwillingly gave way to the resolve of Grand Vizier Kiamil Pasha to cede Adrianople. Young Turk officers who recently were received by the Sultan left him with the impression that he would not object to a sudden change in the Government, and that the same spirit prevailed in the family council the Sultan recently convoked.

"A pamphlet, obviously inspired, has been distributed here. It says the Young Turk Committee has been the means of liberating the Sultan and saving the Caliph from his endangered position.

"Enver Bey was most kindly received by the Sultan who, without hesitation accepted Kiamil Pasha's resignation and appointed Young Turk leaders as his Ministers."

The new Turkish Cabinet has decided to recall the peace delegates from London, according to another dispatch from Constantinople. The Turkish government is said also to have asked its Ambassadors at Vienna and St. Petersburg to return to the Turkish capital.

Enver Bey, the most spirited leader of the Young Turks, to-day was appointed Chief of the General Staff of the Turkish Army.

"The blood of Nazim Pasha," said one of the Turkish peace delegates to-day "is on the head of the European powers. Their unfair and precipitate attempt to force Turkey into the unjust surrender of the fortress of Adrianople has borne its inevitable fruit."

Osman Nizami Pasha, Turkish Ambassador to Germany, who is one of the Ottoman delegates remarked:

"Now both the Balkan allies and the European powers have had a taste of what Turkey is capable of doing, of what resistance she is able to offer and what sacrifices she is ready to endure." He added:

"Nothing is more dangerous than a wounded lion."

THREE WERE SLAIN WITH NAZIM

General Was Upbraiding Rioters When a Bullet Ended His Life.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 24.—Nazim Pasha, the commander of the Turkish army, received his death wound while expostulating with a crowd of demonstrators for having become embroiled in a conflict at the Grand Vizierate. The official version of the affray, which is termed a "regrettable incident," was issued to-night.

When the demonstrators, it says, headed by Enver Bey, one of the leaders of the Young Turk party, penetrated the Grand Vizierate in an attempt to enter the council chamber, they were stopped by Fafiz Bay, aid de camp to the Grand Vizier, who, drawing his revolver, fired a shot at them. Capt. Tewfik Bey Kibrizli, nephew and aid de camp of Nazim Pasha, also fired at the crowd, his bullet striking Mehmed Nedjif, one of the demonstrators. The demonstrators thereupon returned the fire and Capt. Tewfik Bey was instantly killed.

Nazim Pasha, who was in the Council Chamber, heard the shots and rushed outside. Facing the demonstrators he upbraided them, calling them ill-mannered curs. While he was speaking a bullet cut short his remarks, and he fell dead.

A secret police agent and an attendant of the Sheik-ul-Islam, head of the Mohammedan clergy, were also killed.

The leading Unionists of Constantinople declare that the shooting of Nazim was unpremeditated and much regretted, but under the circumstances unavoidable. They say the Unionists bore no ill-will toward Nazim, whose open and soldierly character made him respected even by his political opponents. The fact that a notorious enemy of the Committee of Union and Progress like Rechad Pasha, the late Minister of the Interior, was allowed to go unhurt, it is argued, proves that the demonstrators desired to avoid bloodshed.

Another version of the affair says that Nazim Pasha was killed by a shot from the revolver of Enver Bey, or Talaat Bey, and was accidental. The two officers were trying to protect themselves, says this story, from Nazim Pasha's aid de camp, who had shot at them from a window. They drew their revolvers and emptied them at him. The bullets struck and killed Nazim Pasha, who was seated within the room.

Rioting in the City.

Great public excitement followed the killing of the Commander in Chief. Fighting took place at several places in the city this morning. A dozen or more persons have been wounded, and many arrests have been made.

Talaat Bey, who is now Minister of the Interior, informed the European Embassies that all measures necessary to insure the security of the city had been taken. He also addressed circulars to the Provincial Governors, explaining the reasons for the change in the Government and calling upon the people to lend their moral and material aid to the Government, "which was determined to defend the interests of the country now faced with the prospects of a resumption of hostilities."

The new Turkish Cabinet is made up as follows:

Grand Vizier and Minister of War, Mahmud Shefkat Pasha; President of Council of State, Said Halim; Interior, Talaat Bey; Foreign Affairs, (temporary,) Mukhtar Bey; Marine, Tschuruksula Mahmud; Justice, Ibrahim Pasha; Finance, Rifaat Bey; Public Works, Batzaria Effendi; Pious Foundations, Hairi Pasha; Agriculture, Djelal Effendi; Poss, Oskian Bey, and Public Instruction, Shukri Pasha.

The Cabinet took the oath of allegiance to-day, following the burial of Nazim Pasha, Mahmud Shefket Pasha, the new Grand Vizier and Minister of War, an old comrade of the Commander in Chief, was present at the funeral.

The Sultan went to the mosque at noon to attend the usual Selamlik, at which Mahmud Shefket Pasha and Enver Bey also were present. The function passed off without incident.

Wants Peace and Adrianople.

The official view of the situation between Turkey and the Balkan allies may be set forth as follows:

The Government does not desire a resumption of hostilities, but the powers are even less anxious to witness a renewal of the war, owing to the danger of possible complications in Europe. Turkey realizes her condition of penury, but this condition is chronic to her, and means can always be found for keeping afloat.

On the other hand, from a military standpoint, Turkey is in a better condition than ever to wage war with advantage, especially as the Government believes the forces of the allies are near the point of exhaustion. Nevertheless the Porte would prefer to avoid further bloodshed, if this is honorably possible, and the maintenance and possession or Adrianople by the allies is not insisted on.

Official circles are confident that no coercive pressure by the powers need be feared, nor threats of isolated action by Russia taken very seriously, owing to the possibility of such action bringing about European complications. Under these circumstances, it is felt here, that the allies may come to realize that Adrianople is not indispensable to their well being, especially when they see that it is the determination of the entire Turkish Nation to fight rather than to surrender the Holy City.

A dramatic story is told of the scene outside the offices of the Grand Vizier when the leaders of the Young Turk party arrived trere yesterday afternoon to overturn the peace Cabinet.

There was a considerable crowd present and great enthusiasm when some one unfurled a flag and waved it. The excitement became tense when Enver Bey, mounted on a white charger, came in view, accompanied by several staff officers. As he dismounted before the door and made his request for an audience with the Grand Vizier the gates closed as if automatically.

The Commandant of Constantinople, Memduh Pasha, stood on guard and refused to allow any one to enter except Enver Bey and Talaat Bey, one of his companions.

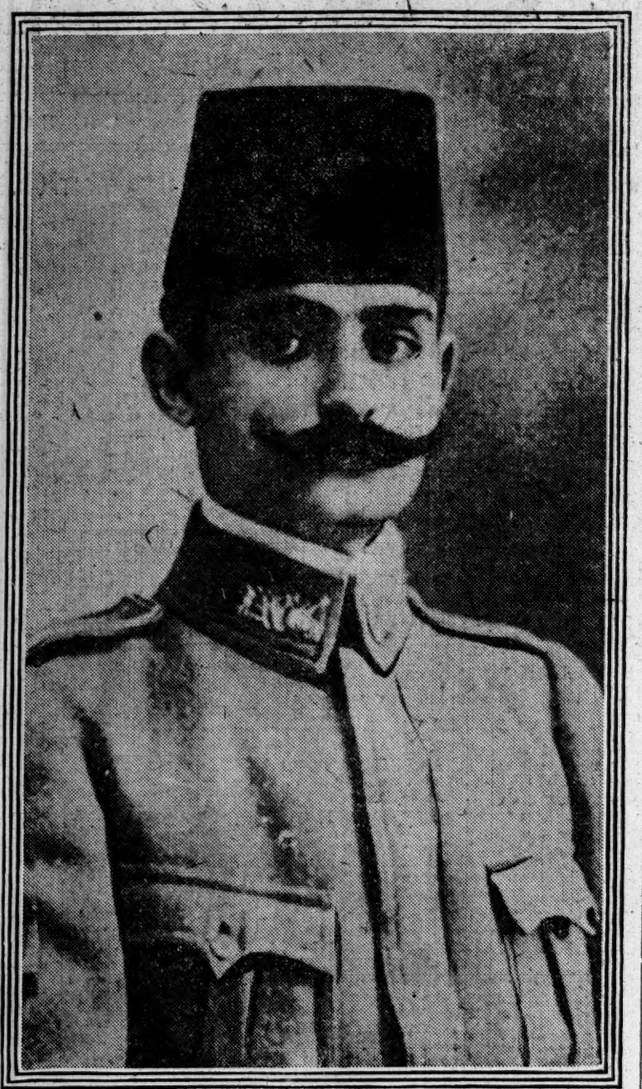
After a short consultation among the group outside, Enver Bey and Talaat Bey returned and spoke to the Commandant, who opened the door and let them in. Accompanied by him they walked straight to the council chamber where most of the Ministers were gathered and without any preliminaries called upon the Cabinet to resign.

The demand seemed to be expected, for Kiamil Pasha immediately sat down, wrote out his resignation, and handed it to Enver Bey, who with his companion went outside, mounted their chargers, and proceeded to the Sultan's palace amid the cheers of the crowd.

The Sultan was at first disinclined to accept the resignation as genuine, but after sending a messenger to the Grand Vizierate and obtaining confirmation, he called for Mahmoud Shefket Pasha and appointed him Grand Vizier.

Enver Bey has now become a popular hero.

ENVER BEY



One of the Suspected Assassins of Nazim Pasha and His Successor as Chief of Staff of the Turkish Army.

ALLEGES PLOT OF POWERS.

Cherif Pasha Says Austria and Germany Aided Young Turks.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Cherif Pasha, a friend of Kiamil Pasha and Nazim Pasha, in an interview to-night affirmed that Germany and Austria had been secretly working to bring about a return to power in Turkey of the Committee of Union and Progress. During Cherif's recent visit to Constantinople, he said, high German diplomats did their utmost to induce him to reconcile himself with the committee.

Cherif further asserted that the Sultan would be dethroned in favor of the Crown Prince, who maintains close relations with Mahmoud Shefket Pasha, the new Grand Vizier. Cherif said he believed Turkey was certain to lose Constantinople and all her European empire, and that a counter-revolution was imminent, as the Arabs, Kurds, and Christians of Asia Minor were ready to fight against the return to power of their oppressors.

EUROPEAN BOURSES HARD HIT.

Panicky Conditions in Berlin—Stocks Fall Heavily in St. Petersburg.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Stock Exchange was greatly disappointed by the Turkish crisis to-day, and quotations were marked down in all directions, more particularly the speculative issues. Rio Tinto was 2¼ points down at the opening, and Turkish bonds were 1½ points down. Consols were quoted ¼ lower on local selling, due to fears that the Continental markets might unload heavily.

Later the market appeared a shade steadier, and with a hardening tendency, although it was still unsettled.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The Boerse to-day received the news from Constantinople with something akin to dismay, inasmuch as operators had been trusting implicitly in the conclusion of an early peace.

Panicky conditions prevailed at the opening of the market, when an enormous volume of rush selling orders was executed. Prices broke violently, all the Balkan securities being hard hit. German bonds were also sharply depressed.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—There was considerable fluttering in the Bourse to-day as a result of the Turkish crisis, and stocks generally went down. The banks to-day resumed their refusal to hand out gold to depositors.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 24.—Financial and official circles here are less affected by the prospect of an indefinite postponement of peace and a probable renewal of hostilities in the Balkans than by the continuation of the Austro-Russian tension.

This was shown on the Bourse to-day, where prices broke sharply, even the most solid stocks losing five to ten points, and continuing to fall after the closing hour.

GREAT PESSIMISM IN BERLIN.

Little Hope Is Felt of Preventing a Resumption of the War.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The new situation in Turkey is commented on with great reserve in official quarters here. It is doubted whether diplomatic means will suffice to prevent the resumption of hostilities, but it is declared that the European powers will again concentrate their efforts on localizing the conflict should it break out again.

Government officials see no indications that the unity of the powers has been shaken by the latest developments and it is understood that the nations interested are already conferring on the situation.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The apprehension of war, which was lifted for a few hours by the decision of the Ottoman Grand Council to accept the allies' terms, descended heavily again to-day in consequence of the overthrow of the Turkish Government.

The Foreign Office, however, continues to hold that the accord between the great powers is so firm that if the war in the Balkans is resumed it will be confined to its present bounds.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 24.—Russia has not formulated any definite policy in face of the new situation at Constantinople, which took the Government, the press and the public entirely by surprise.

Reports of alleged Russian threats to invade Asiatic Turkey, if peace was not concluded, are categorically denied by the Turkish Ambassador. Russian accounts of the nature of the Ambassador's interview with Sergius Sasoneff, Russian Foreign Minister, do not carry conviction with them.

HURRY WARSHIPS TO TURKEY.

England, Italy, and Other Powers Order Vessels to the Scene.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Italian, British, and other warships have been ordered to proceed immediately to Turkish waters, according to dispatches from Mediterranean ports, which announce that there is considerable activity among the fleets of the great powers.

BREAK UP POKER GAME IN 107TH ST.

Same Detectives Who Figured in 92d St. Raid Find Another Party.

MEN AND WOMEN PLAYERS

Two Arrests Made and Hundreds of Chips and Other Paraphernalia Seized by Police.

Inspector Dwyer, with Detectives Armstrong and Sutter, raided an apartment in a house in West 107th Street late last night, where they say three women and seven men were playing poker for high stakes, while a negro chef served supper. Mrs. Alice D. Merrill and Robert S. Roberts, who gave the apartment as their home, were arrested and locked up at the West Sixty-eighth Street and West 100th Street stations respectively. The names of the other men and women were taken and they were allowed to go.

The raid was the sequel to that on the house in Ninety-second Street last Friday night. Last week Detectives Armstrong and Sutter, after the raid on the Ninety-second Street house, kept an appointment with two women who introduced them there, and then went to the apartment in West 107th Street. The detectives say they bought $20 worth of chips and lost.

The detectives left the place and secured warrants for Mrs. Merrill, charging her with keeping and maintaining a gambling house, and Roberts with aiding and abetting her in its management. Last night, with Inspector Dwyer, they went to the house and asceding to the sixth floor, were admitted to the apartment by a negro butler, who remembered them from a previous visit.

The players, the detectives say, took the interference calmly, one woman remonstrating with Inspector Dwyer for his visit, saying she was having her first winning streak in a month. While the names and addresses of the alleged gamblers were being taken, a patrol wagon rumbled up to the house, and for the first time the other tenants were aware that the police were making a raid.

Scattered about the room and in the drawers of the table, the raiding officers say they found eighty packs of poker cards, several hundred real ivory poker chips and green shades to protect the players' eyes.

POLICE CALL WITH AXES.

"Social Club" In Stuyvesant Street, However, Admits Inspector.

A visit was paid by Inspector Thomas Myers, Lieut. Ross, several policemen and plain clothes men, and two firemen, to 6 Stuyvesant Street last night. The firemen were admitted, but the door was slammed in the face of Inspector Myers.

A Lieutenant of the Fire Department and a fireman called at the house yesterday afternoon, and admittance to the place was refused. They departed, and at 6 o'clock last night a patrol wagon full of reserves and another full of plain clothes men drove up. After the police had formed lines about the place, the plain clothes men approached the door with axes and crowbars. The door was opened slightly, and the firemen were allowed to enter, but when Inspector Myers attempted to follow the man at the door said:

"Nothing doing, Inspector. The only way you can get in here is with a warrant."

At 8 o'clock last night the firemen and Inspector Myers returned and were admitted to the house. They remained inside for fifteen minutes.

The house is a two-story brick building near Third Avenue and is ostensibly used as a social club. For some time a policeman has been stationed in front of the place to warn people away by saying it was a gambling house.

ENFORCE LAW, SAYS WHITMAN

District Attorney Eulogized at the City Club in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of New York to-night told the City Club that the need of to-day was fewer laws and more law enforcement. He asserted that if the Legislatures were to adjourn for a quarter of a century there would be laws enough on the statute books to bring justice to all if they were fearlessly enforced.

Five hundred representative men gathered to greet Mr. Whitman, and joined in cheering him. Ex-Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham, Attorney General James M. Swift, and District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier eulogized him.

"We are hearing much in New York to-day about legislation to reform conditions in the police system. The wisest men in the city are bending their energies to framing reform laws. They should remember that you cannot make Governments good and you cannot make people good by legislation. There is already an abundance of laws to meet conditions as they arise. There is no lack of legal machinery, in fact, there is already too much.

"Legislation is insignificant to-day compared to the obligation which rests upon cities to place their Government in the hands of those who will enforce the laws. The only way to check the growing unrest and discontent and revolt against the law is to enforce the law fearlessly."

CRITICISES WILSON BILLS.

Prof. Jenks Says Half of New Jersey Articles Have Wrong Basis.

In a lecture on "The Relation of Government to Corporations" before more than a hundred members of the Forum of New York University in the Judson Memorial Chapel Building, South Washington Square, yesterday, Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, director of the Forum, said that about one half of the anti-trust articles introduced before the New Jersey Legislature at the instance of Gov. Wilson were wrong, because they were based on the assumption that "all combination is wrong."

Prof. Jenks quoted addresses on the same subject by Representative Martin W. Littleton and former United States Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith. Representative Littleton had proposed as a remedy that corporations should not be allowed to enter into inter-State commerce except under conditions imposed by Congress. Mr. Smith had arrived at the conclusion that a committee with power independent of both Congress and the President would be a wise means of dealing with corporations.

Prof. Jenks, concurring in the views of Representative Littleton and Mr. Smith, said he believed no one would object to having laws passed by Congress defining what things may be legal for a corporation to do and what may be illegal. He said it was a mistaken idea that competition was necessary, though he granted that it had been an uplifting force making for progress. Nevertheless, he insisted that many evil conditions had arisen out of competition, and among them he mentioned woman and child labor.

"The principle of competition is a sound one," added Prof. Jenks, "but when it is unrestrained it becomes injurious to society."

In the opinion of Prof. Jenks, combination in many cases had been forced by excessive competition, but he said that in many instances combination among corporations promoted efficiency.

Prof. Jenks said that before the establishment of the Gary steel plant, almost all steel rails were produced at Pittsburgh by the United States Steel Corporation, which, according to the testimony of one of its officials, saved by the establishment of the Gary plant almost half a million dollars in transportation annually. This, he said, was an illustration of saving by actual combination.

The assertion was made by Prof. Jenks that there were some savings that could be made by monopolies only. For example, he said that when the rivals of the American Tobacco Company were eliminated, that monopoly was enabled to save in advertising alone $3,000,000.

and the policemen on duty were forced to use their clubs to drive off the strikers. Three rioters were arrested. They said they were Michael Dolinch, a cook; John Tes, a waiter, and Emil Menzalia, a kitchen fireman. The two non-union waiters who were assaulted were carried into the basement of the Astor where their wounds were dressed by the house physician. The management declined to give their names.

After having been driven from the Astor, the strikers reformed and marched down Broadway shouting "McAlpin" and "Waldorf." But they dispersed before they arrived there. Fifteen minutes later another fight started in front of Bryant Hall. Five hundred strikers and their sympathizers had departed from the hall at 4:30 o'clock and marched through Forty-second Street to the Hotel Knickerbocker, yelling and jeering. They went down Seventh Avenue, by Louis Martin's and turned east in Forty-first Street and continued to Sixth Avenue, where they gathered in a group in front of Bryant Hall, blocking traffic.

Four detectives from the West Thirtieth Street Police Station who had been trailing the marchers ordered them to move on. They refused, and the detectives arrested the three strikers nearest to them. One of the detectives said that stones and iron spikes were thrown at them. Many Italians, they said, led by Carlo Tresca, the agitator of the Industrial Workers of the World, ran from Bryant Hall to aid the strikers. The detectives said they heard one man call out: "Shoot the police," but saw no guns drawn. In answer to blasts on the detectives' whistles, policemen from near by ran up, followed by the reserves from the West Thirtieth Street Station, who soon cleared the street.

Nine of the rioters were arrested in this fight, including Tresca. He said he lived in West Kensington, Penn., and was an editor.

Grover Cleary, one of the detectives who helped quell the fight at Bryant Hall, was hit in the leg with an iron spike and painfully bruised.

Earlier in the afternoon 1,000 strikers paraded up Fifth Avenue, led by a woman said to be Miss Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the I. W. W. organizer in charge of the strike. The marchers stopped at the Hotel Plaza, forming a cordon around the hotel, but they attempted no violence. They arrived just at the tea hour. The guests in the hotel showed little interest in the demonstration.

The strike caused much inconvenience in the hotels and restaurants. At the Folies Bergere, where 140 cooks and waiters walked out at midnight, the tie-up was complete, and no meals were served yesterday, although Henry B. Morton, President of the company, said he expected to be open for business to-day. He was one of the few restaurant men who signed an agreement with the union in the last strike, acceding all its demands.

The entire force of cooks and waiters, numbering 263, walked out of Churchill's when the union delegate called, but James Churchill, the proprietor, said last night that he had obtained the services of thirty negro waiters recruited here for the Hotel Royal Poinciana at Palm Beach.

At Jack's, John Duston, the proprietor, said last night that in place of the ten Italian cooks who had walked out, he had engaged ten Irishmen and Americans, who were not afraid of a fight, and would not be intimidated by the union pickets. Michaud's restaurant, in Forty-second Street, was closed all day yesterday, and a sign on the front door read:

On account of the strike this restaurant closed until to-morrow.

Rector's was seriously crippled when 250 strikers quit. No attempt was made to serve luncheon, but in the evening one-third of the tables in the dining room up stairs were set, and dinner and supper were served as usual. No meals were served in the basement café. Some 300 waiters, bus boys, and kitchen workers quit work in the Hotel McAlpin at 6:30 o'clock last evening and paraded around the block.

The McAlpin, New York's biggest hotel, lost nearly 300 waiters at the dinner hour last night. The waiters, according to the management, were thoroughly satisfied with the conditions and the treatment they received. In an effort to prevent the union from calling them out, 350 of them signed a petition and sent it to headquarters, asking the Strike Committee to be allowed to keep their jobs. The only answer received was a demonstration made outside the hotel by 500 strikers, and a peremptory order to quit. Many of them told Manager Booner they were going only because they were afraid to stay.

The cooks did not go out with the waiters, and 150 of them were lodged in the hotel over night. For those who had wives and wanted to go home the management provided taxicabs.

At the Martinique all of the employes continue loyal, but those who feared the strikers' pickets were allowed ot choose betweeen stopping in the hotel and being sent home in taxicabs.

Twenty-five waiters at Sherry's quit just before lunch time, but dinner was served under almost normal conditions. An attempt to get the waiters out at Delmonico's was unsuccessful. Twenty waiters, it was said, walked out of the Hotel Webster in West Forty-fifth Street, and twelve from the Hotel Patterson in West Forty-sixth Street. A few minutes after noon forty-nine waiters and the head quit at Henry Maillard's, at 360 Fifth Avenue.

Ninety men walked out at Louis Martin's, at Forty-second Street and Broadway, yesterday morning, after coming down to do the usual early morning cleaning up. They said they were forced to quit by the union, although they were perfectly satisfied and wanted to stay. They said they were afraid not to obey the strike order. Their departure seriously affected the service at luncheon, but at dinner last night the service was normal.

Albany Waiters to End Strike.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The hotel waiters, who have been on strike here since early in January, voted at a meeting early to-day to end the strike. The hotels, which were seriously inconvenienced at first, have been running under practically normal conditions for more than a week.

GAMBLER CONVICTED DESPITE THE POLICE

Jury Ignores Fact That Much Evidence in Collins Case Had Disappeared.

JUDGE SWANN SCORES WALDO

Answers His Report That Fault In Gaming Prosecutions Lies In the Courts.

Daniel Collins, who was arrested in a gambling raid at 1,328 Eighth Avenue in March, 1911, was convicted before Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday of being a common gambler, and remanded one week for sentence. In the trial it developed that after the raid, which was made by ex-Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Flynn, all of the exhibits in the case, with the exception of two photographs, had disappeared. The jury was only out two minutes, however, before it brought in a verdict of guilty.

"In this case the usual thing happened," said Judge Swann. "The evidence that was seized, gambling paraphernalia, which should have been introduced in this trial, was lost in some unaccountable manner in Police Headquarters, and the membership ticket of the so-called 'Utopia Club' was 'misplaced' at the same place.

"The complainant witness, Policeman James Ortelero, now off the force, before the arrest of the defendants made an affidavit with the city Magistrate giving an accurate description of the men to be arrested. When he appeared before the city Magistrate he picked out the men, and then it was discovered that in some unaccountable manner the various names had become mixed and the descriptions failed to tally with the name of the person arrested. I am glad that you penetrated this subterfuge. Commissioner Waldo has issued a report that the difficulty in prosecuting gambling cases is met with in this court. I leave it to you gentlemen to discover where the real difficulty lies. Ex-Police Lieut. Caine should be complimented for his stand in this case, and Ortelero has done a great public service."

Later in the day Judge Swann granted Ortelero a license to carry a revolver. This was done after the ex-policeman had told him that on Thursday night several men followed him home. In speaking of the case ex-Lieut. Caine said:

"This is an outrage. This case has been 'jobbed' ever since it reached the Harlem Court. The names and descriptions of our prisoners were mixed through no fault of ours, and the names and descriptions of photographs were scratched out that I might have difficulty in identifying them. Then again most of our evidence, such as crap cloths and rakes and charts, were done away with. They tried to get me at Headquarters by giving me property blanks to copy in the hope that I would make a mistake, and personally I don't believe for one moment that the evidence in this case was destroyed."

FIND QUALEY GUILTY IN FOUR MINUTES

HOW FAKE PLANT WORKED

When Stock Customers Appeared Employes Were Ordered to Show Great Activity.

John A. Qualey, the President of the Magnesia Asbestos Company at Newark, N. J., was convicted of grand larceny in the first degree before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court last night, and was remanded for sentence on Monday. The jury was out four minutes.

Qualey was indicted jointly with Harvey W. Corbett, it being charged that in 1910 they swindled Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, the widow of Dr William T. Bull, out of $35,000 by false representations. Corbett turned State's evidence against his former partner, and confessed that at no time did the Magnesia Asbestos Company make $3,000 in one day, as Qualey said it did, and further testified that the greater part of Mrs. Bull's $35,000 had been used for personal expenses. Qualey put in no defense, and the principal witness was Gustav B. Jensen, the former local manager of the Qualey-Corbett plant in Newark.

Mr. Jensen testified that he had been employed by Qualey in September, 1910, and that the largest number of men ever employed in the plant was fifteen. In reply to a question from Assistant District Attorney Moss, Mr. Jensen said that this was by no means the average, as there were many times when the entire plant lay idle, and that it was only upon rare occasions that more than six men reported for work. In describing the activity of the plant when a prospective buyer of stock appeared, Jensen said:

"Qualey would then get us to go to work. Some of the men would go upstairs and hammer on a piece of boiler plate, others would hammer on stones, while still others would empty bags of plaster into other bags and then empty it back into the original bags again. In this manner we raised a lot of dust, and the dust and noise combined made it appear as if we were doing a rushing business."

Mr. Jensen then testified that as near as he could recall the concern had made up about 1,000 plaster boards, and that these weighed about 200 tons, and were worth $6.50 a ton. He said that was about the whole output of the plant. He testified that there was a man whom Qualey was anxious to have buy $10,000 worth of stock, and that one day, when this man visited the plant, Qualey gave orders that the houses be repainted, and that as a result of this order every available painter in Newark was placed at work painting the buildings. He said that on this occasion Qualey had fires made in the dead limekilns to make it appear that they were busy.

Another witness for the prosecution was Mrs. Charles Boller, an investigator. She said that she went to Newark to make an investigation and found the plant deserted. Charles Stever, who occupied offices in the same building with Qualey and Corbett, said that he rented them the office they occupied and the furniture in it. On one occasion this furniture was seized for debt, and he had to go through a long legal process to recover it.

Michael Instone, one of the men who worked for Qualey, testified that the highest number of men he ever saw working was twelve. Corbett will be placed on trial next week.

TWO SENATORS ELECTED.

Webb, Independent Democrat, in Tennessee; Brady, Republican, in Idaho.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Prof. W. R. Webb of Bellbuckle, Tenn., Independent Democrat, was elected United States Senator to-day for the term ending March 4 next. He deefated M. T. Bryan of Nashville, Democrat, 78 to 53. The Senator-elect is 70 years old. He was a captain in the Confederate army and has been conducting a preparatory school for boys in Tennessee for more than forty years.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 24.—Ex-Gov. James Brady was elected United States Senator for the short term, to fill out the term of the late Senator Heyburn, on joint ballot of the Legislature to-day. He received 44 votes.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 24.—Both Houses of the West Virginia Legislature were organized to-day. Gov. Glasscock, in his message, advocated the passage of the Federal income tax resolution, the election of United States Senators by direct vote, a workmen's compensation law, and woman suffrage.

DOVER, Del., Jan. 24.—In two joint ballots taken to-day Willard Saulsbury, Democrat, was still three votes short of the number necessary for his election to the United States Senate.

York, in the form of call loans, many millions additional. If this country possessed a proper and scientific banking system, such as is possesed by almost every other civilized nation, interior banks would no longer be obliged to concentrate their reserves in New York.

"In this connection, it is important to note that, according to authoritative statistics, the country as a whole has been growing so rapidly that whereas in 1900 New York City banks represented 23.2 per cent. of the banking resources of the United States now they represent only 18.9 per cent of such resources.

"As to the consolidation and co-operation of banking institutions, which has been noted in New York and in only less degree in Chicago and other financial centres, this has taken place chiefly since 1907. In that year the country was swept by a disastrous panic which in New York and elsewhere (under our weak banking system) was stayed only by the united efforts of the banks, driven thereto in order to preserve themselves and to avert widespread calamity.

Foreign Banks More Closely Knit.

"An additional factor tending toward consolidation into larger financial units lies in the rapidly increasing demands of this country for development and commerce. In every commercial country banking arrangements have adapted themselves far more rapidly to such demands, and the enlargement and consolidation of banking institutions has everywhere else proceeded at a rate not even remotely approached in the United States.

"To-day in all of Great Britain, including England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, there remain only 116 separate banking institutions; in Germany less than 500; in France—according to the most complete record that we have—only 27, while in the United States, notwithstanding the consolidations alluded to, there are still more than 25,000 distinct banking institutions. In London there are ten banks with resources in excess of $200,000,000 each, in Paris four, and in Berlin five, while in New York there are at the present time only three banking institutions of like proportions.

"If our large railroad and industrial enterprises are to be financed, (it being estimated that the annual requirements of the railroads alone are $2,500,000,000,) and if this country is to keep a commercial position in the front rank among the nations of the world, it is only natural that some tendency toward co-operation among financial institutions should show itself here, as it has in England, Germany, and France.

"At the invitation of your committee our firm has co-operated in this inquiry, has furnished intimate details of its business and has placed at your disposal all the information available. It believes that there is no such thing, either in form or in fact, as a "money trust." It believes, as its senior member has testified on this stand, that the only permanent influence possessed by men prominent in financial affairs is that due to the confidence of the public in their character and record.

"We recognize and have long recognized serious defects in our present banking and currency laws. We believe that the country will continue to be subject to financial ills and disturbances until it possesses a stronger and more scientific banking and currency system. To secure prompt and wise legislation in these matters, our firm and, we believe, bankers throughout the country will, by every means within their power, co-operate with Congress."

How Morgan Saved City Issue.

The New York City bond transaction of 1907 and the way in which the firm of Morgan & Co. came to the rescue of Mayor McClellan and the Controller when they were unable to sell a municipal bond issue by public competition, was brought up when Mr. Untermyer asked Mr. Davison whether he would disapprove of a law to require the bonds of great inter-State corporations to be sold by competitive bidding.

"I would, most decidedly," Mr. Davison responded. "The bonds of New York City are always offered to the public for sale. We have seen the price of those bonds going down, and coming up as conditions and situations have changed."

Q.—That is so as to all bonds? A.—Yes. As to all bonds. In the Fall of 1907, the Mayor, Controller, and other city officials in New York came into the house of J. P. Morgan & Co. and said they found themselves confronted with a situation where they had to meet maturing bonds, they had offered their bonds to the public and could not sell them, and they wanted to know what could be done. Mr. Morgan at once arranged for the taking up of those bonds, arranged a syndicate—a small syndicate—and he told the city authorities at that time that if they would offer those bonds to the public he would underwrite $40,000,000. They went out and did offer those bonds to the public, and J. P. Morgan & Co. were bidders for them and the city got its money.

Q.—Well, the bonds were taken, were they not? A.—In part.

Q.—How much of them did J. P. Morgan & Co. secure on that competing bid? A.—It does not make any difference. The fact that the bonds were underwritten satisfied the public. Do not make any mistake about that; those bonds had been offered and were not taken.

Q.—How do you know that the public would not take those bonds if in time of panic? A.—Because the law precluded their being offered beyond a certain price, and they had been offered and were not taken.

Tilt Over Praise of Morgan.

Mr. Davidson offered to put in evidence the letter of Mr. Morgan to the Mayor, and the reply of the Mayor, which have been printed.

"We do not want the record lumbered by improper things," interposed Mr. Untermyer.

Chairman Pujo said these letters might be put in if germane to the questions asked. But Mr. Untermyer insisted, "It is not germane to any question here at all. I don't object to witness encomiums of Mr. Morgan, but I don't think they are properly a part of the record."

"They are part of the record insomuch as it bears upon the public offering of municipal and other forms of Government securities," replied Mr. Davison. "I think you will find they are very germane. It is not regarded by me as important, but illustrates the point I wanted to make, the disadvantage at times of offering securities, even by municipalities."

Chairman Pujo ruled that if this correspondence were found to be germane it could be spread into the record.

"Because of that circumstance," asked Mr. Untermyer, "you would not recommend that the United States Government, the several States and great cities should not sell their bonds by public bidding?"

"I most decidedly would not recommend that," said the witness. "This instance illustrates the difficulty in which even a municipality can find itself, and nothing but patriotism would have worked out that situation at that time. The city had obligaions to meet; they were maturing and they could not get the money from the public. So they had to go to private sources, and nothing but patriotism saved them. In the Fall of 1907 nobody wanted to loan the City of New York money."

Favors Publicity for Securities.

Mr. Davison saw no objection to private bankers selling bonds and securities to the bank in which they were interested. If they were so forbidden it would probably result in their resigning from the boards.

Q.—Would you approve of regulations that, before a security could be listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the corporation seeking to have it listed should be required to make full disclosure of all contracts relating to those securities, all profits in the transaction, so as to show that the company really secured, what was paid in the intermediate operations to banks and borrowers? In other words, do you believe in complete publicity? A.—I do.

Q.—Of all intermediate transactions; you think that would be a wholesome law? A.—Decidedly so.

Mr. Untermyer then returned to concentration.

"Has the organization of these trusts and combinations in the last ten years had a great deal to do with concentrating money in New York?" he asked.

"Oh, I think it has," was the reply.

Q.—Has it not brought the principal offices of these great corporations to New York? A.—It has.

Q.—And brought large deposits there? A.—It has been a very important factor to that end.

Q.—Has it not, in fact, been the most important factor in concentrating these great funds in New York? A.—It has been one of the important factors. Of course, our banking law is the really important factor.

Q.—You mean the requirement for reserves to be kept in New York? A.—Yes, and the fact that New York is the natural money centre of the United States, and is the exchange centre of the banks of the country; they all practically carry accounts in New York.

Mr. Davison said Morgan & Co. did not as a rule give participations in underwritings to officers of banks. It might be done and not be harmful, but it would be wrong if done with the idea of influencing that banker. If it was the common practice it should be forbidden by law.

Refuses to Tell Morgan Secrets.

Mr. Untermyer asked how the funds on deposit with Morgan & Co. were invested and came to a sharp clash with Mr. Davison, who rejoined that that was entirely a private matter which did not concern the Pujo Committee.

"We handle our deposits," he said, "in a way that we think is proper and wise, and in the interests of ourselves and our clients."

"The committee," persisted Mr. Untermyer, "is entitled to know, in a general way without prying into your private business, the way these funds of inter-State corporations deposited with you are dealt in, whether they are invested in bonds, whether you buy securities for them, or how they are held."

"Mr. Untermyer, that is entirely a private matter," retorted the witness. "There would be no objection to giving you full information on it, but we would lose our self-respect if we were to come here and set an example before this country of a private house and individuals giving up all their affairs of a private character."

Mr. Untermyer explained that "the purpose of this inquiry is to enable the committee to ascertain and report as to the advisability of private bankers holding the funds of inter-State corporations on deposit and that J. P. Morgan & Co., are not the only private bankers in the country."

"I do not think anybody appreciates the responsibility of that quite as much as do the members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.," said Mr. Davison. "The moneys are invested in a way that they can meet their checks drawn upon them by their customers on demand. The entire resources of all the individuals are liable for all debts of the firm. Those moneys are invested perfectly satisfactorily to the members of the firm, and apparently to our clients."

"That does not answer the question at all," said Mr. Untermeyer. "The committee is dealing with a general situation, not with J. P. Morgan & Co., alone. Let us see whether you will decline to answer. The committee wants to know what proportion of the deposits of Morgan & Co. from inter-State corporations is invested in demand loans."

Always Ready to Pay Deposits.

"Our answer," said the witness firmly, "is the deposits of inter-State corporations are made with Morgan & Co., who at that moment become entirely responsible for the payment of those deposits upon time or upon demand, as the case may be. They so conduct their business that the checks when presented are paid. That is all they have to say to this committee. I will say this: We have not only cash on hand, but we have call loans, we have deposits in bank, we have commercial paper, and we have high-class bonds. If that answers your question, that is as much as I will say."

Mr. Untermyer plainly warned Mr. Davison that the committee might insist on getting the facts he demanded, but the witness did not flinch. Asked what rule there was for keeping securities against deposits, he answered:

"We have a rule satisfactory to ourselves."

The tilt over the affairs of the Morgan firm ended in this fashion:

Q.—Have you any rule that corresponds at all to the law with respect to banks, as to reserves required to be kept by them? A.—The amount of cash kept by us depends entirely upon our own judgment, and our rule is our own.

Q.—You do not reserve any such rule as prevails among the banks? A.—I will give you no further information upon that subject.

Q.—Have you any rule with respect to any amount of convertible securities kept on hand, as compared with deposits of inter-State corporations kept with you? A.—Yes, that we shall always be able to pay out deposits immediately on demand.

Q.—The entire amount? A.—The entire amount.

Business Deals in Millions Now.

Mr. Untermyer turned then to the concentration of money and credit in New York and again found Mr. Davison a puzzle in many respects.

"Did I correctly understand you yesterday to say the concentration of bank capital had now gone sufficiently far to satisfy what you referred to as the present development of the country?" asked the lawyer.

"I expressed the opinion," returned Mr. Davison, calmly, "that consolidation of the banking resources in New York had gone sufficiently far to take care of the present business offered to them in New York."

"In what way would the concentration of credit assist the development of the country?" went on Mr. Untermyer.

"In the first place," returned the witness, "speaking of concentration, there is, in fact, less concentration, comparatively, in New York to-day that there was ten years ago. The percentage of banking resources in New York City today is little over 18 per cent. to that of the resources of the country, whereas ten years ago the banking resources of New York were 23 per cent. of the bank resources of the country. Now, the question of consolidation is one of taking care of the business of the country as it is offered in New York. To-day transactions of $10,000,000 or $30,000,000 or $5,000,000 are very frequent. Ten years ago they were much less frequent. As the business of the country develops units develop and larger institutions are better able to take care of the business offered as the country's business develops."

Questioned further on this point Mr. Davison said: "To-day it is no uncommon thing for a corporation to want to borrow up to $5,000,000 from its bank. If that is a common practice it is very much more to the advantage of a corporation to be able to take care of its customer than for the customer to find it necessary to shop around and borrow $500,000 here, $500,000 there, and $500,000 elsewhere."

Cannot Control the Banks.

Q.—Do you think it safer to leave the banks entirely independent of one another, so that if a man has to shop around he will have plenty of places to shop around in? A.—So far as I know the banks are entirely independent of one another—all of them in the City of New York.

Q.—Even where one bank owns the controlling stock in another you think the controlled bank is independent of the controlling bank? A.—I know of no bank which owns control of the stock of another.

Q.—Take the Chase National Bank. You don't think it is controlled by the First National or the Security Company? A.—No, Sir; it never was.

Q.—All that the Security Company had was about 20 per cent. of the Chase Bank stock? A.—It had a majority of the stock.

Q.—If you have control of stock in a company, do you regard yourself as controlling that company? A.—Not necessarily.

Q.—Would you regard yourself as controlling a corporation of which you owned 99 per cent. of the stock? A.—I would regard myself as able to control the election of its Board of Directors.

Q.—You don't think that ability to control election of the board year by year would constitute control by you of the corporation? A.—It would depend entirely upon the character of the corporation.

Q.—That's the sense in which you say you know of no bank in New York that is controlled by another bank? A.—I know of no bank in New York the conduct of which is controlled by any other bank.

Q.—Even though one bank may own the controlling stock in the other? A.—It would make no difference in the control of the conduct of the bank.

Q.—Even if Morgan & Co. owned the majority stock in all the National banks in New York City, you would not regard Morgan & Co. as controlling them? A.—If they did, they would not have much business; the bank would not.

Q.—Have you tried it? A.—No; we are too wise to try it.

Q.—Even if you owned the bank, you would be too wise to try to control it? A.—We could not control it certainly not. We could not control the management in practice.

Limit on Interlocking Directors.

Taking up the matter of interlocking Directorates Mr. Untermyer asked whether he was to understand that Mr. Davison thought that if the law were amended to prevent interlocking Directorates, "the identity of certain Directors in certain banks," it would put the progress of the country back twenty years.

"Not necessarily," replied Mr. Davison. "That was not my statement of yesterday."

Q.—You don't want to see interlocking directorates prevented? A.—No; I think it would be unfortunate to have them prevented. I said yesterday to the very broad, comprehensive mind that it would set back the country twenty-five years to have it adopted; but that is not the question you are asking now.

Q.—But you do not think the prevention of interlocking directorates would set back the country's business? A.—I think because there are advantages in interlocking directorates. It would be unfortunate—it would not be a serious misfortune—but I think it would be so to pass a law that a man could not sit on the Board of two banks which are competing. I think, as it has developed in New York, the interlocking Directors there have served a real purpose, a beneficial purpose; they benefit the banks on whose boards they sit. The advantage lies in the benefit of the financial experience and advice given those institutions by the men who sit on two boards.

Q.—Then you would have no limit to the interlocking directorate? A.—I most decidedly would.

Q.—Where would you draw the line? A.—I would draw it where the two boards were dominated by the same factors. If two boards were dominated by exactly the same interests I should say those two institutions should be merged in practical working. I see no objection to the interlocking Directors to a degree.

Mr. Davison was led to say that the Chase National Bank and the First National Bank were at present really competitors. Mr. Untermyer pointed out that out of nine Directors of the Chase Bank five were Directors of the First National—George F. Baker, George F. Baker, Jr., A. Barton Hepburn, James T. Hill, and F. L. Hine—and asked:

"And you see no objection to that situation?"

Again Demands Currency Reform.

"In practice I see no objection to that particular situation," returned Mr. Davison, emphasizing the qualifying words. He went on: "There is just one point that I think should be brought out here. The whole burden of my thought on this subject is that there is a condition in this country which it is necessary to reckon with. If you will direct the attention of this committee to legislation for a proper, strong, scientific banking system, all this question will disappear. This concentration in New York City is not only not a peril or a menace but it is a benefit and has protected this general situation. That is the answer to the situation in so far as the banking situation is concerned.

Q.—We don't want to get into the currency situation. Another committee is dealing with that. A.—You are very much in it.

Q.—You say the concentration of credit among the great banks of New York is a benefit to the situation? A.—Certainly.

Q.—On the assumption that a benefit can never be too great a benefit; that the further you go the more benefit it would be? A.—That's your supposition; it's not mine.

Q.—Do you think the concentration will keep on extending? A.—I decline to answer that question. I did not say the concentration was not a menace and was a benefit, but that the situation in New York to-day is not a menace, but has been a benefit to this country as a whole.

Q.—On that theory you think the concentration which has gone on in New York ought to continue to increase? A.—I think it will continue to increase unless you get a proper banking system. It will increase under existing conditions.

Q.—And will you help it to increase? A.—We will do anything in the interest of the country.

Q.—You believe it would be for the country's interest for Morgan & Co. to own all the banks in New York. A.—I certainly do not.

Q.—You do not think it would be to their interest to further increase the concentration of credit in New York? A.—That would depend entirely on conditions.

Q.—Up to the point where the same men would have a majority of each board of the financial institutions you would see no objection to interlocking directorates? A.—That's a rather difficult question. I would want to know each particular case before expressing opinion on that. I can't conceive of a situation where it would be beneficial to two institutions to have interlocking Directors.

Q.—Having it in mind that, in passing laws you have to be general, where would you place the limit on interlocking Directors? A.—I am afraid I would place the limit by not passing a law on that subject. I have a great deal of confidence in American men.

Safeguarding of Minorities.

"On your theory of your belief in American men would you have any laws, criminal or otherwise?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"Yes, but less rather than more," was the reply. "The banks of England are governed entirely by the English corporation act. There is not a law governing reserves or interlocking Directors or anything of the kind. The Bank of England is a private institution. A bank note in England is secured by gold in the vaults of that bank, which is subject to no examination by the Government."

Mr. Untermyer went into the Bank of England system with Mr. Davison showing there were upward of 30,000 shareholders, with a principle of restricted voting on the stock, shareholders having votes pro rata on the basis of their stock holdings.

Q.—That is intended to protect the minority stockholders? A.—That is the purpose it serves. That is the nature of a voting trust itself. It consolidates the voting on the board. It reduces the number of votes cast. The intention is to protect the minority holders—a very good idea.

Q.—You think it one we ought to copy in this country? A.—I'm not quite clear on that. I believe the holder of a share of stock should be protected and have a voice, but it is a very serious question as to how that should be enacted.

Mr. Davison believed in representation of minorities in corporations. So far as he knew there was no representation for minority holders generally or in banking and financial institutions; 51 per cent. of the stock control gave the entire board.

"It would be very desirable to change that," he explained, "but there is a practical difficulty in the way which this committee will have to consider with great care. The difficulty is that you might find a bank that did a very fine class of business, of very good reputation, and a portion of its stoock might be suddenly bought by a very undesirable man, or set of men, and they would require and be entitled to representation on the board. That very act would not only militate against their own interest, but would be very harmful to the bank itself.

"Who is to determine the limits that go to make desirability or undesirability?"

"The great public."

Mr. Davison said he understood "cumulative voting" as practiced in the Pennsylvania Railroad. "I am very much in favor of a law in that direction," he said, "with the reservation that the situation in regard to financial institutions is in my mind quite different from that of industrial corporations and railroads. The success or failure of a financial institution depends upon public confidence in that institution and in its conduct."

Q.—Then in industrial ventures, railroads and other enterprises, character does not count for so much, does it? A.—I think you would buy a pair of shoes from a concern that was run by a rascal just as quickly as you would from a good man, if the boots were all right.

Q.—Then, you don't think character counts for so much in those concerns? A.—Certainly not. I am free to say that while I am clear that there should be cumulative voting, I am not clear what form it should take, because a financial institution might be very much harmed by that voting.

Q.—You think it should be hedged in by some provision whereby the bank authority should have the right to say whether the Director was satisfactory? A.—That would be a pretty delicate situation for the Controller to find himself in. The committee ought to consider it with great care.

Mr. Davison was asked if he objected to the present system of officers and Directors of National banks being permitted to borrow this money of their banks.

"I think," he replied, "it is better, in practice, that officers should not. On the whole it is perhaps better not to allow this, but I have known a bank officer who said: 'I want every bank officer to borrow his money here so that I will know what he is doing, what he is borrowing, and I don't want him to borrow outside.' If he did not have the confidence of the officers he would not be in the bank to borrow. I think there is no objection whatever to Directors borrowing from their own banks. Evil practices and bad results have come from officers borrowing from their own banks. All the laws of the kingdom cannot prevent fifteen men from looting a bank if they start out to do so. If fifteen Directors sat around the board and divided up the assets of the bank, and kept within the law, that bank would not have any assets, and you don't need any law to govern that."

"Don't you think the law should make that criminal?"

"I think that is made criminal. They are criminals, any way. They would be caught in some other direction."

Mr. Davison then gave way to James J. Hill.

J. J. HILL FEARS MINORITIES.

If Represented They Might Do Harm to Big Properties.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—James J. Hill of St. Paul, the pioneer railroad builder of the great Northwest, testified before the Pjuo Money Trust Committee this afternoon that he was no longer Chairman of the board of the Great Northern Railway, having been succeeded by his son, Louis W. Hill. He is a Directer in the First National and the Chase National Banks of New York, but not in the Fourth National. He is a Director of the First National, the Illinois Trust and Savings, and the First Trust and Savings Banks of Chicago, but had asked to be relieved of the latter Directorship. He is not a Director in the Great Northern, but is a Director of the Northern Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. He denied that the Great Northern and Burlington were competitors, but said the Great Northern and Northern Pacific were active competitors at many points, and had always been.

Mr. Hill explained that he came into a considerable stock of both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific when the Northern Securities Company was dissolved. He did not remember whether the Hill family owned more than 27,000 shares of the former and more than 62,000 shares of the latter.

"Of the Northern Pacific," he continued, "I think I have, oh, somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000 shares." His son J. M. Hill owned possibly 20,341 shares, and his son Louis W. Hill possibly 10,250 shares, but he was not familiar with the Northern Pacific stockholders' list. J. M. Hill, Trustee, owns, he admitted, 27,560 and Mrs. M. H. Hill 3,000 shares."

As to the Great Northern, Mr. Hill said he owned as many as 20,000 shares and his son Louis possibly 13,520. Asked whether George F. Baker held 35,400 shares of Great Northern and 25,000 of Northern Pacific, he said he could not tell, but knew Mr. Baker was a large holder in the Northern Pacific. Mr. Hill knew nothing about the Northern Finance Company; never heard it mentioned. Nor did he know anything about the Curtis Security Company or whether the Curtis Company owned 47,000 shares of Great Northern and 56,000 shares of Northern Pacific.

Mr. Hill testified that the First National Bank of St. Paul, of which he is a Director, recently acquired the Second National Bank, and they had been consolidated into the largest bank in that section. The merger took place Jan. 1.

"Those were the largest banks in the State," said Mr. Hill. "The stock drifted into the estates of dead men. I bought every share of the stock of both banks and distributed what I desired to with younger men who would take an active part."

Mr. Hill said if the Directors of a bank realized and obeyed the law and regarded their oaths it made little difference whether minority stockholders had the right to choose Directors.

Cites Venner as a Danger.

"The law," he exclaimed, "provides for representation of every stockholder. Some shareholders may be in the minority. I have seen cases where a single shareholder holding 100, 200 or 500 shares would stop the transaction of business of a very large corporation. I think you may know of your own personal knowledge a man named Venner, who makes a living doing such things."

"Yes," said Mr. Untermyer, "I have heard of him, but don't know him."

"I think he acknowledges it," said the witness. "He acknowledges that his business is levying blackmail, and he is a minority stockholder."

Asked whether he favored "cumulative voting" to protect minority shareholders, Mr. Hill retorted: "I don't think cumulative voting, properly construed, could do any harm. It might do good. I'll give you something that'll answer your question. Take, for instance, the so-called Aldrich bill and—"

"Just wait a minute," Mr. Hill insisted. "It provides a sort of majority and minority and interlocking and, to me, quite curious method of Governmental appointment of Directors. I think there you would have to have it. There are many $20,000 and $25,000 banks. They have not enough interest in it to vote, would not earn enough money to pay salary of President and cashier. I am talking about votes in the central reserve association under the Aldrich plan. But you can apply the same thing because a central reserve association is a large bank to do business."

Mr. Hill was not sure the effect of cumulative voting would be good in railroads. Some stockholders might lend proxies and some one might pay for the privilege of voting them.

"Some man," he continued, "might come and sit at the council board and be interested in preventing the Great Northern from extending its lines. You would have a very awkward condition. A railroad to get its right of way must do it quietly. This man could get the knowledge and block action. A small minority ought not have the right to destroy property of the majority owners. In a great property the man who becomes a minority holder for the purpose of making trouble ought not to be permitted by law to do it."

Denies Control of Great Northern.

Mr. Hill said there were between 18,000 and 20,000 shareholders in the Great Northern, with 2,100,000 shares, worth $210,000,000 par.

Asked whether he was able to control the Great Northern with less than 3 per cent of stock, Mr. Hill exclaimed: "I don't control it. I was instrumental in building it, but don't control it. I am getting to be an old man and want to get out before I die and have a little time of my own. My son is taking my place, I am glad to say."

If the cumulative voting proposal were adopted, he declared, it would be very easy for a man to get one-ninth of the proxies and put a competing interest into a directorate. "I got one-ninth of proxies once to help a friend, in fact more than that. I got 15 or 18 per cent. of proxies to help a friend who asked it. It was Charles Francis Adams of Boston, and he pretended he was an honest and straightforward man, and I think he was. I felt so then. I have never had reason to change my opinion."

"Possibly I might not want a competitor in a bank sitting at the bank board with me," continued Mr. Hill. "I might not want him, and he might be the best Director and as good as I. My view is that in trying to do good you are likely to do harm; you might not necessarily do harm and not necessarily do good; but it depends on the individual man. All acts are personal things, and the mind and conscience of that individual man is what is going to govern his actions."

Robert Windsor, a member of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; and Gardner M. Lane, member of Lee, Higginson & Co., both of Boston, gave their testimony at the opening of the afternoon session, going into the business of those banking firms, their relations with Morgan & Co. and other New York bankers, and their syndicate participations.

Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank of New York, was the closing witness. Before Mr. Hine took the stand Mr. Untermyer spread on the records a mass of statistical data, covering security participations, furnished by the National City Bank, the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, the First National of Chicago, and Harvey Fisk & Sons.

New Blood in First National.

Mr. Hine testified that he was a Director of the Chase Bank, Bank of Commerce, Liberty, Bankers' Trust, Astor Trust, and Brooklyn Trust, also Director in thirty-five other corporations, mostly industrial, including some railroads. After discussing the personnel of these various institutions Mr. Hine went into the sale by the First National of the Chase Bank stock to the First Security Company.

Mr. Hine was asked whether the securities turned over to the First Security Company by the First National, including the Chase Bank stock, were worth $50,000,000. He would not admit that this was information the committee should have.

"In 1901," said Mr. Hine, "when the First National capital was enlarged, Mr. Baker, who had lost two of his associates out of the four who owned between 80 and 90 per cent. of the bank, and who desired to get new blood into the bank, considered it wise for the bank to increase its capital. By unanimoun vote of the board, with the assent of every shareholder, the board sold Mr. Baker 40,000 shares of the stock of the First National Bank at $300 a share, which was a higher price than either Mr. Fahnestock or I considered it worth, I may say. By that $8,000,000 was added to the bank's surplus.

"Mr. Baker used this stock with no profit for himself. He did, however, enlist new interest in the bank, such as James J. Hill, D. Willis James, Judge Moore, and others. Mr. Baker sold that stock in such a way that with the proceeds he acquired the Chase National Bank stock and other stocks which he in turn, at the time the Security company was organized, sold to the Security company for $6,315,000."

Mr. Hine finally admitted, as a conservative estimate, that the stocks turned over to the First Security Company by the First National were worth $35,000,000. The bank turned them over at exactly the figure—about $10,000,000—they stood on the bank's books. They had never been revalued, and were kept at a comparatively nominal value for business reasons. The question of the taxation did not enter into the matter.

Mr. Hine went over the syndicate participations for the First National with Morgan & Co. and the City Bank. He denied that these three firms were "equal partners" in the $170,000,000 bond underwriting for the New York Subway.

The witness was asked whether New York banks and trust companies should be discouraged from getting participations in underwritings and issues in which they were interested.

"Being American citizens," said Mr. Hine, "as well as bank officers, we believe we are entitled to our rights under the Constitution and laws. I think our consciences are just as secure as those of other gentlemen in relation to ethical matters. I would continue to allow each bank to follow its own custom, as it does now, under the control of the Controller of the Currency. Ours is an open book. The Controller or his representatives see every transaction. Our depositors seem to be perfectly satisfied with the statement we make."

Mr. Hine denied that the First National Bank was conducting the First Security Company "practically as part of the bank." He admitted it was conducted through the same officers, with the same clerks, for the stockholders of the bank. He drew a distinction between conducting the Security Company "for the bank and conducting it for the stockholders of the bank." The Security Company, he explained, did not buy and sell securities to any great extent. Its principal business was to hold securities which were sold to it by the First National and by George F. Baker, receive the income and distribute it among its shareholders. Mr. Hine was asked whether the profits of the Security Company would be 100 per cent annually if its securities were "valued at the real market price."

"I am not given to flights of imagination," he retorted. "I would not attempt to imagine anything so absurd."

"I am in favor of less law rather than more," said Mr. Hine when asked if the law should be changed to prevent unrestricted consolidation of banks. "I favor the same sort of law that obtains in the great banking centres of the world outside of New York." Mr. Hine said the same ethics obtain in banking as in the legal and medical professions. As to "infringing upon the preserves of others," he considered it unprofessional.

Explanation from Mr. Schiff.

Chairman Pujo made public an explanatory letter from Jacob H. Schiff concerning his testimony. It follows:

KUHN, LOEB & CO.
New York, Jan. 17, 1913.

Dear Mr. Untermyer: When I was before your committee, upon your question how large an amount of its deposits the National City Bank might have invested in securities, I answered it I thought 10 or 15 per cent. I have looked into this and find that the National City Bank has practically none of its deposits invested in securities, but that these investments are within a small amount of its capital and surplus. Will you have my testimony corrected in this respect?

If I had had the opportunity to make proper answers to your questions I should not have hesitated to state that the multiplication of banks and trust companies has heretofore led to an overextension of credit, to overtrading, and to illegitimate conditions in general, and that the financial panic of 1907 and other financial depressions that have preceded it have largely been brought on by the too great multiplication of banks and trust companies.

I should be glad if this were likewise appended to the testimony I have given before the committee.

With assurances of esteem, believe me yours faithfully, JACOB H. SCHIFF.

The committee then adjourned its public hearings until it could make its preliminary report and ask for more power.

TUBERCULOSIS SERUM NO LONGER SECRET

Dr. Friedmann Takes a Tube of It to the Ministry of the Interior at Berlin.

GETS A $1,000,000 OFFER

C. E. Finlay of New York Will Pay Him That Sum If He Cures 95 Out of 100 Cases.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, whose declaration that he had discovered a cure for tuberculosis brought a deluge of letters, telegrams, and personal inquiries upon him, went to the Ministry of the Interior yesterday to hand in a tube of his serum to the chief of the Public Health Department with the request that the Government designate physicians to co-operate with him in giving it the most exhaustive trial.

Dr. Friedmann had not intended to make his remedy public so soon, but was driven to do this by the efforts of a number of the most prominent Berlin physicians to get hold of his serum, and by their assertions that they had succeeded.

Of two serums which his rivals are now holding out as the Friedmann serum, Dr. Friedmann declares that one is ineffective and the other dangerous, and he refuses to have his name connected with them.

The story of several Berlin physicians' efforts to obtain the Friedmann culture is, to say the least, remarkable, and still more remarkable is the fact that they include some men who have been the strongest opponents of Dr. Friedmann.

One specialist obtained from the blood of a tuberculous policeman who had been inoculated by Dr. Friedmann bacilli which, he said, had been developed by the Friedmann serum, and he has been using a culture from these bacilli.

Others obtained certain bacilli from a bacteriologist, Dr. Piorkowski. When Dr. Friedmann first began his experiments some eleven years ago he employed Dr. Piorkowski to assist him. Later he conducted his experiments alone, but Dr. Piorkowski now asserts that he saved the culture of the original bacilli, which were obtained by inoculating a turtle with virulent bacilli. From him certain physicians have got cultures.

Dr. Friedmann, however, asserts that his first cultures were never used on human beings and that the bacilli he is employing to-day are of quite another nature.

The climax which determined Dr. Friedmann to present his remedy to the Ministry came as the result of the visit to Berlin of Dr. A. B. Heid of Pittsburgh. Dr. Heid, whose wife is dying from tuberculosis, came here to get the remedy, if possible, and met an energetic American, who is also here to try to obtain the remedy. The two having heard of Dr. Piorkowski, visited him and obtained from him the serum which he declares came from Dr. Friedmann's original culture.

The American in question promptly made it known that he intended to have the honor of introducing Dr. Friedmann's remedy in the United States.

This proved the limit, and drove Dr. Friedmann to action. What steps the Ministry will take in the matter are not yet known.

Dr. Friedmann has received most generous offers to go to America and personally introduce his remedy, and has almost decided to do so.

FINLAY OFFERS $1,000,000.

Will Pay That to Friedmann if He Cures 95 Out of 100 Cases.

Charles E. Finlay, President of the Aetna National Bank and a member of the Ricketts-Finlay Company, realty, 1 West Thirty-fourth Street, announced yesterday afternoon that he would pay $1,000,000 to Dr. F. F. Friedmann of Berlin, the discoverer of a serum to cure tuberculosis, if Dr. Friedmann would come to this country and cure 95 out of 100 patients to be placed under his care. If Dr. Friedmann cannot come to America at this time the offer calls for the treatment of the 100 patients by Dr. Lawranson Brown of Saranac Lake, N. Y., a specialist in tuberculosis.

Mr. Finlay said that his offer was due primarily to the fact that Rex Lee Faris, his son-in-law, was a tuberculosis sufferer, and that he stood ready to spend every cent he had, if necessary, to have Mr. Faris's health restored. As for the other 99 patients he said he would let them be selected by eminent physicians.

Mr. Finlay was in conference with Dr. Arthur Friedmann of Colorado Springs, who represented his brother, the discoverer of the serum, and Dr. Brown, and it was after the conference that Mr. Finlay announced that he would guarantee Dr. Friedmann $1,000,000 if he succeeded in effecting a cure in 95 per cent. of the cases.

Cables to Friedmann.

Mr. Finlay said he had cabled to Dr. Friedmann, and the specialist had replied that he would give a definite answer by cable within forty-eight hours. It was some weeks ago that Mr. Finlay first got into communication with the German savant. He authorized his brother, Dr. Arthur Friedmann, to come to New York and represent him in the negotiations.

"I have agreed to pay all Dr. Friedmann's expenses," said Mr. Finley, "and all that I ask is that he make good, and that my son-in-law shall be the first patient. If he does come, the serum will be administered right here in New York, under the supervision of Dr. Brown, who is considered one of the best authorities on tuberculosis in this country.

"The ninety-nine other patients will not have to pay anything for being treated, and in the event the negotiations now pending are successful, we hope to lease the old Polyclinic Hospital building in Thirty-fourth Street. If ninety-five cures are effected it will prove that the serum is a specific, and it is probable that a number of other sanitariums will be established in various parts of the country. In those sanitariums the poor will be treated free of charge, and the rich will be permitted to pay a sum that they think is fair. In that way I would hope, of course, to get my money back, but without interest. But that is a secondary matter, and the original offer stands, regardless of anything that may be subsequently done.

Hope for Early Start.

"We hope to start work within two weeks. Dr. Friedmann now has before him a concrete and definite proposition and all that he has to do to benefit it is to make good. I sincerely and from the bottom of my heart hope that he will be able to do so.

"I am reliably informed that there are two physicians at present on the way to America with a serum which they say is the same as Dr. Friedmann's. Dr. Friedmann of Berlin has cabled to his brother that it is not his serum they are bringing, and is desirous that the public should not be deceived. I am making this statement so as to safeguard anyone who is troubled with tuberculosis and to prevent them being misled or deceived by sprious treatment.

"We propose making a thorough test of Dr. Friedmann's serum. The 100 persons on whom the test will be made will be selected. Persons in each of the various stages of the disease will be chosen. The number has been decided upon simply to get a fair average.

"Two years ago my daughter married a graduate of Princeton University, Rexkel Faris, of the class of 1908. Mr. Faris was an athlete, and had a fine physique. Some time after the marriage tuberculosis developed. He is now at Saranac Lake, being treated under the direction of Dr. Brown, of whose ability I cannot speak too highly."

AMERICAN PAINTER A SUICIDE.

H. M. Penhall, Dead in Palermo, Wrote: "I Want to Die in Italy."

PALERMO, Jan. 24.—H. M. Penhall, an American painter, believed to be a citizen of San Francisco, committed suicide here yesterday. His address is unknown, as he carried no papers with him, but in his pockets were four visiting cards and a note saying:

"I want to die in Italy."

It is believed that he came from Messina. His baggage shows that he had been in Rome and Alexandria.

Bonar Law's New Protection Idea.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 24.—Speaking to-night at a big Unionist meeting, Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, said that the Unionists, if returned to power, would impose a moderate tariff on manufactured goods, which would be lower than that of any other country and give the colonies the best preference possible without imposing new food duties. He said that he hoped the Unionists would even be able to abolish the existing duties on food.

Briand Has Attack of Syncope.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Aristide Briand, the new Premier, had an attack of syncope in the Chamber of Deputies this evening. Medical attendance was at hand and he quickly recovered. The new Cabinet to-day submitted the customary declaration of policy to the Chamber of Deputies and Senate. Among the legislation proposed is that to complete the plan for giving proportional representation of minorities in Parliament.

PROGRESSIVES OPEN OFFICES

Permanent Headquarters in New York and Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The first move of the Progressive Party toward keeping up a permanent party organization was made to-day when headquarters were opened in both New York and Washington. This action is intended to serve as notice that the Progressive Party has come to stay, that it will not treat with the Republicans and that it intends to put a separate National party ballot in the field in 1916. Col. Roosevelt has rejected suggestions of a reorganization of the Republicans and the Progressives into a new party. It is the intention of the Progressive chiefs to keep their organization alive in every part of the country, according to what was said to-day.

Walter F. Brown of Ohio will be in charge of the New York headquarters. He will devote himself entirely to organization. Col. Roosevelt is credited with having said that Mr. Brown was "the most astute organizer among the younger generation of American politicians." The Washington office of the Progressives in the Munsey Building will be the headquarters of the National Committee, and will be in charge of Oscar King Davis, the National Committee's Secretary. It will devote itself mainly to the distribution of Bull Moose literature, and will publish The Progressive Bulletin, which will be the official party organ.

Dean Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania is to have charge of a committee which will conduct "a legislative reference bureau." Its duties will be to keep a record of bills introduced in Congress and State Legislatures and to let Progressives know what they mean and who are behind them.

Miss Jane Addams is to be in charge of a "social service bureau" in Chicago, and Miss Frances Kellor is to be head of a bureau in Boston to work for woman suffrage.

DEMANDS WRIGHT'S REMOVAL.

Grand Jury Hands Up Second Presentment on Tombs Management.

To force action by the Governor or the Mayor to remove Deputy Commissioner of Corrections William J. Wright, who was reported to be an inefficient public servant, in their original presentment to Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, the Extraordinary Grand Jury handed up an additional presentment yesterday requesting that its first report be forwarded at once to Gov. Sulzer.

The original presentment was handed up to Justice Goff on Dec. 18, 1912. In this report the jury demanded the immediate removal of Commissioner Wright and recommended the removal of Warden John Fallon of the Tombs. They also recommended radical changes in the conduct of the prison, and said that favoritism had been shown to William J. Cummins of the Carnegie Trust Company, convicted of grand larceny, and ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, convicted of bribery. Since this time no action has been taken to carry out the demands of the presentment, so they handed up an additional one yesterday.

Justice Goff will send copies of the presentment to Mayor Gaynor, Gov. Sulzer, and Commissioner of Corrections Patrick Whitney.

RADIUM BENEFITS CANCER--SOMETIMES

London Institute Reports 81 Cases Out of 539 Cured, 245 Improved.

CURES RODENT ULCERS

Treatment Effective in Cases of Tubercular Glands — Beneficial to Malignant Cancers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The long awaited first report of the Radium Institute of London was published to-day in The British Medical Journal. It indicates that, in addition to a long list of minor non-malignant conditions, such as birthmarks, eczema, and tubercular glands, radium often cures, and almost always improves the health of patients suffering from cancer of the deadly type.

The following summary is given of patients treated: Apparently cured 53, cured 28, improved 245, not improved 70, abandoned treatment 88, dead 55.

The term "apparent cure," the report explains, when used in relation to cases of cancer, means that all traces of the original disease have disappeared, that there are no signs of any recurrence, and that the patients, so far as can be determined, are free from any indication or symptoms of the disease. The "abandoned treatment" group includes those cases in which the patient had to leave London and those who could not afford to travel repeatedly from the country to the institute.

Epitheliomath of the skin quickly responded to treatment. The same variety of cancer, when not attacking the skin, but the tongue, lip, or lining of the mouth, is almost universally disappointing in its ultimate response to radiumtherapy. Temporary improvement is not infrequently seen, but the treatment is practically of no effect in preventing or delaying the appearance of secondary growths in the glands of the neck and elsewhere.

In internal cancers on which operations cannot be performed with any hope of success, the pain is often greatly relieved, the ulceration healed, the bleeding stopped, and the rate of growth checked by the use of radium.

In a few instances cases previously declared inoperable became operable. In inoperable cancers of the stomach radium was tried, not with hope of a cure, but with the object of checking the growth and alleviating the symptoms. Some slight degree of benefit resulted in the case of cancers of the breast.

The rest of the report is on the whole encouraging. Radium, however, should never be used to take the place of an operation when this is possible.

Rodent ulcers are, of all forms of malignant disease, most amenable to the action of radium. Small ulcers on the skin almost invariably yield after one exposure of from one to three hours' duration.

WAIT FOR PARTY AGREEMENT.

Bay State Republicans Discuss Plan for Fusing with Progressives.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 24.—At a largely attended meeting of the Republican State Committee, held here this afternoon, there was a general discussion of the plan for the amalgamation of the Republican and Progressive Parties, as suggested by Mr. Munsey. By a unanimous vote the committee authorized Chairman Hatfield to say:

"The State Committee reiterates its belief that when the two parties are in agreement on the questions of supreme importance we ought at least, as good citizens, to make an effort to act in unison in the interest and for the benefit of all the people of the commonwealth."

GAYNOR AND PASTOR IN ROW.

Osterheld Answers Letter Calling Him "An Evil-Minded Person."

The correspondence between Mayor Gaynor and the Rev. Dudley Olive Osterheld, pastor of the Greenpoint Methodist Episcopal Church, Manhattan Avenue and Noble Street, Greenpoint, was resumed yesterday when the clergyman, in answer to a letter from the Mayor, in which he was termed "an evil-minded person who has in some way gotten into the pulpit," sent a communication to the Mayor.

The clergyman some weeks ago, in a sermon, characterized New York as being "the vestibule of hell." He also sent a letter to the Mayor requesting that the laws be more strictly enforced.

The letter received yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Osterheld reads:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor.

Reverend and Dear Sir—Your letters and sermons are filled with charity. The letter before me is especially so. When you say I have adopted the policy of attending only to outward order and decency you state a deliberate falsehood, and you know it.

I have never said so, and yet you deliberately falsify and then you call yourself a clergyman.

I am glad there are so few clergymen who are capable of doing the like.

You are evidently an evil-minded person who has in some way gotten into the pulpit. I am certain that you congregation will not sustain you. Yours respectfully,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

In reply the Rev. Osterold sent this letter to the Mayor:

New York, Jan. 24, 1913.

Hon. William J. Gaynor, Mayor:

Dear Sir—You say you have stopped over $3,000,000 in saloon graft. Don't you think it fair for me to ask how you calculate this? If you knew it existed and stopped it, who paid it, and to whom was it paid? Why have you not brought the offenders to justice?

I have no hobby that the saloons shall be closed on Sunday. What I do not consider fair is that a policeman can close a men's furnishing store without trouble, while a liquor store can do business.

In a former letter you ask me if I know a way in which drinking in back rooms on Sunday can be stopped without sending a policeman. I think I do, and if you really mean business I shall be only to happy to assist you, and, in an orderly way, tell you what I think.

As for the harsh words you have called me, liar, blatherskite, I forgive you. In regard to the latter part of your letter I would say that my congregation sustains me in every way. Yours respectfully,

DUDLEY O. OSTERHELD.

The clergyman formerly extended an invitation to the Mayor to attend his church, but he has not visited it yet.

DIMPLES AT $26 EACH.

Fashionable London Women Submit to Wounds to Enhance Beauty.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Artificial dimple making is not confined to Paris. Inquiries show that it is being done in London, too. A well-known "beauty specialist" says fashionable women are now having artificial dimples produced on their faces.

The cost of making permanent dimples ranges from $26 to $52. The process usually lasts a fortnight. A small cut is made in the skin. The wound is then bound up and dressed daily until healed. The dimples most in demand are little depressions near the corner of the mouth, which show themselves when the owner smiles. It is also possible to produce dimples lasting for a few hours.

JAIL AN AMERICAN WOMAN.

German Authorities Accuse Mrs. Oesterreich of Attempt to Defraud.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Oesterreich, widow of a German-American citizen of Tacoma, is in jail at Rostock on the charge of defrauding the imperial inheritance tax authorities. Her arrest followed the action of a Rostock lawyer in denouncing his own client after a dispute over his fee.

Mrs. Oesterreich came here last Autumn to spend the Winter with her aunt, Frau Tunn, at Rostock. The latter, who was old and had no other near relatives, told Mrs. Oesterreich that she had decided to make her sole heir to her estate. To avoid possible testamentary complications and also to escape the payment of the inheritance tax Frau Tunn proposed to transfer her property to Mrs. Oesterreich by a deed, effective at her death. A lawyer was engaged and the plan was carried out.

Then came a dispute, the women refusing to pay more than 100 marks ($23.80) for a fee, while the attorney demanded more. He thereupon went to the authorities and filed charges against his clients for attempting to defraud the Government.

Mrs. Oesterreich visited Hamburg and asked the advice of Consul Skinner, who had recommended the lawyer. After hearing the facts he told Mrs. Oesterreich that a prima facie case was clear against her and she had better leave the country. She refused to leave her aunt to face the music alone and returned to Rostock, where she was promptly jailed and is still locked up.

The embassy had been notified, but is unable to do anything, since the proceedings were all regular.

THREE AVIATORS ARE KILLED.

Two Frenchmen Fall Together—American Flier Dies in Trinidad.

ETAMPES, France, Jan. 24.—While Charles Nieuport and his mechanic were making a high flight in a monoplane today their machine doubled up and fell to earth, killing both of them instantly.

Charles Nieuport received his pilot's certificate on Feb. 19 last year.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 24.—Frank Boland, an American aviator, formerly a resident of Rahway, was killed last evening while flying here.

After accomplishing several successful flights in Venezuela he had arranged to give an exhibition flight here to-morrow. The weather conditions being perfect yesterday, he decided to make a trial flight. He ascended and flew for some time, and was returning to the landing place. When he was about half a mile from his tent his biplane suddenly dived and struck the ground with terrific force.

With the death yesterday of Boland at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and the two Frenchmen in France the total aeroplane fatalities reached 226. Six other airmen have been killed since the year began. On Jan. 3 Jacques Le Vasseur, a Frenchman, and his pilot, named Mallot, fell into the sea. La Vasseur was rescued, but his pilot sank. On Jan. 13 Leslie MacDonald and Harry England were drowned by falling into the Thames. On Jan. 19 Lieut. Origone, an Argentine aviator, was killed by a fall near Brandzen. Three days later Lieut. Otto Schlegel was instantly killed at Burg, Prussia, and his pilot, Lieut. A. von Scheele, fatally injured.

FLIES ACROSS THE PYRENEES.

French Aviator Makes a Trip from Pau to Madrid.

PAU, Jan. 24.—M. Bider, a French aviator, left the aerodrome at dawn today in an attempt to fly across the Pyrenees. He ascended to an estimated height of 9,000 feet and then set his course over the peaks, descending at Guadalajara, Spain, after having accomplished the feat. He continued his flight toward Madrid after filling his tanks and arrived in the Spanish capital this afternoon. His time was 5 hours and 35 minutes for the 512 kilometers (about 317 miles).

MEN PERSECUTED BY LITERARY LADIES

Jules Claretie Muses Upon the Writing Maniac Who Falls in Love.

MANY PRIESTS VICTIMIZED

Use of the Revolver to Kill a Rival a "Literary Manifestation" and Love-Lorn Writing Maniacs "a Social Blot."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—That literary women, when they fall in love, are often seized with the persecuting mania is the reflection of Jules Claretie, writing in Le Temps on the arrest at Agen of Mme. Crespy for the alleged murder of the Abbé Chassaing.

"The writing maniac in love," says M. Claretie, "is a social blot. The purely literary woman is one of the most boring persons in the world. The woman who imagines herself superior to others and writes sheet upon sheet of prose or poetry thoroughly deserves the satire which is poured out upon her.

"The woman who wants 'to live her book' is like the woman who wants to live her own life, and in doing so she ruins the lives of others. To stretch out a rival on the floor with a revolver is simply a literary manifestation.

"Some women have a furious hatred for priests who are adamant to their advances. How many abbés are persecuted by women mystics, besides being overwhelmed by love letters? They are often menaced by infatuated women with knife and revolver."

M. Claretie hastens to say that he casts no reflection on women of acknowledged literary talents. Romance, he says, is the very first principle of feminine life, and when a woman does not live the life of romance she writes about it. Some women nowadays find as much consolation in writing a love story as their great-grandmothers found when filling pages of a secret diary.

NO INAUGURAL RECEPTION.

Senate Kills Plan for Proposed Demonstration in Capitol Building.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The plan, tentatively proposed, for a great reception in the Capitol Building, to take the place of the regular inaugural ball, was killed today when the caucus of Democratic Senators unanimously declared that the Capitol was no place for such an entertainment.

The Senators feel that Mr. Wilson would be disappointed if a reception of this sort were tendered him. As the Republicans have decided to follow entirely the initiative of the Democrats in regard to the inauguration the action of the caucus is final.

It was recalled that when the rotunda of the Capitol Building was thrown open to the public while President McKinley's body was lying in state there the crush at the entrance became so great that a panic was started and many people were injured. On account of this and other objections there appears to be a very general feeling of relief on the part of those officially and locally interested in the inauguration that the public reception idea has been abandoned.

After the Senate caucus Senator Martine of New Jersey, who had prepared the resolution to provide for the use of the Capitol Building for a public reception on inauguration day, announced that it would not be presented.

ACTRESS SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Mary Hall Says W. R. Antisdel Misled Her Into an Illegal Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24.—Charging that she was married to William R. Antisdel under false pretenses, Mary Hall, leading woman at the Duquesne Stock Company, went into court to-day with Attorney Rody P. Marshall and asked for annulment of the marriage. Antisdel, formerly manager of the Duquesne company, was married two weeks ago to Miss Meta Schneider, daughter of the late Arnold Schneider, Belgian Consul here.

Miss Hall relates that she was married to Mr. Antisdel in March, 1909, in Farmington, Utah, by a justice of the peace. She had been married previously and had obtained a limited divorce.

"I felt assured upon Mr. Antisdel's representation that we were legally united," she said, "and so believed until recently when, on account of his continued cruelty and indignity, I consulted an attorney and discovered that he had deceived me and that my marriage to him was not a legal one. I left him immediately."

NO GRAND TRUNK FRICTION.

Harmony Prevails Among Directors, Says Smithers—Why Fitzhugh Quit.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Alfred Smithers, Chairman of the English Board of Directors of the Grand Trunk Railway, gave THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day the following statement regarding reports of differences between the Directors:

"Mr. Chamberlin has repeatedly stated why the New England work was stopped at the commencement of the Winter, and will give every information. It is absolutely untrue that there have been any differences on the London board on any subject. On the contrary, perfect harmony has always, and does now, prevail.

"I have not the slightest idea what the refusal of funds for the Pacific-Halifax Line can possibly mean. As to having spent $11,000,000 on the New England Line, the statement is wildly absurd, as such an amount greatly exceeds the estimate for the line when completed."

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—In a statement issued to-day, E. H. Fitzhugh says he resigned the Presidency of the Central Vermont Railroad because he was not in accord with the Grand Trunk Railway Company concerning the Central Vermont and Southern New England companies. The Grand Trunk is a majority stockholder of the Central Vermont road.

It is expected that the policy to which Mr. Fitzhugh refers will be the principal subject for discussion when the New England Governors meet in conference on the problem of transportation to-morrow. Added interest to the meeting has been given by the speech of Gov. Baldwin at South Manchester, Conn., last night, when he said that there was "too much muckraking" regarding President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

The solution of the transportation problem is to be found, in the opinion of Gov. Foss, in the creation of a transportation commission made up of the Chairmen of the several State commissions, and State representation on railroad directorates.

THE IMPERATOR DELAYED.

Big New Liner Not Likely to Start Maiden Voyage Till June.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—It is understood that the Hamburg-American Company has been obliged to postpone the maiden voyage of the Imperator. Some time ago it was announced that the vessel would leave Hamburg on May 7. This was confirmed by the official sailing list, according to which the Imperator was to leave Southampton on May 8, but the name of the vessel does not appear in the new list, published today, although the steamer's sailings for New York are given up to July. The company, it is stated, hopes the vessel will be able to leave Hamburg in June.

HOTEL McALPIN

On December 28th last the Hotel McAlpin, at 34th Street and Broadway, was turned over to the Owners, having taken 14 months to build.

November 1st, 1911, we erected the first piece of steel at grade, and between that date and May 1st, 1912, eleven million brick and twenty-four million pounds of steel were erected into place.

And all this by December 28th last, that a man might have a bed or a meal or a highball or what else his heart desires, conveniently, expeditiously and economically, in the biggest hotel in the world.

But the Hotel McAlpin, designed by F. M. Andrews & Co. of this city, is not only the biggest hotel in the world, it is also one of the finest, both as to the architectural beauty of its design, and the sumptuosity of its appointments.

And it means much to us that an organization such as ours, identified with the greatest commercial buildings of this country, should of recent years so frequently be selected to construct buildings in which the element of beauty plays so conspicuous a part.

To-day the Hotel McAlpin has been in operation only a matter of four weeks, yet its three immense restaurants are literally turning people away and its 1400 rooms are taxed to capacity, demonstrating once more this palpable fact:

ASQUITH MAY DROP THE SUFFRAGE BILL

Speaker's Ruling on Amendments to Extend the Ballot to Women Causes a Serious Crisis.

SUFFRAGISTS GETTING ANGRY

They Call for a New Bill Instantly—Debate in Commons Takes on a Jocular Vein.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Sir Edward Grey's amendment to the Franchise Reform bill, which would extend Parliamentary suffrage to women, was moved in the House of Commons to-day by the Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, Unionist, and a lively debate followed.

It seems doubtful to-night, however, whether the House will be called upon to record its vote on the matter, for the general opinion is that the Government will find that the only way out of the present muddle is to drop the Franchise bill altogether. A very serious Parliamentary situation has been created by the belated ruling of the Speaker yesterday that the proposed woman suffrage amendments would so change the measure as to make it virtually a new bill.

Pending action on the Grey amendment which, according to present arrangements, is to be voted on Monday, the militant suffragettes have been abstaining from any action which might inconvenience pro-suffrage members of Parliament. If, as now seems likely, the Franchise bill is dropped entirely and the feminist hopes of Parliamentary recognition of their claims are again disappointed, militant tactics will probably be renewed and possibly carried to an extreme hitherto unreached in the history of the suffrage movement.

Speakers Jest Over Bill.

The debate to-day on the Grey amendment was almost jocular in character.

Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, made a speech which Unionist critics suggested meant his eventual resignation from the Ministry in case the amendment was carried. This is regardless of the very definite statements that all the members of the Government had agreed to accept the decision of the House on the bill, and that there would be no resignations.

Harcourt, in fact, handled the subject almost playfully.

"Why didn't the Foreign Minister practice what he preached?" he asked. "Why did he not have women Ambassadors and women clerks at the Foreign Office? They would certainly add to the gayety of nations."

Lord Hugh Cecil, who followed Harcourt, suggested that the Secretary's opposition to woman suffrage arose from his having been spanked by some indignant female.

Another noteworthy contribution to the debate came from Neil Primrose, a son of Lord Rosebery, who said that he had been warned that he ought not to speak on the subject because he did not know one end of a baby from another. Nevertheless he opposed the Grey amendment.

Harcourt Incensed by Incendiary Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—During his speech in Commons to-day on the woman suffrage amendment, Lewis Harcourt, whose house at Nuncham Park was once endangered by suffragettes, who sought to burn it, said:

"The adoption of methods of violence is an indication of the type of mental balance we may expect from women if they got the vote."

He then assailed his pro-suffrage colleagues in the Cabinet, Sir Edward Grey and David Lloyd-George, asserting that they were trying to use the Parliament act to pass a proposal, which had never been before the Electors and would gravely imperial the stability of an admirable amendment to the British Constitution. He added:

"I am against any form of Parliamentary suffrage for women on the ground that it is bad for the State and bad for the women themselves."

Mr. Harcourt held that, if women were to be enfranchised, the policy of adult suffrage would be the only one consistent with political honesty and public justice. He continued:

"Why does the Chancellor of the Exchequer desire to exclude 4,000,000 working women? Surely not because they are mainly domestic servants. The Chancellor of the Exchequer does not fear to take their pence for insurance. Does he fear to take their opinion?"

That the ruling of the Speaker on the Franchise bill has "finally exploded the Prime Minister's pledge to women" is stated in a manifesto issued to-day by the Women's Social and Political Union.

The union calls upon the Government to withdraw the bill and reintroduce it in a form, giving votes to women equally with men. It says that it is essential that Sir Edward Grey and David Lloyd-George should resign, unless their colleagues in the Cabinet agreed to make woman suffrage a Government measure.

The manifesto adds that the Government must have known long ago the turn events would take and can only clear itself from dishonor by adopting the course suggested.

RECOUNT FOR SENATOR.

Contest in 19th District Between Democrat and Progressive.

The fifty thousand or so ballots cast at the last election in the Nineteenth Senatorial District will be recounted to-day to determine whether Henry Salant of the Progressive Party or his Democratic opponent, George W. Simpson, was elected. Salant, who is now sitting from that district, which is composed of the Twenty-first, Twenty-third, and Thirty-first Assembly Districts, is holding his seat on a certificate granted by the County Board of Canvassers, who gave him a plurality of 36 votes.

The ballots will be recounted by the State Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections at the rooms of the Board of Elections, 107 West Forty-first Street, the decision to recount them having been made yesterday after the committee, composed of Senators Duhamel, Chairman, and Carswell, Wende, Pollock, and Palmer had heard arguments by J. F. Dooling, counsel for Simpson, and William H. Chadbourne, representing Salant. Dooling contends that the returns from the Thirty-first Assembly District were not properly counted.

ALFRED DOUGLAS BANKRUPT.

Son of Marquis of Queensberry Can't and Won't Pay Money Lender $870.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Lord Alfred Douglas was to-day adjudged bankrupt on the petition of a money lender, who was a creditor for £174, ($870.)

Lord Alfred, in a letter to the receiver, stated that his debts were less than £500, ($2,500.) Part of this was due to tradesmen whose claims would be discharged by relatives. As for the money lenders, he said he did not intend to pay them.

PRINCETON ENGINEERS DINE.

President John Grier Hibben with Them at the Princeton Club.

The second annual dinner of the Princeton Engineering Association was held last night at the Princeton Club. William P. Field, President of the Association, presided. Grace was asked by the Rev. Frederick Jackson, a graduate of the Engineering Department of Princeton.

The speakers included President John Grier Hibben of Princeton, Class of '82; J. Vipond Davies, Chief Engineer of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, and Arthur C. Jackson, President of the Harvard Engineering Society.

Among those present were: Frank Ray Howe, Eugene Y. Allen, Harry G. Treadwell, Theo. P. Artaud, Edward D. Townsend, S. Wood McClave, William M. Whitney, Prof. Frederick N. Wilson, Frank F. Davis, Charles L. House, C. E. Knickerbocker, Charles L. Holt, James E. Hayes, Jr., Prof. H. S. S. Smith, Prof. Malcolm MacLaren, and Frank N. Spencer.

Wilbur C. Fisk, '90, is Vice President and Charles H. Higgins, Secretary-Treasurer of the Association.

AIDS FAR WESTERN COLLEGE.

General Educational Board Includes State of Washington in Benefits.

The General Educational Board yesterday gave financial asistance to three colleges aggregating $225,000. The three institutions which received conditional appropriations were: Allegheny College of Meadville, Penn., $50,000 toward a total of $200,000; Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill., $50,000 toward $400,000, and Whitman College of Walla Walla, Wash., $125,000 toward $500,000.

In giving to Whitman College the board went further West than ever before.

The board held its annual meeting at 17 Battery place. The following officers were elected for the year 1913: Frederick T. Gates, Chairman; Wallace Buttrick, Secretary; E. C. Sage, Assistant Secretary; Abraham Flexner, Assistant Secretary, and L. G. Myers, Treasurer.

STEAMSHIP MEN AT WAR.

Each Accuses Other of Rate Cutting Before House Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—President A. H. Bull of the Bull Steamship Lines testified before the House Committee on Merchant Marine last week that his lines had practically been driven out of the Porto Rican trade by a system of rate-cutting practiced by the San Domingo Line. To-day Vice President Franklin D. Mooney of the San Domingo Line, of which he is also the General Manager, told the committee that it was Mr. Bull's line that had started the rate-cutting.

In his testimony Mr. Mooney said that the San Domingo Line was operated at a loss on account of its war with the Bull Company, which, he said, had cut rates in 1911. After ignoring this competition for a while the San Domingo Company found it necessary to meet it. As a result of this rate war rates had dropped to an unremunerative basis and still remain unremunerative.

Mr. Mooney said that Mr. Bull had tried to effect a rate agreement with the San Domingo lines on Nov. 11.

"I told Mr. Bull that, in my opinion, his proposal was in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust law, as it contemplated restraint of trade. Mr. Bull said he had been advised by counsel that it was not, but later he told me that he had found that my statement was true, and he then suggested a gentleman's agreement."

The committee also heard testimony from Chester V. Kellogg, General Freight Agent of the Munson Line, to the effect that steamship companies doing business between Gulf ports and Cuba have an arrangement to "keep ourselves from destroying each other."

Mr. Kellogg insisted that although rates were discussed each line fixed its rates independently.

"If you fix the rates independently what is the utility of the conference?" insisted Representative Alexander.

"The purpose is to talk over what would be legitimate at fair rates."

FEARS GOLD DEARTH MENACES EUROPE

Greater Supply Needed to Meet Trade Increases, Says Sir Edward Holden.

TOO MUCH FLOWS TO INDIA

That Country Has Taken £67,000,000 the Last Few Years—Urges a New Inquiry.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Sir Edward Holden, presiding at a meeting of the London City and Midland Bank, to-day, gave an exhaustive résumé of the influences which had recently operated upon international money centres. After reviewing the state of trade and the position of credit and money in Germany, France, Austria, United States, Canada, and England, Sir Edward remarked that the total liabilities of the Bank of England on Jan. 8, 1912, amounted to £95,000,000, with a gold reserve, to protect those liabilities, of about £34,500,000, or about 36 per cent. The Bank's liabilities on Jan. 1 were £96,000,000, and the gold in hand was £31,000,000, or about 32½ per cent. The amount of gold in the Bank of England and in the provinces, returnable to the Bank, at the beginning of 1912, was about £41,500,000, whereas at the beginning of the current year the amount was only £35,000,000, that is, Great Britain had £6,000,000 less with which to commence the year. The liabilities of the countries he had reviewed had increased in a greater ratio.

"The money markets of the world hang together," he continued. "We watch the Continent and America, and they watch us. The money markets of the Continent were in very straitened circumstances in 1912. Just as we saw during the American crisis of 1907 gold being withdrawn from the banks and hoarded in safe deposit vaults, so have we seen in Germany, France, and Austria hoarding going on in many directions. During the greater part of 1912 the discount rate in London was higher by about one-half of 1 per cent. than during 1911, and the bank rate was 5 per cent. from October last to the present time, as against 4 per cent. during the same period of 1911.

"Why had Great Britain and the countries mentioned not been able to obtain and retain more gold? The answer is, Because it had been taken by India, and if these other countries continue in future to increase their trade without being able to increase their gold, then a crisis similar to or greater than that which arose in America in 1907 will assuredly take place, which will cause loans to be called in, credits to be contracted, and great losses will ensue.

"Being face to face with these conditions, the Indian question is one which ought to be thoroughly discussed, for during the last two and three-quarter years India has taken no less than sixty-seven millions sterling in gold in bars and sovereigns, and little of it has been returned.

"We have had before us the difficult problem of how gold was to be made to flow out from India. While money ruled for a certain period of the year up to 8 per cent. in India, we could not expect the bank rate in London to be effective in attracting gold from India in the same way as from other countries."

Sir Edward hoped that the Secretary of State for India might be induced to consider seriously the question of appointing without delay a fresh commission, not only in the interests of Great Britain, but also in the interests of all those countries which are now unable to obtain gold to meet their increasing trade, increasing liabilities, and increasing credit. There were serious dangers ahead, he said, and it had become a pressing necessity to provide protection against them.

PLAN BAPTIST BUILDING.

$450,000 Is Promised of a Fund of $750,000 Needed.

Baptists in New York are discussing plans for a $750,000 headquarters which shall serve the triple purpose of a local centre of work, a headquarters for Baptists in the Metropolitan district, and a National home for the Baptist missionary societies. Some $450,000 is already in sight, and from most of those interested have come expressions of confidence that nothing would prevent the raising of $300,000 more to insure the provision of the Baptist denomination of headquarters comparable with the National establishment owned by the Presbyterians at Fifth Avenue and Twentieth Street, the Fourth Avenue headquarters owned by the Episcopalians, and the Fifth Avenue home of the Methodists, who were the first to take possession of National headquarters in this city.

Next Monday Frank Dickinson, a prominent Baptist layman, and the first to hold the Presidency of the Baptist Union, will give a luncheon at the Union League Club as a gathering time and place for further discussion of the ways and means of raising the needed $300,000.

The project takes its origin in an unusual and liberal offer from the Collegiate Baptist Church of the Covenant, one of New York's wealthy Baptist congregations. The offer was made to the Metropolitan Baptist Union, which represents not only this city, but Long Island and New Jersey.

The offer includes the turning over to the Metropolitan Union or to such legal body as might be formed to receive it, the Collegiate congregation's site at Thirty-third Street and Eighth Avenue, valued at $150,000, and a building worth $300,000 which it owns on Bleecker Street.

The conditions attached to the offer are the raising of $300,000 more, the setting aside of $150,000 of it as endowment, and the assuring to the Collegiate congregation of the use of the headquarters auditorium and certain classrooms and parlors. It is understood that the offer is acceptable, conditions and all.

One problem that has arisen immediately involves the site. Shall the Thirty-third Street site be used or shall it be sold? Its nearness to the Pennsylvania station enhances its market value, but also enhances its value for headquarters, and, furthermore, the Collegiate congregation is loath to have the new building too far away from the present church.

WORKMAN RECOVERS $4,500.

Lost an Eye When Shaken from a Hoisted Stone in Blocked Street.

For the loss of an eye and other injuries sustained last June while working on stone construction in West 156th Street, Edward Blatz obtained a verdict of $4,500 in the Supreme Court before Justice Dugro yesterday. He attributed his injuries to the unlawful blocking of the street.

The defandants were Joseph W. Wilson and John Wilson, stone cutters. They had hoisted a large stone to its place. The derrick in use was supported by ropes stretched all the way across the street. Blatz stood on the huge stone to which the rope was still tied. A wagon struck the guy rope and this caused Blatz to lose his balance and fall.

Through his counsel, Alfred & Charles Steckler, Blatz contended that the defendants were guilty of a nuisance in obstructing the highway without a right.

CHINA HARD PRESSED BY NEW LOAN TERMS

Government at Edge of a Precipice, Says a Cabinet Officer—To Yield Means Revolution.

FRANCE IS VERY INSISTENT

Other Powers Demand That China Pay Its Debts for Warships and War Material, While Others Oppose.

PEKING, Jan. 24.—The bankers, interested in the loan of $125,000,000 to China have informed their Peking representatives to "O. K." the loan, if the Ministers in Peking of the six powers, of which the loaning bankers are Nationals, are satisfied with the conditions of the contract.

The Ministers, however, are by no means unanimous in this respect. The French Minister in particular insists upon drastic conditions governing the loan, including the insertion of definite undertakings for the appointment of financial advisers by China and the arrangement of minute details in connection with the financial reorganization and supervision of the country. Other Ministers demand payment from the loan of China's debts for warships, military materials, &c., while others, who are not financially interested, object to this procedure on the ground that the war materials may be used against their countries.

Chinese officials, who were interviewed to-day with regard to the loan, declared that the Government, having accepted the conditions of the bankers, is now on the brink of a precipice over which another push will precipitate it.

SUES CRISPS FOR COMMISSION.

Englishman Asserts He Made the Loan Agreement.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A suit for a commission on the Crisp loan to China came up to-day in the Chancery Division. The plaintiff was Edward Frank Birchall and the defendants were Crisp & Co. and Abraham Wendell Jackson.

Birchall, who is an Englishman, long resident in China, stated that he originally made the arrangement with the Chinese Government for the issue of a $50,000,000 loan. By an agreement, dated July 12 last, it was arranged that a commission of half of 1 per cent. on the total loan should be paid by Jackson to the plaintiff within a month after the final contract was executed. The plaintiff received $3,500 as his share of the $77,000 payable to Jackson for his commission. There was still a total commission owing of $151,000, of which the plaintiff was entitled to five-elevenths. The counsel for Crisp & Co. said that the firm had a counter-claim against Jackson, and until it was determined no judgment was possible. An amount to cover the total claims for commission would be set aside by the defendants.

On that understanding the Judge refused to grant an injunction or order the payment of the amount into court.

Nothing new to regular Macy customers in this advertisement—

BUT

Very important money-saving news to those who are accustomed to buy elsewhere on credit.

MACY'S advertisements state that the "Regular Macy Saving" amounts to 10% on new fiction—and every Macy customer knows that it is so. Macy's prices on new fiction are 10% less than anywhere else in New York..

It has been customary for Macy's to advertise that the "Regular Macy Saving" averages from 15% to 25% on standard sets, fine library editions, etc. Customers know that this is as true to-day as it has been for over fifty years.

But it has been customary for Macy's to advertise that the "Regular Macy Saving" on clothes for men, women and children averages 15%, occasionally running up to 25%. Lately we have discovered that this is not strictly the case. Repeatedly we have seen instances where Macy's prices were one-half and less than half of what was charged elsewhere for Women's Suits and Men's Suits and Overcoats of ordinary good quality.

As an example, we recently bought a Man's Overcoat, advertised by a large reputable house as "$60.00 value, special at $24.00." Macy's regular price for the identical coat in regular stock is and has been $22.50.

You have always saved money by buying at Macy's.

You save more than ever these days, when the extension of credit, the increase of free entertainments, trading stamps, etc., have added to the cost of doing business, and therefore made higher prices necessary in practically every large New York Store—except Macy's.

YOU can get whatever you want at Macy's. You pay less than elsewhere. You get courteous service, prompt delivery, and, best of all, a 55-year-old policy that is founded upon and culminates in "Money back if you are not satisfied." That is why following the crowd means buying at Macy's.

Interesting News TODAY

From the GIMBEL Clothing Store for Men

The march past of January days continues, inventory books, small lots must go.

Small, that is, from the viewpoint of a great store with large stocks. But for the man who needs a new Suit or Overcoat rich selection indeed. And such price reductions on the finest type of ready-to-wear Clothing.

Men's Suits and Overcoats $17.50, Were $25 to $35

Excellent Winter styles, from our regular lines, with good variety and all sizes in each group.

Our Finest Winter Suits And Overcoats Much Reduced

These are the highest grades of Clothing in our stock, and include all our fine London Overcoats, in typically English styles and materials. Reductions run as high as half.

All Fur and Fur-lined Overcoats Less 20 Per Cent.

This flat price-reduction of one-fifth applies on every man's Fur Coat remaining in our stock, from Chauffeurs' Coats at $20 from $25, to superb Fur-lined Coats at $280 from $350.

Men's Dress Waistcoats At $1.85, Usually $3.50 to $5

Another clearance—partially the remainder of a special purchase, partially broken lines from our own stock.

A variety of styles, suitable to wear with dinner coats or full evening dress. Some a little soiled from handling. All sizes, from 33 to 46, in one style or another, at $1.85 each.

Good Price-Reductions On These Men's HATS

Breaks in the size-ranges have developed, and while the actual value of the Hat that fits you is still 100 per cent., the collection, as a whole, has depreciated, from our point of view. Hence:

English Derbies at $1.95 Each, that were $3.

Australian Velour Hats at $4; that were $5 and $6.

"Royal" Soft Hats from Paris; also American Soft Hats at $1.95 each, that were $3.

Men's Fancy Madras Shirts At a Short Price---$1.25

The reason for the short price is out of the ordinary—a maker's short ends of the fine madras which he has been putting into his $2 and $2.50 shirts of Spring style.

We have 2500 of these Shirts and they make a bully collection. All bear the Gimbel label, which signifies that they were made our way; and there is a wealth of fine patterns, and a variety of colorings wide enough to suit any man.

Plaited and plain bosoms, sizes 14 to 17.

Today, $1.25 each, instead of $2 and $2.50.

Men's $5 Shoes at $3.75

Good styles, Blucher, straight lace and button, in a variety of leathers.

Men's $3.95 Shoes at $2.85

Shoes that we consider excellent at their full prices, in vici kid, gun-metal calf, patent leather and tan Russia calf button; tan oil grain lace.

Broken sizes in all of these, of course, but good picking at each price.

DR. KUNITZER PLEADS FOR A NEW HEARING

Sydenham Hospital Head Says He Can Disprove the Charges Made in the Ewald Case.

DENOUNCES HIS ACCUSERS

Sends Pamphlet to County Medical Society Members, Who Must Vote Again on Expulsion.

Every member of the New York County Medical Society received a pamphlet yesterday from Dr. Robert Kunitzer, the Medical Director of Sydenham Hospital, who, in December, 1910, was expelled from that society. This pamphlet, which is reinforced by several affidavits and statements, is an appeal for a new hearing, and is sent out at this time because on Monday night the society will meet at the Academy of Medicine and "vote anew" on the question of whether it should accept the verdict of its Comitia Minora and expel Dr. Kunitzer.

The charges preferred against the physician accused him of complicity in the falsification of the hospital medical records to bear out Dr. Louis A. Ewald's boasts of having performed a certain rare and dangerous operation a startling number of times both at Sydenham and at the German Hospital. From the moment that he was found guilty and expelled, Dr. Kunitzer has fought stubbornly. All his appeals to the courts failed him, but the State Medical Society finally ordered, not a new hearing, but a new vote on the ground that the vote "was not properly counted and announced." When the society met last Spring to take the new vote, it was restrained by a temporary injunction on the doctor's plea that he had resigned and that it had no right to expel him. This injunction failed later and the vote will be taken Monday.

Now, on the eve of this long-delayed vote Dr. Kunitzer appeals to the profession in this pamphlet, much of which is given over to a denunciation of Egon Egghard, Superintendent of Sydenham at the time of the trouble, a nephew of Dr. Kunitzer, and the man who preferred the charges before the medical society. He makes a very serious charge against Egghard, and further introduces for the purpose of discrediting him, a statement purporting to come from Dr. William B. Coffey, Vice President of St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco, where Egghard worked after his departure from New York. He further presents this alibi:

Dr. Kunitzer's Alibi.

"After the committee found me guilty I tried to obtain specifications from the County Medical Society as to when these offenses that I was accused of took place, but met only with refusals. These dates I was only enabled to ascertain in an indirect manner. Afterward I learned that it was on or about Sept. 25, 1909, that I was charged with the knowledge of the falsification of the records of the Sydenham Hospital.

"Months before that time and for three weeks thereafter I was not in the United States, but was in Europe with Isaac Guggenheim of New York."

Among those familiar with the details of the Kunitzer case in its long process through the County Medical Society annals, it was said yesterday, however, that the falsifications complained of were made, some of them in October, and some in the early part of 1910. But in his pamphlet Dr. Kunitzer makes much of this point. He says:

"If I could bring to bear no more forcible evidence, the mere fact that I, in company with Isaac Guggenheim, who is willing to appear and testify to that fact, was 4,000 miles away at the time of the changing of the records by Egghard, this should be sufficient to convince every right-thinking colleague that I had no participation in the offense with which I am charged, but I make the assertion that I can prove beyond any question of doubt that every statement made in the charges by Egghard and his ilk against me is false, slanderous, and perjurous, and that furthermore the Board of Censors, without any intention on their part, has been deceived and been made victims of his guile and treachery.

"Disregarding the testimony given by me and by my witnesses, do you thing I ought to be expelled on this kind of evidence? Would you believe Egghard? Would you believe his witnesses, the Seeger brothers and the Breslin girl, and the rest of them, all of whom were so closely associated with Egghard—all discharged by me from the hospital.

Midnight Changes in Records.

"Bear in mind that Egghard admits the midnight changes in the records. Bear in mind the animus which caused Egghard to prefer the charges against me—a revenge for my discharging him. How can I, or how could you, meet such an attack? You could only say, 'he lies.'

"Under these circumstances will you vote for my expulsion? Can you in conscience say that you are satisfied that I was a party to the fraud? What benefit was it to me? What interest had I in the controversy between Ewald and the society? My relations with Ewald were not even friendly.

"All I ask is a fair deal. I ask you not to vote in favor of the resolution unless you are convinced in your own minds concerning the facts, that I am culpable. If I have satisfied you with this presentment that I am innocent, I ask you to vote against the resolution. If you are still not convinced either way, or in doubt, I ask you to remain silent and to refuse to vote.

"I submit all these facts to your earnest consideration in the name of justice, truth, and honor."

The vote of expulsion recorded at that lively meeting of the medical society in Christmas week, 1910, was 392 to 38. Dr. Kunitzer's protest against this was based on his insistence that 600 were present, so that the required three-fourths had not voted against him.

Line Seeks to Lease City Structure in South Brooklyn.

On behalf of the Hamburg-American Line Julius P. Meyer, the Assistant General Manager, made an application to Dock Commissioner Tomkins yesterday for a lease of the new city pier at the foot of Thirty-third Street, South Brooklyn, for twenty years at a rental of $75,000 a year, the city to bear the cost of fitting the pier with waiting rooms, electrical apparatus for baggage and railroad tracks. Mr. Meyer said that it would be used as a relief pier for those in Hoboken for their smaller passenger and cargo steamships.

Mr. Tomkins said that he would send the application with his recommendation to the Sinking Fund of the Board of Estimate.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 24.—The conference of Progressive party leaders, representing Michigan, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota, opened here to-day.

Ex-Senator Beveridge criticized the Minnesota laws which prevented recognition of the Progressive party in this State and said that if the Legislature now in session failed to amend the statutes, every Progressive should take the stump in an effort to return to private life "the men who make these laws."

Col. Roosevelt in a telegram expressed regret at not being able to attend the meeting, and emphasized what he considered the necessity of the Progressive party remaining intact—a party by itself. He said that the Democratic tariff policy was as dangerous as the Payne-Aldrich measure.

WILSON HERE OVER NIGHT.

A Day of Shopping with Mrs. Wilson and an Evening at the Theatre.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson played hookey yesterday. He wanted to do two things—see his dentist and go to the theatre—and his wife wanted him to do a third—go shopping. So he settled the matter by making a day of it and doing all three. He did one of them in Philadelphia and two in New York.

As usual, he did not tell anybody of his intentions, and aside from the handful of newspaper men and Secret Service men who accompany him on all his journeyings no one knew that he was not going to the State House at Trenton, according to his custom. Instead, he, with his daughter Eleanor and the little retinue referred to, boarded a train at Princeton at 8:22 yesterday morning and went to Philadelphia.

From the Broad Street Station he went to the Professional Building in Chestnut Street, just above Eighteenth, where Dr. George W. Keusel worked on his teeth for two hours. Altogether the Governor was in Philadelphia about two hours and a half, during which time not a soul on the streets or in the railroad station recognized their next President. When he got aboard the train for New York some passengers—probably New Yorkers—recognized him and called each other's attention to him, but without any attempt to intrude on his privacy.

He left Philadelphia at noon and arrived in New York at 2 P. M. At the terminal he was met by an automobile belonging to Col. E. M. House of 145 East Thirty-fifth Street, an old friend, with whom he usually stops when in this city, and was taken to Col House's apartments.

He was joined by Mrs. Wilson, with whom he went shopping in performance of an ancient promise to her, the fulfillment of which had been long delayed by the pressure of public business. At several of the stores he was recognized, and at one of them the young women employes came crowding around, and the Governor and his wife had to hold a sort of impromptu reception on the spot.

In the evening the Governor and Col. House went to the Little Theatre to see "Rutherford and Son." The Governor seemed intensely interested in the sombre play, concerning which some one remarked that it furnished a fitting end to a day begun with the dentist, but he seldom joined in the applause. He and Col. House remained in their seats between the acts, but the Governor's presence was quite generally known in the audience, though there was no demonstration.

He spent last night at Col. House's. His plans for to-day include a visit to some friends in near-by towns.

WILLCOX MAY STAY AFTER TERM IS UP

Sulzer Tells Merchants' Association He Won't Name Successor Until End of Next Week.

SENATE MUST APPROVE HIM

Governor Wants Local Authorities to Settle Subway Tangle—Interests Working Hard.

Gov. Sulzer sent a telegram through his secretary to the Merchants' Association of this city yesterday, saying that if that organization wished to send a delegation to see him in regard to the subway question the delegates need not appear in Albany until the end of next week. In the message he said he was anxious to leave the matter to those in charge of it in this city and professed his devotion to home rule.

This was taken to mean that Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission would hold over beyond the expiration of his term on Feb. 1, as the Senate must approve his successor after the Governor has appointed him. It was not thought likely that if the name of the new chairman was sent to the Senate on Friday or Saturday it could be passed upon before the week after next. This would keep the membership of the Public Service Commission unchanged for a short time longer, and it seemed yesterday as though but a short time was needed to get the contracts through.

It was said yesterday that the final agreement of the city with the companies could be achieved in forty-eight hours, but those actively connected with the conference on the situation only smiled wearily when they were asked if this was true. Chairman Willcox repeated his declaration that he and the other members of the commission would not be hurried.

Commission Won't Be Hurried.

"The commission," he said, "is proceeding, in strict conformity with the law, to carry out the negotiations after the manner that the statute provides. It will not be stampeded by any one or anything into giving up any point which they consider should be settled in the city's favor. The Commissioners are working very hard, it is true, but in this they are simply doing what they have been doing for months past."

Borough President McAneny was also inclined to doubt the possibility of closing up the matter in the next day or two. In addition to the main contracts with the Interborough and the B. R. T., there were, he pointed out, the supplementary contracts concerning the extensions and the third tracking of the elevated lines to be revised and the contract for the joint operation of the Queens lines to be drawn up between the Interborough and the B. R. T. Several pages of the original contracts needed redrafting and the whole business was so delicate, and contained so much detail that even if the companies and the city came to an agreement it would take time to put the papers in shape, he asserted.

Mayor Gaynor received yesterday morning Francis Lynde Stetson, of counsel to J. P. Morgan & Co., and Ex-Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad. He discussed with them the general situation. Later he saw Corporation Counsel Watson, Borough President McAneny and Controller Prendergast and went over with them some of the points at issue. The lawyers on either side were busy all day drafting the amendments agreed to, and in the evening J. P. Morgan, Jr., Francis Lynde Stetson, Mr. McAneny, Mr. Prendergast, and Mr. Shonts met Chairman Willcox at the Home Club in East Forty-fifth Street to go over the documents.

The Merchants' Association will send a delegation representing some of the most important commercial bodies in the city to Albany next Friday to call on the Governor in regard to the subway situation. This was decided upon at a meeting in the association's rooms in Lafayette Street yesterday after the receipt of a telegram from Chester C. Platt, Secretary to Gov. Sulzer, which read:

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24, 1913.
Henry R. Towne, President of the Merchants' Association, New York:

In reply to your telegram the Governor directs me to say that of course he will be glad to see your members at any time convenient to themselves. However, there is nothing before the Governor at the present time relating to the subways of New York City upon which he can act. He is so much in favor of home rule that he does not want to interfere in local matters in New York City unless it is absolutely necessary for the general welfare. He hopes you will be able to use your good offices and influence with the Public Service Commissioners to get for the taxpayers what the taxpayers want and are entitled to. If you want to see the Governor regarding the successor of Mr. Willcox, he thinks it advisable for you to appoint a committee, and he will be glad to take the matter up with the committee at the Executive Chamber the latter part of next week, or at any other time convenient to your committee. He thinks it unnecessary to put your members to the expense of coming to Albany at the present time when there is nothing he can do at this end of the line. We think the matter is up to the Public Service Commissioners to make good, and every effort of the taxpayers should be exerted in that direction.

CHESTER PLATT,
Secretary to the Governor.

The delegation of the Merchants' Association will seek to impress upon the Governor, it is said, the importance of keeping the personnel of the Public Service Commission unaltered until the contracts have been signed. It was made clear at the meeting yesterday that this attitude was not dictated by a desire to serve Chairman Willcox's personal or political interests. The association, it was asserted, regarded his retention at the present moment as important because if he was replaced the proposed settlement might be overturned. The association had heard that when the Brooklyn delegation saw the Governor last week he seemed to have in mind the possibility of constructing new subways by popular subscription, but he then asserted that he had not yet yet made up his mind as to the man he should nominate as head of the Commission.

Attacks President Mitchel.

In the course of the association's meeting, Allan Robinson of the Allied Real Estate Interests made an attack on President Mitchel.

"The gentleman," he said, "who has been most active in opposing these contracts has been three years in office, and I have yet to find that he has made one constructive suggestion for the benefit of the city. He is a genius in his way as a critic, but it is a destructive genius and not a constructive genius, and I think the time has come when the actions of a man who comes forward at this late date and attempts to upset the situation which is so important to us should be brought before the association."

The meeting adopted resolutions urging the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate to complete the contracts as soon as possible, and asserting that any change in the personnel of the commission at this time would be inexpedient and dangerous to the public welfare. Those present at the meeting, over which E. H. Outerbridge presided, were:

Retail Dry Goods Association—Isaac Gimbel, Percy Straus, S. G. Rosenbaum, E. W. Bloomingdale, Leslie Graff.
Central Mercantile Association—Clarkson Cowl, B. J. Greenhut, John R. Butler.

Fifth Avenue Association—Walter Stabler.

Delegations to Go to Albany.

The Manufacturers' Association of Brooklyn will send a delegation to Albany probably on Monday, and the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association of the City of New York adopted a resolution yesterday asking the Governor not to make any change in the commission at present. As some accusations have been made that the delay in the settlement of the subway question has been due to Chairman Willcox, Commissioner Maltbie, who is by no means in accord with him on his general policy, gave out yesterday this statement:

While I disagree with Chairman Willcox as to the advisability of these contracts, I have great respect for his opinions and the high character of his motives. Ever since the Board of Estimate adopted a resolution more than a year and a half ago approving a subway policy laid down in a joint report of the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate, Chairman Willcox has constantly been willing to give it effect, and it was only upon the request of certain members of the Board of estimate that any part of it was held in abeyance pending conferences with the company officials. I know of no one who has been more anxious to proceed than Chairman Willcox, but I cannot believe that he or the majority of the Commission intends to ignore the rights of the minority.

Since the discussion as to the financial results to the city of the dual system has been revived, the commission gave out yesterday an estimate made by E. G. Connette, now President of the International Railroad Company at Buffalo, on April 1 last, when he was transportation engineer to the commission. This estimate he submitted to correct a former one in which he had calculated that the new subways would not earn enough to pay anything on the city's interest and sinking fund account till the tenth year, and even at the end of the lease there would be an accumulated deficit of $4,676,000.

He corrected his figures for operating expenses, and reached the final conclusion that payment on the city's interest and sinking fund account would begin after nine years, and that the deficiency in this would steadily diminish year by year till in the thirtieth year even the accumulated deficit would be wiped out. Consequently, for the last nineteen years of the lease there ought to be some profit to the city.

WANTS TIME LIMIT SET.

Sulzer Tells Subway Delegation to Fix a Period to Negotiations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—A delegation of the Brooklyn Builders' Association, of which Charles G. Reynolds is President, called on the Governor to-day to request that no change be made in the membership of the Public Service Commission until the subway contracts were signed.

"How long will that take?" the Governor asked.

"Some three weeks," a member of the delegation replied.

"Have something like that reduced to writing and then come to me," the Governor remarked. "Action could be taken on a definite statement like that."

The Governor was asked to tell the nature of the charges against Chairman Willcox which he said he had received.

"I have nothing to say about that, because I'm not going to remove him," was his reply. He added: "I'm glad to see they are getting together and making some progress."

DISCUSS 42D ST. SUBWAYS.

Meeting Will Hear Times Square Express Station Plans.

The Forty-second Street Subway Association, of which Alexander Taylor of 16 East Forty-second Street is Chairman, will hold a meeting at noon on Monday at the Hotel Manhattan to consider several important matters affecting the interests of business men on this street in connection with the proposed subways.

F. A. Muschenheim of the Hotel Astor and Henry G. Opdyke, consulting engineer of the Broadway Association, have been invited to present to the meeting the plan for placing the Brooklyn Rapid Transit express station immediately below the present Interborough Times Square station, which was presented a few weeks ago to the Public Service Commission by the Broadway Association and the Times Square Association. This plan has already been printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Travis H. Whitney, Secretary of the Public Service Commission, has also been invited to attend the meeting to describe the changes in the rapid transit situation as they are likely to affect Forty-second Street.

TO PROTECT QUEENS PLANS.

Delegations to Visit Sulzer to Plead Their Own Transit Ideas.

In order that the plans for the proposed rapid transit lines in Queens, which are in no way included in the present triborough tangle, may not be disturbed, several delegations of business men are arranging to visit Albany on Monday and present the claims of the Borough of Queens. President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens sent a telegram to Gov. Sulzer which read:

Hon. William Sulzer, Governor, Albany, N. Y.

The people of Queens view with intense alarm the creation of any condition tending to delay or jeopardize the construction of transit lines provided for Queens upon the prospect of which lines present assessed values are predicated. Queens lines are not included in tri-borough scheme.

MAURICE E. CONNOLLY,
President of the Borough of Queens.

It is said the proposed lines in Queens can be built independent of any action on the proposed tri-borough lines.

CARNEGIE NOW LOOKS TO WILSON FOR PEACE

Regrets Bad Record of Past Year, but Is Strong in Predicting Change.

DR. ELIOT PRAISES OPEN DOOR

Tells New York Peace Society and Civic Form That That Will Do Much in the Orient.

Hopeful messages to those who are looking forward to universal peace were given last night by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, and Andrew Carnegie at the meeting in Carnegie Hall, under the joint auspices of the New York Peace Society and the Civic Forum. Undismayed by recent wars, Mr. Carnegie asserted his conviction that the end of war was in sight and expressed the greatest confidence in the attitude which President-elect Wilson would assume on going into office.

"I have faith in our President-elect," said Mr Carnegie. "When I wrote to him after his election as Governor in regard to arbitration his letter was as strong as it could be. If he has to deal with the question of the arrangement of universal peace I'll just risk my reputation on him—no, that wouldn't be much—I'll risk some of my money. And I never gambled before."

Mr. Carnegie spoke with a deep feeling of disappointment about the failure of the treaty signed by Great Britain, France, and the United States under President Taft's leadership, and approved by Germany, saying that these four nations acting together could make war impossible.

Dr. Eliot expressed the belief that the domination of the seas by the navies of Great Britain, France, Germany, the United States, and Japan would go far toward solving the question.

"This has been a curious time to go on such an errand," said Dr. Eliot in referring to his recent trip to the Orient. "No sooner had I arrived in the East than Italy seized Tripoli. I had been but a short time in the East when Russia attacked Persia, and England looked on from the south without expressing disapproval. And I had barely arrived home when this strife in the Balkans broke out. All the time I was in China that country was in a disordered condition. The words of Mr. Carnegie indicated that the advocates of peace have had some reasons for discouragement this year. That is true."

Two reasons why peace had been delayed in the Orient, said Dr. Eliot, was because the Orientals with the exception of the Japanese had not grasped the method of inductive philosophy which had been everything to the West in bringing about advancement of mankind, and also had not arrived at the idea of universal brotherhood. On the other hand, he said, there were many hopeful signs among the mthe profligous change in the social and official habits of the people of China.

The British possessions in the East, he said, had been acquired for one reason only—the extension of trade and security for the investment of British capital. The United States had not used force, but, said Dr. Eliot, the same spirit had actuated our relations with the Far East.

"But the future of the East is full of hope since the Chinese revolution and the Japanese restoration; since the English Government abandoned its effort to exploit the Indian people and devoted itself to the uplift of these people," he said.

"The chief progress in Europe has been the safety of the small nations from aggression, and the mutual jealousy of the European nations' powers has been responsible for this as well as for the security of China. The real reason for the treaties of neutralization is that none of the powers is willing that the others shall have possession. That is why Switzerland has not been swallowed up."

Dr. Eliot spoke of the doctrine of the open door as leading to universal peace, and then turned to what he called "frequent panics" caused by fear of what Japan was going to do. A Japanese invasion of the United States would be impossible, he said, and when he had spoken of that to prominent Japanese they had shown the utter absurdity of war between Japan and the United States.

Mr. Carnegie spoke briefly again saying he believed the doctrine of the exemption of private property on the seas was soon to be a reality. It had been approved by eight of the nations and needed only the sanction of Great Britain.

There were about 2,000 persons at the meeting. Among those on the platform were Henry Clews, William H. Bliss, John G. Agar, Henry M. MacCracken, Dr. E. R. L. Gould, Hamilton Holt, Dr. William J. Walsh, the Japanese Consul General and William H. Short.

BEAR AT MICHIGAN DINNER.

Alumni of State University Get It from ex-President Angell.

An Ontonagon bear from the woods of Northern Michigan moved slowly and solemnly into the north ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night, borne on the shoulders of four stooped and laboring waiters, amid cheers from some 200 alumni of the University of Michigan of New York, who were giving their annual dinner in honor of President Harry B. Hutchins of the university. The bear, however, returned no answering roar. He had been put out of roaring forever by the clear eye and steady aim of James B. Angell, ex-President of the university, who is making his usual Winter sojourn in the woods of the upper peninsula. Bruin was roasted in good old barbecue fashion, and his skin, draped limp from the shoulders of two more waiters, followed him into the gathering of the Michigan alumni.

Prof. Calvin Thomas of Columbia University, who was graduated from Michigan in the class of '74, was toastmaster at the dinner. With him and President Hutchins at the speakers' table sat: Dr. John E. Weeks, '81; Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, '75; Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, '78, of New York University; Shirley W. Smith, '97, Secretary of the University of Michigan; Col. Henry G. Prout, '71, Vice President of the Union Switch and Signal Co.; Earl D. Babst, '93, President of the University of Michigan Club; Alfred Noble, '70; Dr. William A. Ewing, '64; Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, '89, of New York University; Royal S. Copeland, '89, Director of Flower Hospital.

The speakers were all graduates of the university. Col. Henry G. Prout, '71, pointed out that Michigan might be justly proud in that its university was the pioneer among the great State universities and had set a standard for the rest ever since. The centre of gravity of higher education, he said, was moving steadily westward. Of the colleges having an enrollment of 1,000 students or more, he said, there were 62 west of the Alleghany Mountains and 28 east. Of the students enrolled, there were 135,000 west and 71,000 east.

President Hutchins spoke of the growing feeling on the part of taxpayers that State universities, with their tremendous expansion in recent years, which had made them in most cases the most expensive of all State institutions, should also devote themselves to improving the conditions of the State and its people. Most State universities, he said, were now undertaking to do just that.

STOLE FOR LOVE OF DRESS.

Girl Who Swindled Merchants Gets Suspended Sentence.

Vera Dowling of Revere, Mass., who was arrested last October under the name of Frances Hollender on the complaint of merchants who charged that she had swindled them out of thousands of dollars worth of gowns by posing as Mrs. Lew Fields, was released on a suspended sentence by Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday.

Miss Dowling was very defiant when first arrested. Yesterday she pleaded guilty to the thefts and in throwing herself on the mercy of the Court said that she had committed the thefts because of her love for fine gowns. The specific charge against Miss Dowling was the larceny of two dresses and a coat valued at $200 which she obtained from Mme. Bernstein, who has a tailoring establishment at 743 Sixth Avenue.

RETURN ARSON INDICTMENTS.

Four Accused Men Sought—Auto Killings by Adjusters Reported.

The Grand Jury investigating the confession of Isidor Stein, "Izzy the Painter," who was the head of a gang of "fire bugs" operating on the upper east side, handed up four additional indictments yesterday, charging arson in the second degree.

None of the indicted men were arrested, and the exact nature of the charge was not made public. There are now eight men, charged with arson, at large, although detectives have been scouring the city for them.

One of these men, living in the Bronx, hired Stein to set fire to his place. Stein was willing, but the man's wife refused to let him set fire to her furniture, and then Stein's employer hired another flat in 101st Street, bought second-hand furniture and had Stein set fire to it. He paid $15 for the furniture and collected $400 insurance money.

It is rumored about the Criminal Court Building that Assistant District Attorney Weller is about to investigate a report to the effect that on two occasions automobiles owned by two of the adjusters under arrest for arson had run down and killed two persons.

After he had been questioned for two hours Hugo Nerctin, a glazier, of 1,835 Madison Avenue, confessed, the police said, and he was locked up in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station early this morning charged with arson in the second degree. He was accused of setting fire to a tenement at 433-435 Lenox Avenue, on April 9.

The Dragoman

By George K. Stiles

Predictions are always hazardous, but the publishers of "The Dragoman" believe that this book has in it qualities which will make it one of the most talked of and successful novels of the new year.

It is a love story. The heroine is an American girl. The hero is a young Englishman. The scene is Egypt—not the Egypt of hotels and tourists, but the grim hinterland of the upper Nile, where strange things happen and few white men ever venture. The East and its mystery, the inner workings of international diplomacy, the mighty power of Mohammedanism, are all elements which make the story one of extraordinary and fascinating interest.

George Washington

By Woodrow Wilson

A profusely illustrated biography of our first President by his distinguished fellow Virginian and successor. In the perspective of American history—a perspective clearer, perhaps, to this reader than to any other—the period treated is especially significant, being the culmination of the Colonial era and the establishment of the Republic on the firm basis of Constitutional law. It reads like a novel.

Your United States

By Arnold Bennett

"A more entertaining book of comment on American and Americans has not been written."—Springfield Republican. "A readable book by a man who knows how to write."—Chicago Tribune. "The book is a delight from start to finish."—Public Ledger. "Will reward the thoughful reader, and the least thoughtful will find matter for discussion."—Boston Congregationalist. "Is perhaps the most genial and just of the books about this country which distinguished foreigners have written."—Des Moines Register. "He expresses a mild, almost childlike wonder about us that is infinitely touching, yet he is shrewd enough never to abuse us."—Portland Oregonian.

Lincoln's Own Stories

By Anthony Gross

"A good book for reference and a valuable addition to any Lincoln collection. It will serve also as a cure for the blues."—St. Louis Post Dispatch. "They are good stories, well worth the pains Mr. Gross has taken in securing them, and will be the occasion of many a good laugh."—Detroit Free Press. "Mr. Gross has so cleverly connected the stories, that together they make a complete little biography."—New York Globe. "Mr. Gross has made an important addition to the literature of the life of Lincoln."—Boston Transcript. "A book interesting for perusal, and valuable for reference."—Kansas City Post. "The stories are wonderfully witty and wise."—New York Christian Advocate.

BAR APPROVES TAFT CANAL TOLLS STAND

State Association Rejects Committee Resolution Asking Him to Accept Arbitration.

RECALL OF JUDGES OPPOSED

Popular Reversal of Court Decisions Also Attacked by Gov. Hadley and Other Speakers.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, Jan. 24.—The State Bar Association, in its thirty-sixth annual meeting to-day, voted approval of President Taft's position in regard to the Panama Canal tolls. It rejected the majority report of its Committee on International Arbitration presented by Everett P. Wheeler. A minority report submitted by Charles Henry Butler was more favorable to the President's stand, but was similar in thought, to the other. Defeating an attempt to defer action "until the proper occasion arises for associations of this nature to act," the association adopted the following:

Resolved, That we reiterate our adherence and devotion to the principle of international arbitration as heretofore announced by this association, and cordially approve the position of President Taft on the Panama question as stated in his speech of Jan. 4, and quoted in Mr. Butler's minority report.

President Taft, in his speech of Jan. 4 in New York, said he would be willing to arbitrate the question, but he explained next day that he meant he would submit it to a commission to be chosen by the two countries, rather than to The Hague Tribunal.

The committee's majority report referred to instances in which the United States had insisted on arbitration when England was a party to a dispute and urged President Taft to accept the offer of Great Britain to arbitrate the canal toll question. It continued:

"We are confronted with the extraordinary spectacle of a doubt as to whether this country of ours will live up to its record, its traditions and its actual agreement in the treaty negotiated at the Hague and ratified, almost unanimously, if not quite, by the Senate of the United States, and submit to the decision of the Permanent Court of Arbitration a difference in consequence of the Panama Canal act.

"It is inconceivable that after the United States has settled by arbitration far more important controversies between itself and Great Britain than any that can possibly arise with reference to the Panama Canal, it should now refuse to refer to an impartial tribunal, formed in pursuance with a treaty which itself proposed, this pure question of law as to what the Hay-Pauncefote treaty means. It would be better a thousand times that the Panama Canal had never been built than that the United States should be false to its plighted faith and assume the position of a Nation that has insisted to the uttermost that Great Britain should arbitrate questions in which the United States was even indirectly concerned, and yet when called upon itself to submit to The Hague tribunal a question of this sort, should refuse."

The committee answered the objection that had been made, that we could not expect an impartial tribunal, by asserting that such a contention was a great injustice to the judges who formed the panel of the High Court in The Hague.

Vigorous arguments against the recall of judicial decisions and the recall of Judges were made before the association this afternoon and this evening by Henry W. Taft, Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, and William D. Guthrie of New York. They were supplemented by the report of a subcommittee appointed to investigate the causes underlying the dissatisfaction with the judicial system, of which D-Cady Herrick was Chairman. Mr. Taft's objections were based chiefly on what he called danger to National institutions. Gov. Hadley characterized the two proposed methods of recall as unwise and unnecessary. Mr. Guthrie criticised Col. Roosevelt and Mayor Gaynor severely for alleged misrepresentation of four famous decisions cited against the courts. The committee's report suggested reforms in procedure, among them a rule compelling court stenographers to supply free copies of the records to the litigants in every case, so that no one might be prevented from taking an appeal by lack of money to pay the fees now charged by those employes.

Taft Quotes Hamilton.

Mr. Taft quoted Hamilton's assertion, "The complete independence of the courts of justice is peculiarly essential in a limited Constitution." He argued it was impossible for the courts, for any long period, to deprive executives, legislators, or the people of their rights, because there was not placed in their hands machinery by which judicial aggressions could be made effective. The judiciary, he admitted, often in critical junctures of the Nation's history, had been an unpopular branch of the Government. He commented that Thomas Jefferson's ideas, "based on the expressions of the leaders of the French Revolution as to abstract justice, political freedom, and the equality of men," were "remarkably like those expressed by certain political leaders of to-day, when they attempt, for party purposes, to give a definition to modern progressivism."

The speaker asserted that if recall of decisions should be conceded, even in a limited form, "every new political, industrial, economic, or social question agitating the people in the future would be the occasion for new applications of the principle until finally we should have the courts the mere timorous conduits of what they might guess to be the opinion of the majority of the electorate." He insisted the extent of the State's police power was a question for Judges to settle. The courts must determine, he argued, whether a law sought to be justified as an exercise of the police power really was for the public welfare or was passed with a sinister purpose, as, for example, improperly to serve corporate interests or to provide a basis for blacmail of such interests by lobbyists or others. Mr. Taft said the tenement house case, one of those cited by the advocates of the recall, involved a law that was not a health measure. There was no question of constitutionality in the Knisely case, he asserted, the court merely construing the Employers' Liability act, and the statute could have been changed immediately by the Legislature.

In Doubt About Ives Case.

The court in the Williams case, Mr. Taft continued, adjudged unconstitutional a statute which prevented a woman from working at any trade in a factory after 9 o'clock at night. He said there was nothing to show that working at night had any relation to the healthfulness of the employment. The speaker explained that the decision in the Ives case, holding the Workingmen's Compensation act to be unconstitutional, was based on the theory that in imposing a liability on an employer when he was entirely free from fault property was taken from him without due process of law. He admitted, however, that this last case gave "colorable ground" for the charge that the courts of this State had lagged behind the enlightened thought of the day, and that there was doubt as to whether the decision was right.

"It would be too much to expect," said Mr. Taft, "that the people, in the short time available in each recall campaign, could be adequately informed as to the facts in the record before the court." He added that a judge passing on the constitutionality of a statute alleged to be valid as an exercise of police power would find political leaders the surest authorities to consult, to ascertain how the people would vote at an election to recall his decision. The judge's conscience might lead him to decide in favor of a corporate interest, though realizing his decision would be reversed by a referendum.

Mr. Taft expressed the opinion that the proposed recall of judges, while vicious in principle, would be less dangerous, because it probably soon would fall into disuse, "particularly since in the Archbald case it has been shown how effective an impeachment can be made for the punishment of judicial improprieties."

Says Law Must Grow With Times.

Gov. Hadley started with the assertion that the Nation's law was a progressive science. Rules of human conduct that applied 300 years ago, he pointed out, would not do in this age.

"We find to-day, he continued, "a very general dissatisfaction, not only with our judicial system, but also with our constitutional form of government." He added that critics of the judges considered they had usurped powers and exercised them "in an unfair, and often in a tyrannical manner." Mr. Hadley criticized "the tendency of the courts, and particularly the appellate courts, to glorify, or, at least, to overemphasize the technicalities of procedure." He attacked as no longer necessary the tradition that a defendant could not be required to incriminate himself. He commented favorably on the recent promptness of the New York courts in disposing of the cases growing out of Rosenthal's murder.

The Governor said the rules of practice should be made by the higher courts, instead of by the Legislatures, and he argued from the recent changes in procedure made by the United States Supreme Court that "the Judges of the country would respond to a reasonable public opinion on this question." He asserted it was useless for lawyers to deny that the attitude of the courts toward progressive legislation had been conservative and often reactionary, adding, "In dealing with such questions some of the courts have made our constitutional limitations obstacles in the pathway of progress toward the correction of the evils and abuses of our social and industrial conditions, and in construing the expression 'due process of law,' some courts have gone to an extreme of technical construction."

"The point which I wish to emphasize is this—that the failure, if there has been a failure, of legal justice to keep pace with social justice is not entirely the fault of either our courts or our profession. In this country, to my mind, we have been much retarded in the working out of our social, industrial and economic problems by the theory which is revered and respected by many because it comes to us associated with the name of the great Jefferson—that that government is the best which governs least."

Gov. Hadley not only called the recall of Judges and the recall of judicial decisions "unnecessary and unwise," but he said the principle was wrong in the case of any other public official, and that the opposition to the recall of public officials in general was weakened by a special opposition to the recall of Judges. The surest way to defeat the recall idea, he argued, was to remove the causes of dissatisfaction with the courts. He suggested that members of the bar could do much toward that removal.

The speaker said the people could use the initiative more effectively than the recall. He asked why the Government and laws of the United States should be less responsive to public opinion than those of the republics and constitutional monarchies of the Old World. He said the lack of response on the part of the courts in this country was due in part to "the undue deference which often is given to Judges and their decisions by members of the bar."

Mr. Guthrie in a special report discussed injunctions in labor cases, the recall of Judges and decisions and the criticisms of the courts made by Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Gaynor.

DEMOCRATS SHIFT ON TOLLS.

Eight Senators Who Voted to Relieve Coastwise Ships Are Ready for Repeal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The publication of Secretary Knox's reply to Sir Edward Grey's protest against the Panama Canal act, granting free passage to American coastwise ships, called forth to-day very guarded comment on the part of Senators.

Even before Mr. Knox's note was made public a gradual change in sentiment had begun, especially among the Democrats, who realize that the canal dispute will prove troublesome to Gov. Wilson unless settled before March 4.

Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, who is one of Gov. Wilson's closest friends, is said to be keenly interested in the bill introduced by Senator Root to repeal the no-tolls provision. Mr. Gore's position on the subject of tolls was not recorded last Summer, as he did not vote and was not paired. But at Baltimore, when the Democratic convention declared in favor of concessions to American shipping, Senator Gore made no protest.

A still more noteworthy change of attitude is that of Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska. He was paired against the amendment offered last Summer by Senator Root, striking out the no-toll provision. To-day he said that Mr. Knox's note was practically an argument proving the charge that remission of tolls to American shipping was nothing more than a subsidy to coastwise ships.

"A subsidy," said Mr. Hitchcock, "is entirely undemocratic, and the bill, described by its supporters as a subsidy, should be repealed."

It was stated on the Republican side that not less than seven Democratic Senators besides Hitchcock had shifted their positions. The Republicans interpret the as a move by the Democrats to save Mr. Wilson from troublesome negotiations.

Apparently, however, not enough Senators have yet changed their minds to insure favorable action on Senator Root's bill to repeal the provision. The vote against the Root amendment last Summer was 45 to 18. A shift of eight votes would make the total 37 to 26, omitting all account of the Senators who did not vote last Summer.

As Senator McCumber of North Dakota sees it, Mr. Knox's note does not change the situation in the Senate. Mr. McCumber opposed the no-tolls provision last year as a breach of faith and a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty. Ever since then he has said that the same majority in the Senate, which in his view had violated the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, would violate the arbitration treaty with Great Britain should the Executive seek to submit the dispute to an international tribunal.

In other quarters, however, the suggestion is made that the Senators who favor neither repeal of the no-toll clause nor submission of the dispute to arbitration rather approve Mr. Knox's suggestion of a joint commission of inquiry. But this approval seems to be approval of delay only.

BRITISH CRITICISE REPLY.

Spectator Hopes "Americans Will Not Have to Sing a Dirge Over Honor."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Spectator reprints "Dirge on Hearing of the Violation of the Panama Treaty," published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, and refers in an editorial note to Secretary Knox's reply to Sir Edward Grey's communication to the Washington Government.

The Spectator protests "against the manner in which the British suggestion of arbitration is met by a Government which professes to be specially anxious to support the cause of arbitration. Surely, if two powers differ in the interpretation of a written document, the reasonable and civilized way of deciding which interpretation is the true one is to appoint an arbitrator and let him decide which interpretation is correct."

The Spectator then cites Senator Root's speech in the Senate as indicating that the American people do not indorse the attitude of the American Government, and concludes: "The relations of Great Britain and America would not easily recover from the feeling in Great Britain that the word of American statesmen was no longer to be taken absolutely at its face value. We feel confident that good Americans will not have to sing a dirge over their honor in the words of the striking verses," by Robert Underwood Johnson, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The greatest of our greatest is no more. Honor is dead."

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Secretary Knox's reply to Sir Edward Grey on the question of Panama is found unsatisfactory by the evening newspapers that comment on it.

The Westminister Gazette, which is generally looked upon as the mouthpiece of the Government, says the reply does not bolt the door, but can scarcely be said to be satisfactory. The suggestion that at any time it is thought British shipping is shown injustice, the United States is prepared to submit the facts to a court of inquiry, says the newspaper, leaves the door open to a long series of bickerings, which would do much to undermine the good relations of the two countries.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:

"Coming from any other country than the United States the tone of Secretary Knox's reply would be deeply resented in this country. It concludes: 'Unless international law overrides municipal law, when treaty rights clash with it, international law has no existence, and peaceful intercourse between States becomes impossible.'"

BANKRUPTCY FUNDS PREFERRED CLAIMS

Appellate Division Holds That in Bank Failures They Must Be Returned First.

UPHOLDS FEDERAL COURT

In the Carnegie Trust Case—Justice Ingraham Writes a Dissenting Opinion.

Bankruptcy funds must be returned in full before other depositors in a collapsed trust company may enter claims, according to a decision of the Appellate Division handed down yesterday. The decision was in a test case brought by order of the Federal Courts of this district to protect the rights of creditors of bankrupts, and specifically to collect bankruptcy funds deposited in the Carnegie Trust Company by Robert C. Morris and William Henkel, J., receiver and trustee, respectively, in bankruptcy.

The majority opinion of the court, written by Justice Scott and concurred in by Justice McLaughlin and Clarke, fixed the status of bankruptcy funds as money paid into court and held that the officers of Federal Courts could enforce the provisions of the State banking act giving preference to court funds against a State institution in the State courts. The case came before the Appellate Division on an appeal from an order of Justice Gerard dismissing the application of the Federal Court officers for preference. Presiding Justice Ingraham wrote a dissenting opinion.

The Carnegie Trust Company was designated in 1907 on its own application as a depository for moneys of bankrupt estates under Section 61 of the Bankruptcy act. This section recognized three classes of deposits, all of which the Federal District Court believed to be entitled to preference over ordinary creditors of the trust company. The State Banking Department which took over the Carnegie Trust Company after its failure, refused, however, to accord preference to funds deposited by receivers in bankruptcy, subject to check by such receivers, and deposits by trustees subject to withdrawal on checks by trustees, countersigned by receivers. Preference was allowed to deposits in composition under order of the Judges of the United States District Court.

To enforce preference for the disputed classes of deposits the Judges of the District Court instructed Mr. Morris to bring suit in the State Courts, relying on the provisions of the State Banking law, which gave preference to court funds. The Carnegie Trust Company had been designated as a receiver of the funds of any court of record by the State Controller and the Judges of the Federal Court believed that the provisions of the law giving preference to such funds included Federal Court funds.

The prevailing opinion of the Appellate Division supported this view. Justice Scott wrote:

If these moneys would have been entitled to a preference in payment if deposited in the trust company by a receiver or trustee appointed by a State court and in obedience to an order of such court, I think it must follow that they are equally entitled to a preference when deposited under an order of the bankruptcy court, for the district courts of the United States are unquestionably courts of record and therefore within the letter of Section 189 of the banking law.

No doubt it was competent for the bankruptcy court to designate as depositories State institutions which had not been designated by the State Controller, but that is not the case, and it is not unreasonable to assume that the Carnegie Trust Company was designated as a depository in bankruptcy, because it had been designated by the State Controller and therefore presumably fell under the provisions of the State Banking Department as to preferential payments of trust deposits.

Trustees and receivers in bankruptcy are expressly declared to be officers of the District court, and it has been repeatedly held that upon an adjudication of bankruptcy title to the bankrupt's property becomes at once vested in the trustees and placed in the custody of the bankruptcy court. It seems to me to be quite clear, therefore, that the moneys deposited in the Carnegie Trust Company by the appellants were moneys paid into court as those words are used in the banking law. If so, I see no reason for making a distinction between State Court funds and Federal court funds. They are both within the strict letter of the statute, and, as I think, within its spirit and intention.

The majority opinion directed that verdicts as asked for by the plaintiffs be entered at once without a new application in the court below. In the dissenting opinion, Presiding Justice Ingraham declared.

"There is no express provision in the statute which gives to a receiver appointed by a State Court a preference for moneys deposited by him as such receiver over other depositors. There is no provision as I read the statute that when an executor, administrator or other person receiving money in a fiduciary capacity, selects a bank as his depository, such executor, administrator or trustee should receive a preference for the money so deposited over other depositors. When the United States designatd this trust company as a depository it exercised an independent authority over which the State of New York had no control. It required the trust company to give a bond to secure its deposits which it must be assumed was considered sufficient to secure them. Such designation, it seems to me, had no relation to the Banking Law of the State of New York. Its act in making such designation gave to the receiver or trustee in bankruptcy no power to enforce a provision of the banking law intended solely to provide for cases where the courts of this State had designated this trust company."

CHILD CALLED TO DECIDE.

He Tells the Court He Loves His Mother and Father Just the Same.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum heard behind closed doors yesterday the testimony of the attorney for Mrs. Ethel Colyer Johnson and the lawyer for her husband, Richard O. Johnson, general manager of the manufacturing firm of A. J. Arnston & Co., in order to decide which should have the custody of their nine-year-old child pending the suit for separation which Mrs. Johnson has brought against her husband.

Mrs. Johnson charges her husband with cruelty and with having paid undue attention to a nurse who was staying in their house at New Rochelle. Later, she alleged, he took their child away to the Gunnery School in Connecticut against her will. Last Monday she applied for a writ of habeas corpus giving her custody of the child until the suit for separation had been settled, but Justice Greenbaum postponed his decision until he had questioned the child yesterday as to his wishes in the matter.

When called in to see Justic Greenbaum yesterday the little fellow said: "I love my papa and mamma just the same."

After hearing more arguments the Justice decided to leave the question of custody to be decided by a referee, who will be appointed to-day. Richard, the son, was sent back to the Gunnery School, where he will remain until the referee has submited his decision. The suit for separation will be settled by a court trial.

STERRY TO OPPOSE HIS WIFE.

Alleges She Was Not Divorced When She Married Him.

Supreme Court Justice Newburger yesterday postponed until Monday the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Stivers Sterry's suit for separation against her husband, James W. Sterry. Abandonment, nonsupport, and inconsiderate treatment due to indulgence in alcoholic beverages are among her complaints, it became known yesterday. It was also learned that when the case is reached on the calendar Mr. Sterry will vigorously oppose his wife's suit on allegations that at the time she married him she was the undivorced wife of Albert J. Rennie, a Chicago merchant. The basis of this charge did not appear yesterday. It was emphatically denied by Mrs. Sterry's representatives.

Mr. Sterry is a member of the drug house of Weaver & Sterry, 79 Pine Street. His brother, George E. Sterry, Jr., killed his father, George E. Sterry, on May 19, 1908, to prevent the father's marriage to Rachel Blaikie, a New Jersey school teacher. He then committed suicide.

ASK PROOF OF FIRE THEFTS.

Underwriters Call on Johnson to State Full Charges Against Patrol.

H. W. Eaton, President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, wrote to Fire Commissioner Johnson yesterday asking for specific instances where members of the Fire Insurance Patrol had committed thefts at fires, as alleged in the Fire Commissioner's report to Mayor Gaynor on Thursday.

"As the New York Board of Fire Underwriters is greatly concerned that the integrity of the men in the fire patrol service shall be above question," wrote President Eaton, "I shall be favored by a reply from you at the earliest convenient date in which particulars are given of any cases which have come to your attention where suspicion has been directed toward members of the Fire Insurance Patrol. I cannot doubt that in the presence of any complaints of the kind, of a specific nature, the New York board will insist upon the fullest investigation of the same."

MRS. GWATHMEY TO FIGHT.

Enters the Bishop Suit, Where She Is Named as Corespondent.

Mrs. J. Temple Gwathmey of the Hotel Gotham filed notice of appearance yesterday in the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop against James Cunningham Bishop, the banker. Mrs. Bishop named Mrs. Gwathmey as one of the corespondents in the case. Mrs. Gwathmey has retained the law firm of O'Gorman, Battle & Marshall to protect her interests, and has demanded that all papers in the case be served upon her through them.

As a corespondent named by Mrs. Bishop, she has the right under the law to defend the suit, and her retaining of the firm of attorneys headed by United States Senator James A. O'Gorman was taken yesterday as an indication that she was determined to make a fight.

FIREMAN FINED FOR SMOKING.

He Did It on an Elevated Train in Uniform Contrary to Orders.

George Monsees, a first-grade fireman attached to Hook and Ladder 79 on Staten Island, was fined one day's pay by Commissioner Olvany yesterday for smoking on a Brooklyn elevated train when he was in uniform. An order was issued by the Fire Department recently against this practice.

Last week Trainmaster Reeves of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit saw a uniformed fireman smoking and noted his number, which he forwarded to Commissioner Johnson. At the trial Reeves identified Monsees.

Glad to Get Cast-Off Clothes.

The Prison Association of New York, 135 East Fifteenth Street, urgently appeals for men's cast off sack suits. Partly worn suits are needed by many released and discharged prisoners. The Prison Association will gladly send for articles within the city limits in reply to message by telephone or mail. It is felt that in nearly every family there are partly worn suits that would be of great help to released prisoners who cannot afford to buy them.

Announcement

THIS store is now better prepared to cater to the wants of its thousands of patrons than ever before in its entire existence. A quarter million in complete stocks of every line of goods that a modern department store should carry are now to be found in our five big, spacious floors.

Several new departments will shortly be added, thoroughly equipped and splendidly stocked.

The extension of our business has resulted in our taking up the store next below us on Eighth Avenue, some little time ago, both to give room to our regular stocks as well as to meet the shoe section's imperative need for larger quarters.

The management of the business is still in the hands of Stephen J. McPartland, son of one of the original founders of the firm over half a century ago on the same avenue.

The firm bespeaks for itself the continuation of the splendid loyalty it has been its fortune to meet during its 51 years of trading and which it is its most cherished hope to always deserve.

Defense in Government's Suit Against Steel Trust Fails to Modify His Testimony.

GARY AT POOL MEETINGS

Ex-President Strengthens Admissions Made Against Chairman of Steel Board on His Direct Examination.

William Ellis Corey was subjected to a cross-examination that lasted all yesterday in an effort by the defense to weaken the effect of admissions made by him unfavorable to the United States Steel Corporation in the suit brought by the Government for its dissolution. In no material respect did he qualify his testimony, and in one important matter the result was to strengthen considerably the evidence he had given.

This was his statement that Judge Gary, Chairman of the Steel Corporation, knew of the pools in which the subsidiaries participated with independent manufacturers long before he caused them to be dissolved. He said yesterday that Judge Gary was present at at least one of the regular meetings of the plate and structural pools at the Waldorf as far back as 1902 or 1903, and that Charles M. Schwab, then President of the Corporation, was also present. The pools were not dissolved until late in 1904 or the beginning of 1905. Mr. Corey thought Judge Gary was present at other pool meetings, but wasn't prepared to specify them.

Efforts to modify his statements that the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company had become an active competitor in the rail market soon before it was taken over by the Steel Corporation, or that Hill ore lands were leased at more than double their value, which the Government contends was evidence of a purpose to monopolize the country's ore reserves, were equally unsuccessful.

Tells of Domestic Rail Pool.

Mr. Corey was first asked about the domestic rail pool, the former existence of which is not denied. He said he first knew of it definitely when he became President of the corporation. Mr. Severance brought out the fact that the agreement did not prevent a manufacturer from selling more than his allotment, although he had to pay a penalty for doing so. Mr. Corey also agreed that after the pool broke up independent manufacturers wanted to increase the price of rails and the Steel Corporation stood out against it.

His testimony that rails for export were sold at a lower price at the mills than those for domestic consumption was taken up, and he admitted that prices were now higher in foreign countries than here. This was true, he said, of France, Germany, Austria, Italy and Russia, but as to England and Belgium he was not informed.

Mr. Severance produced a telegram sent by Mr. Corey to Mr. Farrell in 1901 inquiring about a report that a mill in Antwerp was about to sell 50,000 rails to the Harriman lines for use on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Corey said he was much disturbed about the report.

"My understanding," he said, "was that foreigners couldn't come into this country and sell rails."

Mr. Severance also brought out, as a reason American manufacturers didn't sell rails in steel-producing countries, that some of them imposed protective tariffs. Mr. Corey said, however, that the corporation exported rails to Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand, despite tariffs favoring England.

"When you began seeking foreign business," asked Mr. Severance, "did you learn that producers in foreign countries had combinations among themselves?"

"They seemed to be prevalent."

"In going into these countries you had to take cognizance of these conditions?"

"Yes."

"Isn't it a fact that prices on foreign business netted higher toward the end of the time you were President than at the start?"

"Yes, on some contracts."

Mr. Severance took up the statement that the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company was competing in the rail market before the Steel Corporation absorbed it. He asked if that competition was not confined to rails.

"We didn't consider them competitors in other respects," said Mr. Corey. "Outside of rails, their output was infinitesimal."

Reported on Tenn. Coal & Iron Co.

Mr. Corey said he made an inspection of the Tennessee property after its acquisition and reported to the Finance Committee that it would take $5,000,000 a year for five years to put it in shape. After that it would be a dividend payer. Mr. Severance also brought out that after the Tennessee company had delivered the Harriman order of 157,500 rails, which put it into business as a rail competitor, there was much complaint about their quality.

"Didn't a large part have to be taken back?"

"Some were taken back."

"Didn't it cost the Tennessee company more to make the rails than the current price?"

"I can't say that positively. I know the cost was very high."

"Under those circumstances, would you say that any competitor could continue to amount to anything in the general competition of the country?"

"My opinion," said Mr. Corey, "is that the competition in rails would have continued."

"Assuming that they couldn't make the rails at a profit?"

"I would still be of the opinion that competition would have continued. Within a short time, with the improvements they were putting in, I think they would have been able to reduce the costs. Furthermore, they were putting a 'nuisance value' on the property and would have gone on for a long time."

Mr. Severance tried to show that John W. Gates tried to sell the Tennessee property to the Steel Corporation, but Mr. Corey said he had never offered it.

"When I happened to meet him, not by appointment," he said, "Mr. Gates called my attention to the value of the Tennessee Coal & Iron stock. I don't recall that he ever suggested that we should purchase it. It was his opinion that the stock was cheap at $250 a share."

"Did he intimate that the Steel Corporation ought to own the property?"

"That was his idea, but I don't think he ever said so. I told him he was about $200 too high in his valuation of the stock."

Mr. Corey said he opposed the purchase of the Tennessee company at the conferences at J. P. Morgan's library in the panic, but finally voted for it, without changing his opinion of its value.

Mr. Severance got into the record the statement that in Mr. Corey's presidency the Steel Corporation's competitors "grew and flourished like a green bay tree," and that despite the absorption of the Tennessee company, the acquisition of the Union Steel Company and the construction of the Gary plant, the Steel Corporation had a smaller percentage of the country's output of finished steel products in 1910 than at its formation. The consumption of the country, Mr. Corey said, had doubled in the ten years.

Taking up the Hill ore lease, Mr. Corey said his only objection to it was the price. His idea was that the royalty should not be more than fifty cents a ton.

Mr. Severance then referred to Mr. Corey's testimony that at the first Gary dinner a committee was named which subsequently named subcommittees which fixed prices. Mr. Corey had said that no agreements were made, but that there were understandings which resulted in the maintenance of prices. This he repeated, and in answer to questions said the committees were anxious to do nothing that could be attacked as illegal; that they acted under the advice of counsel and that their counsel, as well as the Steel Corporation's counsel, were present at meetings.

"What you did was to announce the price at which you intended to sell your products, and the others announced their prices?"

"Yes."

"And the effect of these announcements was to maintain prices?"

"Yes."

"As a matter of fact, prices were not always strictly maintained?"

"No."

Mr. Severance took up the pools which were abandoned in 1904 and 1905, and brought out that they were broken up by advice of counsel not connected with the Steel Corporation. After consultation with Judge Gary, Mr. Corey said, he instructed the officers of subsidiaries to wipe out anything that might be considered illegal by counsel.

"The rail pool was wound up at the same time?"

"The domestic rail pool, yes."

"Did you mean to say yesterday that Judge Gary knew about these pools, or merely about the rail pool, at or about the time they were wound up?"

"He knew about them all the time," said Mr. Corey.

"Are you sure of that?"

"Absolutely."

"How do you know he knew about them?" demanded Mr. Severance.

"Because he attended the meetings," remarked Mr. Corey, quietly.

"What meetings did he attend outside of the rail pool?"

"The plate and structural pools."

Mr. Severance wanted to know when Judge Gary had attended. Mr. Corey said he couldn't fix the exact date, but he remembered a meeting at the Waldorf in 1902 or 1903. This was while he was President of the Carnegie Steel Company, before he became President of the Steel Corporation.

"Do you feel sure about that?"

"That is my recollection."

"But do you feel sure?"

"I do."

"Was this a meeting at which prices were fixed?"

"It was one of the regular meetings. I can't recall definitely whether prices were fixed."

"Would you undertake to say prices were discussed when Judge Gary was there?"

"Yes."

"When you talked with Judge Gary about winding up the pools, don't you remember him expressing surprise at learning of them?"

"As to the Bridge Company, yes."

"You still feel sure that he attended the structural and plate pool meetings?"

"I certainly do."

Mr. Severance's next move was to show that Mr. Corey hadn't the kindliest feelings toward Judge Gary.

"During the latter part of your Presidency," he said, "you were not at all times in accord with Judge Gary, were you?"

"I don't know that I care to answer that," said Mr. Corey, bridling.

"When you left the Steel Corporation, you went away with some feeling against Judge Gary, did you not?"

"We were not always in accord concerning policies, but I don't know that there was any particular feeling."

Disagreed with Gary on Policies.

"Was your feeling cordial toward him?"

"I won't say it was as cordial as it had been previously," admitted Mr. Corey. He said there had been some disagreements as to the question of whether the authority of the President or that of the Chairman was superior, and that the matter had been submitted to the Finance Committee, which supported Judge Gary. This was in January, 1910, and Mr. Corey resigned at the end of that year.

Then Mr. Corey was taken in hand by F. R. Kellogg, representing the Great Northern Ore Trustees, the other parties to the Hill ore leases. Mr. Kellogg irritated him to the point of refusing to answer questions which he characterized as "ridiculous."

The former owners of the ore lands are defendants in the suit as parties to a conspiracy to create an ore monopoly. Mr. Kellogg tried for half an hour to get Mr. Corey to admit that the leases were worth more than 50 cents royalties. He asked his questions over and over in slightly different form, while Mr. Corey plainly showed his exasperation.

Mr. Kellogg's point was that Mr. Corey didn't take into consideration that the Steel Corporation got the privilege of working the most advantageous parts of an ore body of 250,000,000 tons, and that he had compared the price with that of relatively small leases. He also sought to show that Steel Corporation subsidiaries had made less advantageous leases at 75 cents a ton. The Hill royalties were in the neighborhood of $1 a ton.

Mr. Kellogg took up other leases and asked Mr. Corey about their terms, the quality of the ore and its percentage of metallic contents. Most of the leases Mr. Corey didn't even remember. If Mr. Kellogg's facts were correct they wouldn't change his opinion a particle, he said. As Mr. Kellogg persisted, he asserted:

"I decline to answer. You are asking me to guess about things I don't remember."

"Wasn't the Hill lease different from those with which you compared it?"

"No, I don't think so. I don't see any material difference."

"What," exclaimed Mr. Kellogg, "you don't see any difference between a lease of 10,000,000 tons and the privilege of selection among 250,000,000 tons?"

"No."

"Would you see any difference in a lease of any small amount?"

"I refuse to answer," said Mr. Corey. "The question is ridiculous. Put it down that the witness refuses to answer."

Judge Dickinson, in charge of the prosecution, came to the rescue and poured oil on the waters. He told Mr. Corey that while he could not advise him, as he was not Mr. Corey's counsel, he suggested the propriety of his answering as best he could.

"I accept your suggestion," said Mr. Corey. "I will say that I consider there was no material difference in the Hill lease."

"And is that your final word on the subject?" asked Mr. Kellogg, forging to the front again. Mr. Corey looked disgusted and asked the stenographer to read his previous answer.

"Do you repeat that answer to this question?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. Corey said he did, and the session came to a close. The hearings will be resumed on Monday, with Mr. Corey still on the stand, at 71 Broadway.

Reward for a French Poodle.

Mrs. George E. Gordon of 17 East Ninety-fifth Street has offered a reward in THE TIMES for her French poodle Bo-Peep. Mrs. Gordon took her pet for a shopping excursion in Fifth Avenue at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At Forty-second Street she stopped to let a passing auto go by, and when she looked for Bo-Peep the poodle had disappeared. She searched the neighborhood in vain for it. Bo-Peep was fond of motoring, and Mrs. Gordon and her mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Vivian of 407 West 123d Street, think that perhaps Bo-Peep jumped into an auto and was carried away.

PERKIN MEDAL GIVEN TO JAMES GAYLEY

FOR HIS IRON INVENTIONS

Prof. Chandler Says They Are Saving the American People Every Year $29,000,000.

James Gayley, First Vice President of the United States Steel Corporation from 1901 to 1909, received the Perkin Gold Medal last night at a meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry at Rumford Hall, in the Chemists' Club Building, 50 East Forty-first Street. The medal was awarded by the Perkin Gold Medal Committee of the Associated Chemical and Electro-chemical Societies of America, and was presented by Prof. Charles F. Chandler, Senior Past President of the Society of Chemical Industry.

Mr. Gayley is the seventh recipient of the medal, which was created to honor Sir William Henry Perkin, the founder of coal tar chemistry, which revolutionized the dye and drug industries. The medal was awarded last year to Charles M. Hall, whose aluminium processes built up a great aluminium industry at Niagara Falls.

The achievement for which the medal was awarded to Mr. Gayley was his invention of the dry air blast for the manufacture of iron, on which he took out fifteen patents from Oct. 23, 1884, to Sept. 5, 1911. Of this discovery Prof. Chandler said:

"His results in this direction alone mean a reduction of at least $1 a ton in the cost of producing pig iron, besides making it possible for the iron master to produce in all weathers a product of uniform quality. When one remembers that there were produced in the United States during the past year 29,000,000 tons of pig iron it will be seen that Mr. Gayley's invention of the dry air blast means a saving to the American people of $29,000,000 per annum."

The saving, Prof. Chandler explained, was accomplished by drying the air introduced into the ore furnace so that less coal was required to heat the ore to the melting point. The ridding of the air of moisture also prevented, Prof. Chandler said, defects in the iron due to bubbles from the steam generated by moisture under the old system. The perfection of the process, Prof. Chandler said, entitled Mr. Gayley to take rank as one of "our greatest industrial chemists and chemical engineers."

Mr. Gayley is the grandnephew of Sir Henry Bell, who established steam navigation on the Clyde in 1812. He was born at Lock Haven, Penn., Oct. 11, 1855, and was graduated from Lafayette College in 1876 as a mining engineer. In 1906 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1912 the same degree from Lehigh University. In 1908 he received the Elliott Cresson medal for the promotion of the mechanic arts from the Franklin Institute. He began his professional life as chemist for the Crane Iron Company in 1877, and was next Superintendent for the Missouri Furnace Company. Later he was manager of the E. & G. Brooke Company blast furnaces at Birdsboro, Penn. In 1885 he became manager of the blast furnaces of the Edgar Thomson Works, and later became a managing director of the Carnegie Steel Company. In 1901 he was made First Vice President of the United States Steel Corporation, remaining in this position until 1909.

Prof. Edward Hart of Lafayette College, Easton, Penn., of which Mr. Gayley is a Trustee and to which he gave the Gayley Chemical and Metallurgical Laboratory, spoke on Mr. Gayley's interest in education.

Other talks were made by Henry M. Howe and Rossiter W. Raymond. Mr. Gayley's remarks in accepting the medal were abbreviated by reason of his being slightly indisposed. He expressed his appreciation of the medal and the honor which it conferred.

RICH MAN'S WIDOW NOW POOR

Appeals in Court for Furniture His Daughter Is Keeping from Her.

Mrs. Margaret Coutant, the widow of Charles A. Coutant, formerly a wealthy dry goods merchant, is now almost penniless, and is dependent for her maintenance upon the furnishings of the house of which she was mistress three years ago. This appears from the petition filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in an effort to prevent further delay in an appeal to a judgment which gave her possession of the furniture, valued at $5,710. The judgment was obtained against Mr. Coutant's daughter, Mrs. Jennie Coutant Mason, who opposed Mr. Coutant's second marriage in 1909, and who drove Mrs. Margaret Coutant from the home, the widow alleges, upon the death of Mr. Coutant on June 1, 1910. Mrs. Coutant sued to obtain possession of the furniture, which she alleges was a wedding gift, and when she obtained a favorable verdict from Justice McCall, Mrs. Mason filed notice of appeal and a petition for twenty days in which to complete it. Justice Kendrick granted the twenty days extension in spite of Mrs. Coutant's petition.

Mrs. Coutant states that she has supported herself since her husband's death by acting as a lace buyer for a San Francisco house, but last December she was forced to give up owing to an attack of appendicitis. She is now unemployed.

TO REGULATE CHAUFFEURS.

Recent Murders and Hold-Ups Cited as Reason for More Stringent Laws.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Two bills designed to increase the safety of the public by the further regulation of chauffeurs were introduced in the Legislature to-day by Senator Bussey. One requires every person licensed to operate motor vehicles to file a $2,000 bond to insure payment for injury, loss or damage to persons or property resulting from unskilled or negligent management of motor vehicles.

The second measure provides that no license shall be issued to a chauffeur who has been convicted of a felony.

"Murders, hold-ups and robberies in New York, in which taxicabs, driven by professional chauffeurs, have been important agents," said Senator Bussey to-day, "have been numerous, and the police have found that there are about 200 men, either with prison or police records, who have obtained chauffeurs' licenses from the State. In some cases the police have found certain garages are owned by men who have criminal records."

A bill designed to make more stringent provisions against discrimination on account of race, creed or color in public resorts was introduced by Assemblyman Levy.

Several bills for the improvement of the condition of working women were presented. The principal one prohibits the employment of women at night in factories.

Other measures require employers to furnish comfortable seats for women who are engaged in work "which can properly be performed in a sitting posture," and authorize the "industrial board to prohibit minors under 18 years of age from working at trades and occupations it deems dangerous to health."

Bills requiring the installation of fire alarm systems and automatic sprinklers and fire drills, were also introduced. These measures will be supplemented early next week, Senator Wagner said, by bills which would compel the installation of fire escapes and exits.

WOULD ARREST LEGISLATOR.

Opponent of Senator Warren, in Wyoming, Under Charges.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 24.—Alleging that E. H. Manson, a member of the Wyoming Legislature, was F. E. Roberts, wanted in McDowell County, W. Va., for illegally obtaining $900 of school funds in 1903, Sheriff J. F. Johnson of McDowell County to-day presented to Gov. Joseph M. Carey a request from Gov. Glasscock for a requisition for the deportation of Manson.

Manson has been in the legislative limelight for ten days because, although he was elected on a Republican ticket, his vote made possible the organization of the House by Democrats. He has stated that he would not support United States Senator Warren for re-election, and has consistently voted with the Democrats on all party issues since the House was organized.

FAST FINISH WINS FOR HOCKEY CLUB

Crescents, Unable to Hold Early Lead, Drop Hockey Game by 2 Goals to 1.

In a spectacular finish the Hockey Club of New York defeated the Crescent Athletic Club last night at St. Nicholas Rink by the score of 2 goals to 1. It was one of the hardest contested hockey games of the season and marked the closing of the first half of the series of games for the championship of the Amateur Hockey League. In defeating the New Moon aggregation, the Hockey Club holds a commanding lead in the race, while the Crescents drop to third place. At one period of the game it looked very much as if the Crescents would down the Hockey Club and make a three-cornered tie, but with a 1 to 0 score against them the Hockey Club players in the second period of the contest put up a plucky uphill game and first tied the score and then, one minute before the end of the game, succeeded in easing the puck for the deciding point.

It was an interesting contest for the spectators, as the play was carried backward and forward, with little to choose between the teams. The Crescents seemed to lack their usual aggressive attacks, although their defense was sound. The Hockey Club played consistently throughout, and seldom missed an opportunity when it presented itself. The forward quartet played an effective combination game and gave several pretty exhibitions of passing.

In spite of the rivalry between the teams, the players played a clean contest during the first period, no necessity presenting itself to the officials for penalties. The second half, however, found both sides guilty of fouls. In this particular, Castleman, the Hockey Club rover, was the worst offender. Twice he was penalized for tripping, and cautioned a third time. Two Crescent players were penalized, making the offenses against the rules equal.

The intense rivalry between the teams was apparent from the start. There was no unnecessary delays and although the checking was of a strenuous character it was not of a penalty inflicting nature. The New Moon aggregation opened an attack on the Hockey Club citadel, but the goal keeper was on duty and wide awake. Piel and Scarborough played a pretty passing game and carried the puck down the ice repeatedly, but the work of Davis was flawless. Shirreff broke through on several occasions and tried long shots which went wide of the mark, or were stopped by Davis. The Hockey Club forwards lost no time in getting into action and attacked the Crescent's defense. Gordon made a clever run down the side of the rink and dodged his oponents until he was able to pass the rubber to Castleman. The latter shot it into the Crescent net, but the goal was not allowed on account of Castleman being offside.

Scrimmages were both frequent and lively, while the defense on each side was in constant requisition to repel fierce attacks. Gordon was cautioned by the referee for rough work, but was not penalized. The Hockey Club forwards redoubled their efforts near the end of the first half, and although their shooting was poor, Mills, by ding alert, was able to prevent the puck passing his stick. The playing in the latter part of the half was mostly in the Crescent territory.

There was no let up in the work of the rival players in the second half. As Shirreff was carrying the puck down the ice, Castleman tripped him and was benched for two minutes for the deliberate infraction of the rules. With their opponents weakened, the Crescents rallied, but the Hockey Club defense held strong. A second offense of tripping put Castleman out of the game for another period of two minutes, with a threat by the referee to make it permanent for a third offense. A combined attack by the Crescents was rewarded, and the Brooklyn team tallied the first point of the game. Carrying the rubber down the side of the rink, Scarborough found an opening and scored on a difficult angle shot.

Shortly after restarting, Piel of the Crescents was penalized for tripping two Hockey Club players.

The Hockey Club quickly retaliated, and after a pretty passing run by Gordon and Mackenzie, there was a lively scrimmage, from which Britton drove the puck into the net. Violations of the playing rules continued to be somewhat frequent, and Scarborough upset Castleton and went to the side lines for two minutes. The rubber was rushed up to the Crescent territory, and Mackenzie with an open field easily scored the deciding goal. The line-up and summary:

Crescent.	Position.	Hockey Club.
Mills	Goal	Davis
Kennedy	Point	White
Dufresne	Cover point	Britton
Shirreff	Rover	Castleman
Reimmond	Centre	Mackenzie
Piel	Right wing	Fredericks

Goals—Second half, Scarborough, Crescent A. C., 5:48; Britton, Hockey Club, 8:56; Mackenzie, Hockey Club, 18:26. Penalties—Castleman, Hockey Club, 2 minutes for tripping; Castleman, Hockey Club, 2 minutes for tripping; Piel, Crescent, 2 minutes for tripping; Scarborough, Crescent, 2 minutes for tripping. Referee—E. Garon, Irish-American A. C. Assistant Referee—R. Ellis, St. Nicholas Club. Goal umpires—R. Fennell, Wanderers H. C., and F. Ellison, Wanderers H. C. Timekeepers—George F. Stebbins, Crescent A. C., and R. Condon, Wanderers H. C.

Cutler Hockeyists Win.

The Cutler School hockey team defeated the seven from Horace Mann School at the St. Nicholas Rink yesterday morning by the score of 4 to 0. The winners scored twice in each half. Onativia and Post did the best work for the winning team and Liverman excelled for the losers. The line-up:

Cutler.	Position.	Horace Mann.
W. Cohu	Goal	Raymond
Dowling	Point	Wadsworth
L. Cohu	Cover point	Hamlet
Onativia	Rover	Finley
Wainwright	Centre	Warton
A. Post	Left wing	Livermann
Van Horn	Right wing	Willard

Goals—Onativia, (2.) Wainwright, Post. Referee—Mr. Cravatt, Irving. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

NEW SKATING RECORD.

Robert McLean Does Half-Mile In Amateur Race In 1:16 1-5.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24.—Another skating record was broken to-night by Robert McLean of Chicago, the amateur champion, when in a match race he skated half mile in 1:16 1-5. The previous record of 1:17 3-5 was made here three years ago by Edmund Lamy of Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Philadelphia Billiardist Wins.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 24.—T. Jones, representing Philadelphia, won over St. Louis, 50 to 42, to-night in the National Three-Cushion Billiard League tournament. Alex Broadhead opened for St. Louis, Fred Sternberg finishing. High runs—Jones, 7; Broadhead, 4; Sternberg, 4.

Billiards and Pool.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Doyle's Billiard Academy in West Forty-second Street William Thompson defeated B. Snow by the score of 28 to 17 in fifty innings. Thompson ran out his necessary 28 points with a high run of 4. Snow, who was handicapped at 26 points, made the high run of 3. This evening James Taylor will oppose S. J. Adams.

George Clark, the champion of New York State, defeated Sam Gruhn in the second block of their three-night match at "pocket billiards" last night at the Broadway Billiard Academy, Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway, by 115 points to 97, and the extra 15 points in this block brings the State champion's total for the two nights of play up to the required 200 points, while Gruhn has a total of 197 points.

In a challenge match for the cup which was won by Charles Cerf in a recent Class B 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, M. J. Doyle defeated the holder of the cup last night at the academy by the score of 150 to 135. Doyle finished second to Cerf in the tournament, and immediately challenged the winner. Cerf accepted and last night's match resulted. Doyle's average was 2 16-67, and he had a high run of 11 points. Cerf made a high run of 10 points, and averaged 2 16-66. After the match Sylvester Levy, who finished third in the tournament recently, challenged Doyle.

NEW RACING BODY.

Empire City and Parkway Tracks In Metropolitan Trotting Circuit.

The Metropolitan Trotting Circuit was organized yesterday at a meeting of well-known horsemen of this State held at the Broztell Hotel. Eleven tracks have already been admitted to the new harness racing body, and horsemen hereabout look for a revival of the sport during the coming Summer. New York City has joined the circuit, and a half-mile track will be built at Yonkers within the present mile track of the Empire City course.

The other half-mile tracks which joined the circuit yesterday are: Parkway of Brooklyn, Hohokus, Monroe, Goshen, Troy, Orangeburg, Kingston, White Plains, Mineola, and Poughkeepsie. Dates were assigned and by-laws adopted, and there is every indication that the new circuit will begin the season under auspicious circumstances, as many of the race meets will be held in conjunction with county fairs.

Plans for the new circuit were first discussed at a meeting held in this city last November, and since that time a committee has been at work with Percy W. Barton as Secretary. The circuit will open at Parkway, in Brooklyn, on July 22, for a four days' meet. The Empire City meeting will cover four days, beginning on Aug. 5.

P. W. Barton of Monroe was elected President of the circuit, George A. Coleman of Poughkeepsie Vice President, and Thomas H. Bacon of Hempstead, L. I., Secretary and Treasurer. Among those at the meeting were R. M. Williams, New York; W. E. Erler, Brooklyn; E. H. Simms, Troy; William Gibbons, New York; Percy W. Barton, New York; H. P. Murphy and L. P. Randall, Trenton, and also representatives from White Plains, Kingston, Goshen, Orangeburg, and Hohokus.

The new organization intends to hold racing meetings on half-mile tracks for uniform classes, and the circuit embraces territory in which such racing has always been popular.

The organization will race under the rules of the National Trotting Association, and any of its members may also belong to other racing organizations. The by-laws have been, in many instances, drawn up to conform with the circuit's local conditions, but many of the rules follow those of the Grand Circuit. Each member of the circuit will appoint a steward and this board will meet with the organization at Madison Square Garden on Tuesday, Feb. 4, during the mid-Winter horse sale.

It was expected that Trenton and Flemington, N. J., would join the circuit, but the representatives of these tracks withdrew at the last moment. It is expected that some of the smaller tracks may join the circuit at its February meeting. The dates which have already been assigned are as follows:

July 22-25, Parkway, Brooklyn; July 29-Aug. 1, Hohokus; Aug. 5-8, Empire City, Yonkers; Aug. 12-14, Monroe; Aug. 19-21, Goshen; Aug. 26-29, Troy; Sept. 2-5, Orangeburg; Sept. 9-11, Kingston; Sept. 16-19, White Plains; Sept. 23-29, Mineola; Sept. 30-Oct. 3, Poughkeepsie.

EVANS'S BASEBALL STORIES.

Forest Cady is now rated as one of the best catchers in the majors. An injury to Leslie Nunamaker, another member of the Boston catching staff, made it possible for Cady to attain his present prominence in the baseball world. He had the ability to take advantage of the opportunity.

Early in the season Bill Carrigan and Nunamaker were regarded as the two regulars on the Boston catching staff, with Cady and Thomas acting as bench warmers, ready to jump in at the chance. Nunamaker had joined the Red Sox the previous year, and had displayed enough ability to win him a place alongside Bill Carrigan as a regular. Both these receivers were going along so nicely in the early Spring that it didn't look as if Cady and Thomas would ever get a chance to show.

Peculiarly enough, Cady and Nunamaker were room mates. Often during a game in which Nunamaker was doing the catching, Cady would remind him to keep up the reputation of the Room. Any time Nunamaker would hit safely, Cady would always remark that the Room was now batting so and so.

On the first trip of the Red Sox to St. Louis Nunamaker broke a finger. It was a very unfortunate thing for him, but fortunate for Cady and the Boston Club. When, after an examination by the trainer, it was evident that Nunamaker would be unable to play, he yelled to Cady, who was warming up a bit, preparatory to entering the game:

"There's your chance to make good; be sure to keep up the reputation of the Room."

"Just watch me, Nuny," answered Cady, with a smile. "From now on we change places."

Cady certainly made good his threat, which was made half as a joke and half in earnest. From that day he shared catching honors with Carrigan. He got his chance and made good. It was quite a trick to turn, for there isn't a club in the majors who would not jump at a chance to get Nunamaker.

No young pitcher, yes, even veteran twirler, could have given a more masterly exhibition of pitching than did Hugh Bedient against the New York Giants. The Red Sox juvenile worked as though world's series games were exactly to his liking. His performance in the last baseball classic will go down in baseball history as a mighty artistic bit of twirling.

During the regular season Bedient always took plenty of time in delivering the ball to the batter. Bill Carrigan has always approved of such a policy. Bill knew it tended to make the batters nervous, and incidentally helped the youngster to keep his footing. In his two starts against the Giants, Bedient was even more deliberate than usual. He fondled the ball carefully after receiving it from the catcher, adjusted the landscape about the pitcher's box, took a hitch in his belt and pulled his cap down more firmly. In fact he was very careful about everything before starting to pitch.

It was a surprise to the Giants to see a young recruit so deliberate in his methods. There is no denying the fact that his style worried the Giants—the scarcity of base hits made when he was in the box is surely proof of such an assertion. That it finally got on McGraw's nerves was shown in the final game of the series. Even though the Giants were leading 1 to 0, McGraw was fretting about the way this kid pitcher was holding his hitters helpless. Finally after one longer wait than usual between pitches, McGraw, who was coaching at third, yelled to O'Loughlin who was working the plate:

"Say, Silk, the young man appears to pitch at least every five minutes."

"From the way your team is hitting the ball, that appears to be entirely too fast," shouted a Boston fan just back of third base. Even McGraw was forced to smile.

St. Nicks and Boston In Hockey.

After beating three of the best amateur hockey teams in Canada, besides Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, the Boston Athletic Association aggregation of players will try to-night to vanquish the St. Nicholas team at the St. Nicholas Skating Rink. The Boston team is unquestionably the best collection of expert puck chasers in America, and demonstrated this conclusively when they vanquished the teams of the McGill, Ottawa, and Toronto Universities. The St. Nicholas team early in the season gave the Bostons the two hardest games they played this year, the first resulting in an overtime period play and the second in a tie, and so equally matched were they in playing skill that the local hockey patrons suggested a match game to be played here. Both teams are composed of former college players, and Yale, Harvard, and Princeton will all be represented in the line-up. These two teams represent all that is best in the development of American players, and no Canadians will participate in the game.

Brooklyn College's Indoor Games.

Brooklyn College has decided to add a two-mile handicap bicycle race to the programme of events for its first annual athletic games at the Fourteenth Regiment Armory on Feb. 1. A committee of riders headed by Eddie Goodwin, the Irish-American A. C. crack, called upon the management and made a strong plea to have the event added. The race should prove one of the many features of the meet, and has already attracted such stars as Eddie Goodwin, Jack Townsend, W. Van Ben Dries, and Franklin Fisher. Entries for the event close on Jan. 28 with Joseph A. Reilly, Brooklyn College, Nostrand Avenue and Carroll Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

SHEPPARD WINS HALF MILE RACE IN ARMORY

St. Ann's Athletes Capture Point Trophy in Manhattan College Games.

Melvin W. Sheppard was the winner of the principal race last night at the games of Manhattan College, which were held in the armory of the Sixty-ninth Regiment before a crowd of enthusiasts who had gathered to witness the sports of the collegians and the members of Amateur Athletic Union clubs who competed.

Sheppard's victory was achieved through the medium of a half-mile invitation race, all of the runners in which started from scratch, the prizes having been donated by the Rev. Joseph G. Murray, an alumnus of the college. His margin of victory was only two yards, however, as Matt Geis, who recently raced in Buffalo, came very fast at the end and nipped second place from T. Kelly of the Irish-American A. C., who tried to make a runaway during the last 150 yards.

Myles McHugh, of the Pastime A. C., was the pacemaker for the first 600 yards with Sheppard in second place and Geis last. Just before the bell signal Kelly attempted to go to the front and for a fraction of the last lap he made the running only to be deposed of by Sheppard who came through with his usual great speed. McHugh and Kelly were having a merry battle for the place honors during the last hundred yards when Geis came through on the pole in the final twenty-five yards and won second honors.

The Catholic School championship relay race attracted six teams of lads connected with the institutions of this city for the prizes presented by Victor F. Ritter. A stirring race ensued in which Fordham Prep was the leader for the first relay after which they were deposed by the Manhattan Prep team to the delight of the onlookers. From that stage on it was only a question of how far the Manhattan boys would win by with the result that their margin of victory at the end was forty yards with Fordham Prep second five yards to the good of Xavier Prep, whose quartet finished third.

E. D. Maurer of the National A. C. was the winner of the 65 yards handicap dash for A. A. U. club members. In receipt of 4 feet start from Charlie Clark, Xavier A. A., he found little difficulty in reaching the worsted two feet in front of J. F. Boland, a lad from Worcester, who was on a similar mark. Clark finished third.

The Catholic Athletic League 880 yards handicap was a well run event and contained the biggest field of the evening's races. J. F. De Freyste of Loughlin Lyceum was the first man past the finish line, but he was disqualified for cutting corners, with the result that winning honors were finally bestowed upon P. J. Hynes of Ozanam Association, with V. McGrath of St. Ann's second, and one of the backmarkers, J. McCabe of Dominican Lyceum third, in the good time of 2:02 2-5.

The point trophy was won by St. Ann's with 6 points. Other teams to tally were St. Brendan's 5, Ozanam Association 5, McCadden Lyceum 5, Eymard Lyceum 3, Dominican Lyceum 2, and Paulist A. C. 1.

The summary:

176-Yard Run, Preparatory Department.—Won by J. Foley; D. McCarthy, second; J. W. Fullam, third. Time—0:23 3-5.

65-Yard Dash, Amateur Athletic Union, Handicap.—Final heat won by E. D. Meurer, National A. C., (6 feet;) J. F. Boland, St. Stephens C. T. A., Worcester, Mass., (6 feet,) second; C. B. Clark, Xavier A. A., (scratch,) third. Time—0:07 2-5.

65-Yard Dash, Catholic Athletic League, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by W. Elliott, St. Brendon's Lyceum, (9 feet;) A. B. Kelly, St. Ann's A. C., (4 feet,) second; E. J. Ward, Paulist A. C., (2 feet,) third. Time—0:07 1-5.

One-Mile Run, Novice, A. A. U.—Won by A. Hoehn, St. Paul's Lyceum; J. McCarthy, St. Vincent Ferrer A. C., second; J. Durkee, unattached, third. Time—5:06 2-5.

900-Yard Run, Preparatory Department, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by T. Kelly, (scratch;) F. Frial, (19 yards,) second; B. McEntegart, (15 yards,) third. Time—0:39 2-5.

880-Yard Run, Catholic Athletic League, Handicap.—Won by P. J. Hynes, Ozanam Association, (36 yards;) V. McGrath, St. Ann's A. C., (45 yards,) second; J. McCabe, Dominican Lyceum, (10 yards,) third. Time—2:02 2-5.

Four-Lap (704 Yards) Relay, Parochial Schools.—Final won by St. Gabriel's School first team; Cathedral School team, second; St. Gabriel's second team, third. Time—1:32.

1,408-Yard Relay, Catholic High School Championship.—Won by Manhattan Prep, team, made up of J. P. O'Donnell, A. Dougherty, F. Houlihan, and E. J. Ward; Fordham Prep. team, second; Xavier Prep. team, third. Time—2:57 1-5.

880-Yard Run, Special Invitation.—Won by Melvin W. Sheppard, Irish-American A. C.; M. T. Geis, unattached, second; T. Kelly, Irish-American A. C., third. Time—2:01 1-5.

Eight-Lap (1,078-Yard) Relay, Inter-Class College, Handicap.—Won by 1918 team, made up of S. Lally, W. C. Ryan, C. Duffy, J. Carey, (scratch;) 1915 team, (25 yards,) second; 1914 team, (15 yards,) third. Time—2:00.

300-Yard Run, Catholic Athletic League, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by L. Condon, McCadden Lyceum, (6 yards;) E. D. Guilfoyle, Eymard Lyceum, (4 yards,) second; E. J. Schleich, Dominican Lyceum, (penalty 3 yards,) third. Time—0:36 1-5.

NATIONAL RACQUET DOUBLES.

Davis and Wear of St. Louis Beat Crane and Bartlett of Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 24.—Dwight Davis, the former United States lawn tennis champion, and J. Wear, both of St. Louis, won the first match in the National doubles championship in racquets to-day at the Tennis and Racquet Club. They were matched against two Boston players, Joshua Crane, a former champion in singles and a former Harvard football coach, who, playing with M. B. Bartlett, also of Boston, was beaten four straight games by scores of 15—3, 15—10, 15—6, and 15—12.

M. Smith and C. Greenshield of Montreal also were drawn to play to-day against C. Hutchins and Barrett Wendell, Jr., of Boston, but the Canadians were unable to come to Boston, and, therefore, defaulted. It was Dwight Davis's first appearance in this section of the country as a racquet player, but judging from the merit of his play to-day he takes as naturally to racquets as to lawn tennis. He and his partner showed a remarkably good team-game, and the pair is accepted as being the most likely to play George R. Fearing and Quincy A. Shaw, the Boston players who won the championship last year in Philadelphia, and who are again in line to hold their title. Davis and Wear will play the championship team to-morrow at noon. Mr. Fearing refereed this afternoon's match and appeared to be impressed with the play of the young Western team.

The other match to-morrow will be played between Hutchins and Wendell and Percy D. Haughton and H. D. Scott, all of Boston. Haughton has been a champion in singles and is the present football coach at Harvard. To-morrow, also, a special match will be played between Fred Hawes, the Montreal professional, and Fritz Mocker, of the Tennis and Racquet Club here.

Much disappointment is felt over the failure of the entries from the New York and Philadelphia players to arrive on time. Last Friday was the closing date for the entries for the doubles championships, but those from Philadelphia and New York were not received until last Monday, and consequently were not accepted.

One-Round Hogan and Lore to Box.

"One-Round" Hogan and Johnny Lore have been matched for a ten-round bout at the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club next Thursday night. This contest is to be one of three ten-rounders, the other two bringing together heavyweights. The four best "hopes" obtainable will be matched. The aspirants for heavyweight honors who will probably box will be Tom Kennedy, Soldier Kearns, Art Nelson, Vic McLaughlin, or Jim Coffey.

THORPE NOT PROFESSIONAL.

Manager Clancy Denies Accusations Alleged to Have Come from Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Jan. 24.—In an interview here this evening Coach Warner of the Carlisle Indian School, when asked what basis there was for rumored charges that James Thorpe, the world's all around champion athlete, had played professional ball, said:

"All I know about the charges against Thorpe have been gleaned from newspaper reports to the effect that a Mr. Clancy, Manager of a Southern ball team, has been quoted as saying that Thorpe played professional baseball with the Winston-Salem team under his management. I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. Clancy to-day in which he incloses a newspaper clipping, in which he has formally denied ever making the statement attributed to him in an alleged interview published in The Worcester Telegram. Mr. Clancy says: 'I never made the statement that I signed Thorpe to pitch for my club, nor did I in any way question his amateur standing. I intend writing to President Sullivan of the Amateur Athletic Union to-day inclosing the article and explaining to him that it was absolutely all wrong.'

"In Mr. Clancy's letter to me, he further stated: 'As a matter of fact and record, Mr. Thorpe has never pitched a game of ball for the Winston-Salem team or played in any other position in that club, or in the Carolina League, and I have never paid Thorpe any money any time for any purpose. The article in the Worcester paper is not founded on facts, and was published without my authority.'"

Mr. Warner further said that these clippings and this letter comprehend all he knows about the subject, and it seems that there is absolutely nothing to the story. He concluded by saying: "I am further assured by Thorpe that there is nothing in the story."

Champions In Fordham Games.

Donald Lippencott of the University of Pennsylvania, whose sprinting was one of the sensations of the Olympic games in Stockholm last Summer, will be a competitor in the games of Fordham University to-night in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. The wearer of the Red and Blue will be arrayed against such stellar performers over the seventy-yard route as Howard Drew of the Springfield High School; Alvah T. Meyer, the indoor title holder; Fred Burns of the Boston A. A.; Frank Stephenson, the junior champion, and others. Glenn Warner of the Carlisle School wired the entry of Jim Thorpe, the most wonderful athlete in the world, as a competitor in the sports, and the all-around champion is slated as a starter in the games, which will embrace many of the best athletes in the United States, several of whom are Olympic winners.

New Athletic League.

A new body of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. was recently organized by representatives from all Finnish, Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian athletic clubs in New York and vicinity. The organization adopted the name Scandinavian-American Athletic League of the United States and decided to hold championship tournaments and meets to encourage interest in athletics. The officers elected for the first year were as follows: President—Charles F. Erickson, Norwegian Turn Society, Brooklyn; Vice President—J. Engoth, Finnish-American A. C., New York; Secretary—Th. Tengwall, Swedish-American A. C., Brooklyn; Treasurer—W. Osterberg, Swedish-American A. C., Brooklyn.

Fencing for Manrique Trophy.

Fencers are looking forward to Feb. 1, the night of the annual three-man team junior foil competition for the Manrique Trophy, which will be held in the gymnasium of the Central Y. M. C. A., 11 Bond Street, Brooklyn, on that evening. To date the following organizations have entered teams: Yale, Columbia, Springfield, Carnegie Fencers' Club, New York A. C., West Side Y. M. C. A., Polytechnic School, and the Central Y. M. C. A., and in all probability the New York Fencers' Club and New York Turn Verein will be found among the contestants. This competition is sanctioned by the Amateur Fencers' League of America, which organization is doing much to promote the sport. All who desire to witness the contest will receive invitations upon applying at the Central Y. M. C. A.

Covert Makes Perfect Score.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 24.—Twenty-five straight in a tie shoot-off at ninety-five won the preliminary trophy and the added money of the sixth annual midwinter trap shooting handicap to-day for B. V. Covert of the Audubon Club, Buffalo, from Allen Heil of Allentown, Penn., who scored 21 in the shoot-off. Mr. Covert shot from the 18-yard mark and Mr. Heil from the 23-yard line. In connection with the event was a special class competition, in which the President's Cup was won by Dr. D. L. Culver, who made 93.

C. W. Billings of Glen Ridge and Thomas Lenane, Jr., of New York made 92, and David T. Leahy of New York was one of five to make 89. H. H. Shannon of New York made 87 and tied with F. D. Kelsey of East Aurora. F. S. Wright, winner of Wednesday's sweepstakes, made 84 and tied with F. A. Hodgman of Tuckahoe. A. W. Church of Port Chester was one of the 83 point men, and he led B. M. Higginson of Newburg, who was high gun yesterday, by two targets. F. S. Wright of Buffalo won the morning sweepstakes.

New York A. C. Sub-Committees.

Announcement was made last night of the sub-committees, the members of which will have charge of the many sports sponsored by the New York Athletic Club, named by William H. Page, the recently elected President of the club. Following the custom, Capt. Paul Pilgrim, with the authority of the Board of Governors, appointed Dr. John M. Breen, First Lieutenant, and Arthur McAleenan, Second Lieutenant. Hugh H. Baxter will act as handicapper, a position which he has fulfilled satisfactorily for some years past. The members of the various committees follow:

Track and Field.—Hugh H. Baxter, Chairman; Edward Frick, and Paul H. Pilgrim.

Boxing.—Lawrence M. D. McGuire.

Wrestling.—Richard H. Jaeckel, Chairman.

Gymnasium.—William E. McCredy, Chairman; John F. Byrne, and George H. Mallett.

Baseball.—John M. Breen, Chairman; John F. Byrne, and C. D. Trudenbach.

Fencing.—B. F. O'Connor, Chairman; P. W. Allison, C. A. Bill, J. E. Gignoux, and Samuel Mulford.

Tennis.—Rufus Davis, Chairman; B. S. Dennis, L. H. Freedman, L. B. Le Duc, and Alberto Leon, Jr.

Rowing.—James A. Miller, Jr., Chairman; Hugh H. Baxter, James Cremins, Paul H. Pilgrim, and Charles F. Quinn.

Trap Shooting.—D. F. McMahon, Chairman; R. R. Debacher, E. R. De Wolfe, B. Maynard Higginson, and William D. Ogden.

Skating.—Mortimer Bishop, Chairman; J. A. Fenwick, Arthur G. Keane, Frank M. Knight, and George D. Phillips.

Hockey.—Benjamin N. Rhodes, Chairman; Robert A. Scott, F. W. Brooks, George D. Phillips, and Otto Wagner.

Swimming.—Arthur McAleenan, Chairman; Charles A. S. Hatfield, Paul H. Pilgrim, Joseph A. Ruddy, and Otto Wahle.

Bicycling.—A. Parker Smith, Chairman; William E. McCredy, and Frederick Olsen.

Trophy.—Dr. B. F. O'Connor, H. E. Buermeyer, A. H. Curtis, G. D. Phillips, and W. S. Wilson.

JACK MURRAY BRINGS UNSIGNED CONTRACT

Giant Outfielder, However, Says He Is Not a "Holdout"—Devore In Line.

Jack Murray, the Giant outfielder, came to town yesterday from his home in Elmira to have a talk with Manager McGraw. Jack said emphatically that he was not a "holdout," although he has not signed his contract for next season. He expects to sign, however, in a few days.

Manager McGraw has contracted a severe cold during the past days of wet weather, and has been advised by his physician to remain in bed for a few days.

McGraw has a mild type of grip, and it may keep him from his office longer than he expects. He has been planning to finish his work here in the next couple of weeks, so that he would be able to go to Texas a week before the recruits arrive there, on Feb. 20. One reason the Giant manager wants to go there early is to get into actual training himself. He now weighs about 200 pounds, and he expects to take off 15 or 20 pounds before the opening of the season.

Josh Devore sent his signed contract to Secretary Foster yesterday. Manager McGraw has no intention of trading Devore to Boston. Manager Stallings has made the New York club a proposition for some players, but the suggestion did not interest the local management.

President Hempstead of the New York Club went to Indianapolis yesterday for a few days.

Manager Chance of the Yankees is trying to persuade Heinie Peitz, the old Pittsburgh catcher, to join the New York club to develop the young pitchers. Peitz was with the Reds last season. Chance thinks that the old backstop is one of the best of coachers and would be just the man to handle the Yankee boxmen. It is likely that Peitz will accept Chance's offer and go to Bermuda with the club. It is several seasons since the Yankees have had a veteran catcher to work out the new pitchers in Spring training.

The Thompson brothers of the University of Georgia, who were signed last season by Manager Wolverton, have been sold to the Birmingham Club of the Southern Association.

The management of the Boston Red Sox have listened to the cry of Boston fans for "25-cent ball," and next season, at Fenway Park, there will be 8,000 quarter seats, more than at any major league park in the country.

Hughey Jennings, the Detroit manager, who is vaudevilling here this week, laughs at the intimation that has been made that there is a "holdout" pact among some of the star Tiger players because of a personal dislike for the sprightly manager. Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, and Jean Dubuc are among the reported holdouts. The idea that Cobb would be a party to a frame-up to humiliate the Tiger leader is not taken seriously, because Jennings and Cobb have always been good friends.

For that matter, Jennings is liked generally by his players. The blame for the story of rebellion against Jennings was probably actuated by Davy Jones, who was very much disappointed because he didn't get the increase in salary he wanted, just before he was sold to the White Sox. Jones was one of the leading spirits in the strike of the Detroit Club last season. Since that time the club has not been able to get back to its normal condition, and Jones was probably released because of his activity among the players. Manager Jennings believes that Cobb, Crawford, and Dubuc will be in line before it is time to start South.

International League Umpires.

President Barrow of the International League yesterday announced that he had completed his staff of umpires for 1913 by signing William Finneran of Erie, Penn. Only three members of last year's staff will return to the league this season. They are Mullen, Carpenter, and Nallim. The new members are O'Toole of the Western League, Quigley of the New York State, Hayes and Bierhalter of the American Association, and Finneran of the National League.

President Barrow has issued a call for the International League schedule meeting, Monday, Feb. 10, at the Victoria Hotel, New York.

Central League to Branch Out.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 24.—That the Central League is planning to place a club in an American Association city, preferably Indianapolis or Columbus, became known to-day as a result of South Bend's effort to regain its franchise, which was forfeited at the recent league meeting. It is said that the owners of the Indianoplis Club of the American Association favor the proposition.

Southerland and McElwee In Final.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24.—A. F. Southerland of Garden City got into the finals of the New Year's golf tournament to-day by defeating Vincent B. Hubbell of Englewood 4-3, and to the surprise of most of the golf critics. In the second divison B. F. Kroger of Cincinnati defeated E. W. Edwards of Cincinnati 1 up, though Edwards has been able to give Kroger odds heretofore. Kroger was 3 down at the turn, and even on the sixteenth green. Southerland will play R. H. McElwee of Onwentsia for the championship to-morrow, McElwee having won 1 up, from A. A. Stagg of Chicago. Stagg held the lead during the first half of the round. The summaries:

First Division, Semi-final.—R. H. McElwee, Onwentsia, defeated A. A. Stagg, Chicago, 1 up; A. F. Southerland, Garden City, defeated V. B. Hubbell, Englewood, 4 and 3.

Second Division, Final.—B. H. Kroger, Cincinnati, defeated E. W. Edwards, Cincinnati, 1 up.

Consolation Division, Semi-final.—H. K. Bolton, Onwentsia, defeated F. W. Lightner, Town and Country, 3 and 1; L. E. Martin, Oakley, defeated G. C. Vandusen, Minnikahda, 4 and 2.

Columbia Riflemen Beat Cornell.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The result of the third round in the intercollegiate series of gallery rifle shooting matches for the college championship was announced to-day by the National Rifle Association as follows: Dartmouth, 902; Clemson Agricultural, 850; Columbia, 939; Cornell, 886; Lehigh, 888; Rhode Island State, 668; Massachusetts Aggies, 954; Princeton, 944; Norwich, 912; Vermont, 877; Massachusetts Tech., 929; North Georgia Aggies, 901; Harvard, 950; Maine, 839; California, 887; Kansas, 783; Wisconsin, 873; Louisiana State, 858; Minnesota, 924; Washington State, 862; West Virginia, 931; Michigan Aggies, 921; Nebraska, 828; United States Veterinary, 820; Iowa, 928; Purdue, 901; Oklahoma A. and M., with 866, won by default from Missouri.

CHESS STARS WIN MATCHES.

Capablanca Retains First Place with Four Consecutive Victories.

With most of the favorites winning in yesterday's fourth round of chess at the Café Boulevard, Jose R. Capablanca kept his place at the head of the fourteen experts competing for National honors in the second American tournament now in progress in this city. Capablanca made it four straight by winning from J. H. Morrison of Toronto, the Canadian champion; F. J. Marshall scored at the expense of H. Liebenstein of Baltimore; David Janowski of Paris outwitted A. Kupchik of this city, and Charles Jaffe took into camp Harry Kline of Boston. These results left Jaffe and Chajes, who meet to-day, tied for second place, only a half point behind Capablanca, with Marshall a good third.

Capablanca had little trouble with Morrison, winning a pawn on the thirteenth move. Later the Cuban castled on the queen's side of the board, and, after the Canadian had refused to exchange queens, bottled up a white bishop. Capablanca won in twenty-four moves. The summary:

	WHITE.	BLACK.
Bds.
1—Chajes	1	Stapfer 0
2—Marshall	1	Liebenstein 0
3—Whitaker	1	Zapoleon 0
4—Janowski	1	Kupchik 0
5—Morrison	0	Capablanca 1
6—Tenenwurzel	1	Rubinstein 0
7—Jaffe	1	Kline 0

The openings: 1, Queen's pawn; 2, Danish gambit; 3, French defense; 4, Ruy Lopez; 5, Queen's pawn; 6, Queen's pawn; 7, Ponziani.

After four rounds the contestants have the following scores:

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
Capablanca	4	0	Stapfer	2	2
Chajes	3½	½	Whitaker	1½	2½
Jaffe	3½	½	Kline	1	3
Marshall	3	1	Rubinstein	1	3
Tenenwurzel	3	1	Morrison	½	3½
Janowski	2½	1½	Zapoleon	½	3½
Kupchik	2	2	Liebenstein	0	4

To-day, in the fifth round, also scheduled to be played at the Café Boulevard, the experts will be paired as follows: Capablanca vs. Tenenwurzel, Kupchik vs. Morrison, Zapolean vs. Janowski, Liebenstein vs. Whitaker, Stapfer vs. Marshall, Jaffe vs. Chajes, Kline vs. Rubinstein.

PUTNAM'S NEW BOOKS

Positive Evolution of Religion

Its Moral and Social Reaction

By FREDERIC HARRISON

8°. $2.00 net. By mail, $2.20.

The author has undertaken to estimate the moral and social reaction of various forms of Religion—beginning with Nature Worship, Polytheism, Catholicism, Protestantism, and Deism. The volume may be looked upon as the final word, the summary of the celebrated author's philosophy—a systematic study of the entire religious problem.

The Story of the Borgias

By JOHN FYVIE

Photogravure Frontispiece and Four Other Illustrations.

$4.50 net. By mail, $4.75.

A true history of this extraordinary family, after a careful sifting of all fresh evidence. They were magnetic personalities and their story is as intensely interesting and as profoundly tragic as anything in the whole range of fiction.

My Autobiography

By MADAME JUDITH

Of the Comédie Française.

With Photogravure Frontispiece.

$3.50. By mail, $3.75.

The memoirs of a brilliantly gifted and fascinating life extending over a deeply interesting period of French history, commencing with the Revolution that ushered in the Second Empire, and ending with the foundation of the Republic after the Franco-Prussian War.

The Evolution of States

By J. M. ROBERTSON

8°. $2.50 net. By mail, $2.70.

The author presents the following topics: "Political Forces in Ancient History," "Economic Forces in Ancient History," "Culture Forces in Antiquity," "The Case of the Italian Republics," "The Fortunes of the Lesser European States," "English History till the Constitutional Period."

The Childhood of Art or The Ascent of Man

A Sketch of the Vicissitudes of His Upward Struggle. Based Chiefly on the Relics of His Artistic Work in Prehistoric Times.

By H. G. SPEARING, M. A.

8°. With 16 plates in color and 482 other illustrations.

$6.00. By mail $6.50.

A searching inquiry into the vestiges of primitive art left by palaeolithic and by neolithic man and into the crude beginnings of some of the great art movements of antiquity. Is a comprehensive account of the graphic and plastic arts from the animal talismans of the reindeer men to the first artistic gropings of the Greeks.

The Technique of Painting

By CHARLES MOREAU VAUTHIER

8°. With numerous plates in color and black and white.

$3.50 net. By mail, $3.75.

The author analyzes the methods of all the masters from Apelles to the Impressionists of yesterday and the "Futurists" of to-day. Numerous colored plates illustrate his observations, and each of these reproduces a fragment of the picture on the same scale as the original, showing its handling, its coloring, its impasto, and the direction of the brush strokes. A reduction in black and white gives the entire picture.

OUT TO DAY

JOCASTA AND THE FAMISHED CAT.

By Anatole France. Translation by Agnes Farley. Of the many volumes of fiction written by Anatole France, "Jocasta" is the first novel. In this, as in all his writings, his work is illuminated with style, scholarship and psychology. Its outstanding features are the lambent wit, the gay mockery, the genial irony with which he touches every subject he treats. But the wit is never malicious, the mockery never derisive, the irony never barbed. Cloth, $1.75 net. Postage 15 cents.

The following titles, by ANATOLE FRANCE, uniform with set, will appear during the coming season:—THE GODS ARE ATHIRST, THE ASPIRATIONS OF JEAN SERVIEN, THE OPINIONS OF JEROME COIGNARD, MY FRIEND'S BOOK, ON LIFE AND LETTERS.

CROSS VIEWS. By Wilfrid S. Jackson. Mr. Jackson discourses on a wide range of subjects, always in a charming and tolerant vein. The essays cover such topics as: Marriage and Divorce—Woman—Selfishness and Other Virtues—In a Garden, etc. Cloth, $1.25 net. Postage 10 cents.

A STRUGGLE FOR BREAD. By "A Rifleman." This book is a reply to MR. NORMAN ANGELL'S well-known work, "THE GREAT ILLUSION," and also an enquiry into the present economic state of Europe. Cloth, $1.50 net. Postage 12 cents.

Fourth Printing Already!

The Happy Warrior

By A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

THE reception accorded Mr. Hutchinson's new novel indicates that it is destined to be as great a success in this country as it is in England, where it has been pronounced "the outstanding novel of the season." Four large printings have already been required and the discriminating American critics are most enthusiastic.

SOME TYPICAL OPINIONS:

The Boston Transcript says:

"A novel of exceptional merit and distinction. . . . A narrative and descriptive style of writing that is as delightful and inspiring as the story itself. . . . His romance and his humor are all his own. . . . Few novels exist in which the characters are as viable as Mr. Hutchinson's."

The New York World says:

"The young English author scores brilliantly again. . . . 'The Happy Warrior' is a book of the out-of-doors and of the heart of youth. It is written in words that bound."

The Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer says:

"Not since the 'Broad Highway' has there been an English story of such marked merit."

Fremont Rider in Publishers' Weekly says:

"A wonderful novel, of which it is only difficult to speak with moderation—so fresh in phrase and style, so searching in analysis, so fine in spirit."

The Boston Herald says:

"In a word, it is a great book."

TWO NOVELISTS WHO HAVE ARRIVED

LANCHESTER OF BRAZENOSE. By Ronald MacDonald. Raymond Lanchester is a modern knight of chivalry who, in loyalty to an unfaithful wife and for love of his little son, takes upon his own shoulders the burden of another's crime. "Divvy-Di," a young actress friend, comes to his rescue and, by some clever amateur detective work, brings to light a writer of anonymous letters who is spreading misery far and wide. The story ends with the reconciliation of friends long parted and the well-earned happiness of Lanchester and "Divvy-Di." Cloth, $1.30 net. Postage 12 cents.

THE FIFTH TRUMPET. By Paul Bertram. This novel deals with the 15th century supremacy of the Church in Europe. Mingled with the absorbing love story that runs through the pages are the prison scenes that deal with the intrigues of Cardinals and Princes. America of to-day groans under an oppression not less crushing because its source is political rather than ecclesiastical. The reader will find many analogous points between the conditions of the period of this story and the actual life of to-day. Cloth, $1.25 net. Postage 12 cents.

JOHN LANE'S TWO DISCOVERIES

TOPHAM'S FOLLY. By George Stevenson.

Here is a novelist new indeed, not only in the sense that this is his first book, but new in that he gives to the reader an entirely fresh outlook on familiar things. The narrative in its leisurely grace resembles Trollope; Mr. Hardy might have written some of the passages describing country life and country people; but for sheer brilliance of style and exquisite characterization it is impossible to think of another author who could have written "Topham's Folly." Cloth, $1.30 net. Postage 12 cents.

THE FINGER OF MR. BLEE. (A Tropical Comedy.) By Peter Blundell. Blee the irrepressible; mirthful, loyal-hearted, ubiquitous BLEE. Beg pardon, MR. Blee. It is impossible to describe his drolleries, or picture his pranks in one short sentence. Imagine, if you will, a youthful Eurasian, with supple limbs and glib tongue, using them in the interest of his British employer in order to thwart the shady schemes of the pompous merchant who, with his gorgonizing wife, heads the rival faction of local British society. The book is a dish of fresh, sun-kissed humor, spicily garnished with that prize pickle—Mr. Blee. Cloth, $1.25 net. Postage 12 cents.

BUNKER BEAN

By HARRY LEON WILSON
Author of "The Spenders," etc.

Some Bunkerisms

"Some dame, that. Just sent me a little old last year's car."

"I can imagine nothing of less consequence."

"Fumed eggs, hundred p'cent efficient." (Do you know what they are? Bunker was married on them.)

BUNKER BEAN wore the best $18.00 suit in America and heartily despised the detachable cuffs of his millionaire employer as he took dictation. He admired his friend Bulger immensely because he cultivated the air of a wealthy amateur with a passion for typewriting, and was an "advanced dresser." Yet Bunker hadn't the courage to wear anything but the most sober hues himself. Altogether, Bunker was as timid a male in maturity as could be found—that is, he was until he found out through a clairvoyant that he had been Napoleon in a previous incarnation. From that moment his life changed; the spirit of the Corsican descended upon him from the bloody past, and the youth who formerly shrank under the gaze of a friendly policeman now walked with the memories of Moscow and Austerlitz forever in mind.

But we spoil Mr. Wilson's story. You'll roar with the humor and cleverness of it. It is supremely laughable.

THE PARASITE

By HELEN R. MARTIN

Illustrated, $1.25 Net. Postpaid, $1.37

A Startling New Novel
by the author of Tillie, a Mennonite Maid

A brave and discerning presentment of a problem vital to every one, is this strong story of Joan Laird and Judge Randall, married only in name. It might well be termed "a novel of the unexpected," and is radically different from any of Mrs. Martin's former stories. Joan's unusual situation in the family of the Judge gives rise to individual and social problems of deep interest, which the author handles in a startling manner. The characters are intensely human and will live in the pages of this book as people you have known. "The Parasite" is a powerful revelation of human character and a phase of American social life.

MR. KNOX'S PLEADING.

Secretary KNOX's long letter as to the Toll act makes, so far as we can see, but two points. One is that the protest of Sir EDWARD GREY is premature. Nothing has really been done yet. British shipping has suffered no injustice or inequality. If, and when, it does suffer, it will be time enough to discuss and arbitrate the matter. This really seems pretty near quibbling. One of the prime uses of diplomacy is to prevent misunderstandings and guard the future.

The second point is that the provision of the Toll act of which complaint is made is, in reality, a subsidy which Great Britain concedes might be unobjectionable. This is not an inference from Mr. KNOX's argument; it is the statement that he makes specifically and without qualification. Here are his words:

> The exemption of the coastwise trade from tolls, or the refunding of tolls collected from the coastwise trade, is merely a subsidy granted by the United States to that trade, and the loss, resulting from not collecting or from refunding those tolls, will fall solely upon the United States.

He figures this out in the following fashion: The United States is running the canal at a loss. If it does not collect tolls on its coastwise trade its loss is by so much the greater. Indeed, he intimates that by running the canal at a loss we are really subsidizing the shipping of the world. Putting aside this rather fanciful ratiocination there remain two features of the case to which the Secretary hardly pays adequate attention. One is that, though we may be losing money on the canal, it does not make the terms of its use "just and equal" when the vessels of other nations pay tolls and ours pay none. The other feature is that if the friends of the Toll act had proposed a subsidy to offset the tolls paid by our coastwise shipping they could never have got it.

It was really bad enough to engineer through Congress a measure in aid of the coastwise monopoly in a form that involved us in a serious difference with Great Britain and that has stirred public opinion in our own country deeply. It does not make that act any more tolerable to plead that it was a trick, a disguised subsidy, which, stripped of its disguise, would have been scornfully rejected, as every subsidy proposition has been rejected for years, even when the Republicans were at the height of their power. We especially commend this cynical plea of the State Department to those Democrats who have been moved to sustain the Toll act. If there is one principle on which Democrats are definitely and firmly pledged it is opposition to shipping subsidies. And if there is one form of shipping subsidies utterly inexcusable and repugnant, it is a subsidy to a monopoly. On the showing that Mr. KNOX makes on his plea, naked and unashamed, that the remission of tolls to the coastwise monopoly was in effect and in intention a subsidy, every honest Democrat who voted for it should be moved to vote for its repeal. If for purposes of argument with Great Britain the Toll act authorizes a subsidy, then treat it as a subsidy act should be treated. Repeal it.

Of course, so far as our relations with foreign nations are concerned, the real point in the case is that we cannot change the nature and effect of the Toll act by saying that we intended a subsidy. Congress did not intend a subsidy, and would have thrown out the act had it been seen to involve a subsidy. It did intend to remit on our coastwise vessels the tolls that were to be charged on the vessels of other nations, and that was a plain violation of our treaty obligations. It was a disgraceful thing to do. It should be undone.

WHY NOT?

Arguing before the Inter-State Commerce Committee, Representative STANLEY contended that the ownership of railways should be forbidden to industrial corporations. It is idle, in the Representative's opinion, to forbid railways to own mines or manufacturing concerns, or carry commodities which they own, unless the opposite is forbidden. It is a great idea and of broader application than the Representative suggested. For example, steamships owned by railways are forbidden transit through Panama, but nothing is said about the passage of steamships which may own railways, or which may control the operation of railways. There is some danger that some freight carriers may take the Panama route unless all are forbidden. If either thing is forbidden, the other ought to be by equality and similarity of argument.

The idea in both cases is the same, namely, to make profits by combination of resources and to command trade by superiority of accommodation. In the alluring words of Phoebe Snow, uttered with an assurance which we are surprised to remark in the case of such a shrinking and spotless young woman, "two roads unite to expedite" the traveler on his way. Is it too much to hope that the Grand Jury will take notice of this confession of conspiracy, and that Representative STANLEY will introduce a suitable law? Is it not time that there was a law against everything?

THE UPSET IN TURKEY.

The overthrow of the Turkish Government on Thursday, with its possible consequences, has created great confusion and some consternation in Europe. These are not lessened by the extreme ease and rapidity with which the overthrow was accomplished. Indeed the suspicion is not wholly unreasonable that the Ministers were riding for a fall. The hostile demonstration does not seem to have been formidable, and the change of Ministers was as prompt and quiet as if it were caused by a mere adverse vote in Parliament.

There is some reason to hope that even the Young Turks, now that they are again in possession, may find it advisable to yield to overwhelming pressure. But the chance that they will not, that they will really essay a fight to the death, is only too serious. If it come about, it will involve possibilities that one hesitates to contemplate.

TRADES UNIONS AND IMMIGRATION

Mr. GOMPERS is at Washington to give the President reasons why the literacy test should be applied to prevent an increase in the supply of labor. According to a telegram, "Labor unions generally favor this provision." Unionists think it to their interest to work no more than they can prevent by limiting their labor either by laws of their own or of the Legislatures.

This is not the same thing as limiting excessive labor for reasons of humanity. It is a deliberate policy of unionism to "make work" by limiting the number of laborers, by limiting production by each worker, by preventing work altogether by non-unionists, even on union terms, and by other practices in the name of uplift of society, but really for class interest and contrary to the common welfare of those who find earning their living a burden too great to bear.

The literacy test excludes brawn and does not exclude undesirables. If coarse labor is not allowed to come in either coarse work must go undone or it must be done by a class of labor which despises both that sort of work and the pay which goes with it. The President would do well to hear Mr. GOMPERS and to give his advice the attention it deserves.

PROGRESS OF THE SUFFRAGISTS.

After the decision of the Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. LOWTHER, on Thursday, that a woman suffrage amendment to the Franchise Reform bill would so change its character as to make it a new bill, to be formally introduced in the regular way, the defeat of Sir EDWARD GREY's motion seems assured. It may be voted down on Monday or the vote may be avoided and the bill withdrawn. The Speakership is a strictly non-partisan office. Mr. LOWTHER is a Conservative, but was elected from Penrith, Cumberland, without opposition. Politics, therefore, did not influence this decision in a matter of Parliamentary law, though politics unquestionably influenced the Chancellor of the Exchequer's statement that there was no precedent for such a ruling.

There are, to be sure, few if any precedents connected with woman suffrage in Parliamentary history. The British suffragists are fond of harking back to JOHN STUART MILL as the American suffragists are of tracing the history of the movement to ELISABETH CADY STANTON and her associates. But in neither England nor America has the question of woman suffrage become vital until recently. Whatever may be done with the amendment to the Franchise Reform bill, the question is now squarely before Parliament for the first time. Ministerial sagacity has, until now, warded off the contest. But the issue must be met, sooner or later.

In our own country the woman suffragists are making perceptible progress. In this State the revised woman suffrage amendment passed the Senate yesterday, and will probably pass the Assembly Monday. It must be passed again by both houses in another session before it can be submitted to popular vote. Then it is likely to be accepted, though comparatively few votes may be cast for or against it. If either the suffragists or their opponents are anxious to get out a large vote in 1915 they should begin their campaign of education without delay. In this country the growth of the woman suffrage idea has not been accompanied by many spectacular incidents. What is called militancy has been rare. The window smashers, baiters of Cabinet Ministers, and destroyers of the mail have hurt their cause in Great Britain. They will hurt it more if they carry out their threats to do more smashing, destroying, and baiting than ever before unless there is a favorable vote on the Grey amendment, and will seriously compromise their friends in Parliament.

When all the evidences of progress are considered, it is clear that the day when women will generally be privileged to vote is still a long way off, on both sides of the ocean, and for that we may well be thankful. A multitude of evils will fall upon all womankind when the comparatively few agitators for the right to vote have won their victory.

IT WILL HELP PICKPOCKETS.

A recent decision of the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, in the case of The People vs. BENJAMIN GOLDFARB, seems to make it easy for pickpockets caught in the act to get off scot free. In Judge INGRAHAM's dissenting opinion in this case it is stated that GOLDFARB was arrested and charged with "disturbing the peace, and did then "and there push and jostle passengers "and put his hand on the person of "several passengers." The police officer brought his charge under Section 1,458 of the Consolidation act, which prohibits disorderly conduct on a public conveyance. The officer did not mention Section 720 of the Penal Code, which provides that annoyance of a passenger on a public conveyance, short of assault and battery, amounts to a misdemeanor. "As I read the record," Judge INGRAHAM says, "the "defendant was never placed upon "trial for a violation of the Consolida- "tion act." The Judge directed, however, that a new charge be made to "obtain a more specific statement of "the facts under Section 720 of the "Penal Code."

This statement agrees substantially with the statement of the majority opinion, which ruled that the defendant had been put twice in jeopardy. Under this ruling, Chief Magistrate MCADOO says, it is possible for a policeman to catch a pickpocket red-handed and, if bribed, to bring against him a minor charge; if at the preliminary examination the Magistrate finds that the charge should be graver and more specific, and directs its revision, the pickpocket is automatically freed. Several cases involving either graft or blundering in the early formulation of charges have already ended in this way since the Appellate Court's decision was rendered. The agencies for law enforcement in this city are awaiting with considerable interest the final adjudication of the Goldfarb case by the Court of Appeals.

NEW INSURANCE BUSINESS.

Few who should insure their lives or their health perform this duty of their own prompting. There is an inborn reluctance to consider the contingencies of death, disease, and accident. Therefore the persistence and assiduity of insurance agents, while sometimes annoying, are necessary, praiseworthy. They act as external consciences. For this reason the law limiting the production of "new business" by life insurance companies enacted in this State after the disclosures of extravagant management in the Armstrong investigation has been found impractical.

That law has been amended to permit the companies to increase their business in proportion to their saving of expenditures; the amendment really encourages economy. But that is not enough. As The Spectator notes in its current issue, the legitimate activities of agencies have offered business to New York's life insurance companies, which under the amended law must be rejected. Therefore many persons have "had to wait until after the close of the year for insurance on their lives."

A bill further amending the law has been introduced, which permits a company, with the consent of the Superintendent of Insurance, to write policies 10 per cent. in excess of the present limitation, but charging this to the ensuing year's business. That, also, is a temporizing measure, since at the end of the second year the case of the companies and of the insuring public would be still worse. Why not increase the yearly limitation for new business, with proper safeguards of supervision?

SAVE DR. REICHMANN'S OFFICE.

It is announced that Gov. SULZER proposes to abolish the State Department of Weights and Measures. Does the Governor know what this department has accomplished under the able headship of Dr. FRITZ REICHMANN?

It is directly due to Dr. REICHMANN'S missionary labors that the reform of weights and measures, the majority of which in retail shops of this city were found fraudulent, was prosecuted under Mayor GAYNOR'S Administration. This reform has spread throughout the Union. We dare say that the State's investment in Dr. REICHMANN'S services has produced as big dividends as any other by a State or city in a generation.

The correcting of weights and measures in this State is by no means ended. Doubtless Commissioner WALSH of the New York City Bureau of Weights and Measures or ex-Commissioner DRISCOLL would say that the abolishing or dwarfing of the State office would be at too great cost to the Commonwealth.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hartford Gets a Surprise.

So much of a stir has been created up in Hartford by what Prof. FISHER said about closing all churches for a while, and so much comment on his suggestion is sure to be made elsewhere, that it seems worth while to give what seem to be the exact words he used. This is what the representative of Wesleyan University said in his speech to the members of a local organization, the Get-Together Club, in telling them Connecticut's needs:

> I would draw a bill for a Sunday law throwing it wide open with certain restrictions. Religion does not consist in going to church. Had I my say, I would prohibit church services for a limited number of years as an experiment. What is religion? Is it going to church? It is not. It is doing well by your fellow-men. I am firmly convinced that you would have a better religion if there were no church services to be put forth as religion, and I believe that there is nothing inconsistent in having an uproariously good time on Sunday.

The professor's hearers, naturally enough, were startled by these remarks, coming from the source they did, and there is apparently a rather widespread belief—or hope—in Hartford that he was not talking seriously. For what opinion, however, the rest of the speech gives little basis, for though in many ways highly radical, it was apparently sincere enough. When a man suggests a return to the town meeting form of government, and declares that if the judicial function were exercised by the people at large the result couldn't be any worse than it is at present, it need not be assumed that he is jesting merely because he wants to close the churches and to have uproariously good times on Sunday.

One of the Hartford clergymen, in answer to the professor's statement that going to church is not religion, makes the decidedly neat reply: "No, it isn't, and "going to college is not education, but "that is no reason for closing the uni- "versities." What Prof. FISHER had in mind, presumably, is that too many people think church-going all there is to religion, and do not bother much about "doing well by your fellow-men." There are such people, as we all know, but it is not a theory that they learn in church, and it is not clear how closing the churches would teach them consideration for their neighbors.

Anti-Vivisection Logic Was Well Illustrated.

Difficult as it is to be patient with the anti-vivisectionists or to limit one's self to moderate and parliamentary language in commenting on their arguments, both things can be done if their critic will fix his attention on the amusing features of their remarks. Nothing, for instance, could well be funnier, if viewed in just the right light, than some of the speeches made when the foes of animal experimentation met this week at the Waldorf, and quite the funniest of them all was that of the Rev. Dr. EDGAR WHITTAKER WORK, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

He began with a light and amiable admission of the fact that before he left home his wife had reminded him that he knew nothing about vivisection, but though he confessed that she was right, evidently he saw in his ignorance of what vivisection is or what it has accomplished no reason to refrain either from discussing or from condemning it. For he proceeded to do both at considerable length and evidently to the complete satisfaction of hearers who think this form of investigation an atrocious crime committed by monsters of iniquity because they love to inflict torture. His logic was beautifully characteristic of the anti-vivisection propaganda:

> There are some things we cannot afford to lose out of life. We cannot afford to lose Mercy. We cannot afford to lose Sympathy. And Chivalry—is not that a priceless asset?

Were the Rev. Dr. WORK to complete his syllogism, perhaps he would join in the laughter its absurdity earns. It would run something like this: "Mercy, sym- "pathy, and chivalry are worth keeping; "vivisection destroys them; therefore "vivisection should be prohibited."

A finer example of drawing a false conclusion from a platitude and an assumption could not be found, and, really, it hardly befits "the cloth" to risk a conclusion on the chance that a platitude will throw over an assumption the halo of its own unquestionable truth. It's an old, old trick, and though it often works, it is not the more commendable merely because it is played unintentionally and unconsciously. What vivisection does for men and to men is a matter of fact, not of opinion, and surely it behooves one who admittedly does not know the facts to keep silent till he learns them from credible and authoritative sources.

Quarantine Reports Explained.

Three Commissioners who in behalf of Gov. SULZER have been investigating the highly important question of how the quarantine station at this port should be conducted, have turned in minority and majority reports. Two of the Commissioners, JOHN H. DELANEY and H. GORDON LYNN, are strongly of the opinion that the present system of State control should continue; the third, JOHN N. CARLISLE, strongly advises that the protection of the city from imported infections should not remain exceptional in its character, but should become a part of the nation-wide guardianship exercised by the Federal Government.

The present Health Officer of the Port of New York agrees with the two; so does Mr. MURPHY and everybody else with an appreciative and more or less nearly single eye on quarantine patronage—which is considerable.

Mr. CARLISLE, however, is not quite as lonely in his advocacy of Federal control as might be supposed. He has in agreement with him practically the whole medical profession and every sanitary expert of any note in this country and Europe.

The question of State or Federal control of quarantine long since ceased to be regarded as debatable in the circles where there is the best information regarding the facts it involves. It is now discussed only by politicians—and only by politicians who differ from statesmen in several other respects than that of being alive.

The Dual Subway Contracts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The most important issue before the people of this city to-day is the question of the execution of the contracts now pending before the Public Service Commission for new subways.

If Mr. William R. Willcox is retired before these contracts are signed the operation of new subways will be put off for many years.

We believe it most important for the best interests of the city that this danger be averted.

We earnestly request that you will write to the Hon. William Sulzer, Governor, urging that Mr. Willcox be permitted to remain on the Public Service Commission until the contracts now pending are disposed of.

Automobiles Block Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Happening to have moved into a street near the State Automobile office, I find that the street in front of my office is always blocked up by automobiles. Patients arriving in carriages are obliged to dismount one-half block away.

Is there no relief for this?

GEN. WASHINGTON'S STATUE.

Herbert Adams Suggests Giving England a Replica of Sub-Treasury Piece.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I learn from the press that in connection with the celebration in 1914 of the Centenary of Anglo-American Peace, it has been proposed by Earl Grey, as a part of a very comprehensive programme, that a monument to George Washington be erected in Westminster Abbey or Westminster Hall. May I as a sculptor suggest through your columns that to aid in carrying out this scheme our Government present to England a replica of the statue of Washington which stands in front of our Sub-Treasury Building in New York? This statue is a masterpiece. It has stood the test of time, and is admired to-day, both by artists and the public, even more than when it was erected thirty years ago.

Many statues of Washington have been made. Sculptors of at least four different countries have struggled with the problem of satisfactorily presenting in bronze or marble the Father of our country; yet in this long list, leaving equestrian statues out of consideration, Ward's Washington stands pre-eminent. It has been truly said of this statue that it will live because Ward had great thoughts about a great man, and because he had also the genius and skill to express those thoughts greatly and simply. The statue is well-composed, well-constructed, and well-modeled. It is executed without mannerism or affectation. Its virile dignity impresses the beholder with the idea of Peace on Earth. Fads and mannerisms in art will come and go, but Ward's Washington will endure.

I believe that at the time of this important celebration, the offer of this noble statue as a gift from the United States to England would fitly express our feeling of love and respect for the mother country.

HERBERT ADAMS.

New York, Jan. 23, 1913.

BUSINESS FOLLOWS TRAFFIC.

Mr. Siegel Pleads for Sixth and Seventh Avenue Improvements.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many improvements for the section between Fourteenth and Twenty-third Streets and the adjoining territory are contemplated. Some of them are already assured. Others of great consequence can be brought about by pressure of sentiment and influence, such as can be exerted by the co-operation of strong men and firms.

As business invariably follows through lines of traffic, the opening of Sixth Avenue southward is of the greatest importance. When this is done, and Seventh Avenue cut through, as already ordered, two thoroughfares will be serving our district and all the lower part of Manhattan west of Broadway, as has been urged, and should have been, during the past thirty years.

The united effort of those interested will bring about this improvement. Better street lighting will also require united action. A plan is being devised by which it is believed Fifth Avenue will be relieved of part of the throngs that crowd its sidewalks daily between the hours of 12 and 1, to the detriment of business.

We are hoping to have a coat of aluminium paint applied to the Sixth Avenue elevated structure, and when this is done and the structure lighted Sixth Avenue will be turned into a pleasant promenade.

The establishment of a system of free 'buses at the expense of the larger department stores, to run through and around this section, connecting with the various elevated and subway lines, is contemplated.

To all of these improvements the Central Mercantile Association is now giving its attention.

HENRY SIEGEL.

New York, Jan. 23, 1913.

Scores Broadway Car Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Here is a matter that should be called to the attention of the Public Service Commission.

I have occasion almost every afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock to take an uptown car at Thirty-fourth Street, either on Broadway or Sixth Avenue, and transfer at Fifty-ninth Street.

On an average six cars marked "Broadway," with a sign in front "Fiftieth Street Only," pass before one comes along that goes through to Fifty-ninth Street. I have timed 14 minutes, 12 minutes, 9½ minutes, and 11 minutes that I have been compelled to wait at that corner before a through car came along. The same is true of the Sixth Avenue line, for I stand at the intersection prepared to take either car that comes first.

It is these practices that make the public so hostile to the operators of the transit systems in New York.

CHARLES J. CONNER.

New York, Jan. 23, 1913.

TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY TIMES.

The Secretary of War's Annual Report contains the startling announcement that it would take years to place our field artillery in a condition that would make it possible to sustain such engagements as marked the Russo-Japanese or the Balkan war. Our military inefficiency and collateral defects are carefully treated in a thoughtful article in to-morrow's TIMES Magazine.

The use of Niagara Falls for manufacturing purposes by private corporations has been repeatedly censured by those who would preserve one of the world's greatest scenic features. In the controversy waged over this subject an important compact, made long ago by the Indians with the British Government, has been forgotten. This compact has a direct bearing on the question now before Congress, and the details of it are given in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

Few people have pierced the picturesque life and gorgeous ceremonial surrounding India's Princes. An American artist, Simon H. Vedder, was recently commissioned by the British Government to paint the portraits of the Rajahs, and an amusing account of his interesting and thrilling experiences is given in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

Modern German art has on its roll of honor a name with which Americans are not as yet familiar—Max Liebermann. Some idea of the scope, originality, and versatility of this painter, together with reproductions of his characteristic work, is given in an absorbing article by James Huneker in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

London is stirred just now over a book, which has been threatened with suppression, describing how the Rothschilds made their fortune. From advance sheets of this book the SUNDAY TIMES is able to give to its readers to-morrow an interesting story describing the various means by which this great family of European bankers amassed a fortune of $2,000,000,000—the greatest accumulation of private wealth ever known.

The great French Academy of "Immortals" is, perhaps, the most famous organization in the history of literature. Is America to have a similar aristocracy of letters? Judging by the passage of a bill through the United States Senate last week it would seem so. Who the proposed American "Immortals" are is told in an entertaining article in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

Many are the projects which have been entertained and carried out looking to the joining of Manhattan Island with the mainland. One of the greatest of these projects is the new Harlem River Tunnel, the steel tubes of which are to be built on land and then sunk into position. The details of this undertaking are described in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

The arrival of Henry Bergson in this country next week calls attention to the profound impression made by this famous French philosopher on the current thought of the world to-day. Prof. Bergson will expound his philosophical system in a course of lectures at Columbia University. For those who are following the deeper trend of modern speculative research, a thoughtful article, appearing in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES, by Louis Levine, Ph. D., on the Bergsonian theory as compared with what is known as Syndicalism, will be read with special interest.

These are only a few of the many striking features appearing in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

COLUMBUS & HOCKING POOL

And the Charge of Manipulation on the Stock Exchange.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I observe in THE TIMES of Sunday last that there was a discussion at the Republican Club on Saturday afternoon of Stock Exchange affairs, in which one speaker assumed that the Columbus & Hocking Coal and Iron breakdown of 1910 was the result of an attempt of certain speculators to bid up the price of the stock and unload it on the public. In other words, it was assumed by this speaker that it was a case of manipulation with evil intent, and that it was tolerated by the Governors of the Stock Exchange, although the evidence of such manipulation was glaring and patent to everybody having access to the floor of the Exchange. No hint was given by anybody participating in the discussion that there were persons who denied that any manipulation had ever taken place in that affair.

I do not propose to enter into a discussion of the pool now, but merely to say that it was the subject of investigation by a special committee of the Governing Committee of the Exchange, who reported that the leading members of the pool had "the most confident belief in what they called the prospective value of the stock based upon future earnings from extensions and new discoveries." In other words, they were self-deluded. Instead of bidding up the price, in order to unload upon the public, they were bidding in order to gain possession of the property. They succeeded in this endeavor. They acquired the property and in so doing ruined themselves. The public sold out to them at four or five times the true value of the stock.

A separate issue was raised as between the late James Keene and a brokerage firm not connected with the Hocking pool. That is another story and should not be confounded with the alleged "manipulation."

PARCEL POST VIEWS.

Criticism and Praise of the Government's Charges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with the much-talked-of parcel post, I beg to cite the following experience:

I had a package I desired to send to my son at Cornell College. It was taken to the Post Office, weighed, and a charge fixed of 67 cents (which included 10 cents for insuring the parcel.) The same package was then taken to the office of the express company. Their charge for sending the package was but 55 cents. Naturally, I sent the parcel by express, especially as I knew it would get better care and in case of loss I could make a better settlement, its value being in excess of $50.

FARMER.

Lanesboro, Mass., Jan. 22, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have published several letters in your valued paper as to the working of the new United States parcel post. To-day my firm received a package from Portland, Me., with an article to be cleansed. The postage was 11 cents; this same package would have cost from 35 to 50 cents by express. The first charge (by post) made it possible for this party to have the article cleansed and receive another half year or more wear from her property, while at the cost of express rates it would not have paid this woman to have it handled by us, nor could she have had it done by a local firm at her place, for the charges would be more than it cost her in New York, including mail expenses.

We call this case to your attention, as a proof that the parcel post will reduce the "cost of living" in more ways than one.

J. F. E. NICKELSBURY, President,
Long Island Dyeing & Cleaning Co.

New York, Jan. 22, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is one peculiarity about the parcel post rates in that, on parcels weighing from eleven ounces down to five ounces sent to the eighth zone, the postage is from 10 per cent. to 240 per cent. more than under the rate charged before Jan. 1.

A five-ounce parcel, under the old rate, cost 5 cents; now it costs 12 cents, or 2 cents more than full letter postage. A package weighing eleven ounces now costs 12 cents; under the old rate it cost 11 cents.

To every zone, except the first, the cost of sending a five-ounce package is more than it was under the old rate. To send a six-ounce package to Zone 2 costs the same as under the old rate, but more to other zones.

The same rule applies to seven-ounce packages to Zone 3; an eight-ounce package to Zone 4, and so on up to a twelve-ounce package.

Can you explain the reason for the above differences? It was expected that all rates would be reduced by the new order.

GULLIBLE MAGISTRATES

Discharge Young Toughs as "Respectable Working Boys."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being interested in the manner in which justice is administered in our Night Courts, I have been a frequent visitor to them in the past two years.

It may seem strange, but I have seen young toughs of the lowest type arrested for insulting women, disturbing passers-by with their profane language, congregating on street corners, (in direct defiance of the officers' command to move on,) appear before Magistrates who permitted the wool to be pulled over their eyes in an absurdly conspicuous way.

The question usually asked by the Magistrate is, "What do you work at?" The young toughs are generally prepared with the names and addresses of reputable firms, with which they have never had the remotest connection. The Magistrate then declares the rowdies discharged for "they are respectable working boys." Often in the presence of these young roughs the officer making the arrest is "called down" for doing his duty.

In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred the Magistrate's remark of "respectable working boys" is not true. The very appearance of the young men decries this theory. The vicious face, the shifty eyes, and the tough manner displayed by them are sufficient to convince not only a Magistrate, but a novice at reading faces, of the truth.

The decisions in this respect are so absurd that often I have left the courtroom in company with a number of highly intelligent men who shared my deep disgust at the proceedings.

What is the result? These young toughs, seeing how apparently easy it is to flim-flam the Magistrates, congregate in their usual haunts and defy the police officer, who is discouraged and at a loss in regard to doing the duties of his office.

Modern Music Defended.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a peaceable citizen and I do not like controversies. But when a subscriber writes in disparagement of the great works of Puccini and Richard Strauss simply because he enjoyed Clara Butt's singing of the old English ballads, it is time for some one to rise in defense of the present-day masters. I have waited a week for some one to reply, and now reluctantly take up the cudgels myself.

I heard Clara Butt and enjoyed her. I cheerfully admit she is all her rapturous management foretold. But that fact has no bearing on the merits of such marvels of composition as "Madame Butterfly" and "The Girl of the Golden West." "Lover of the Old Heart Music" admits he's an old fogey. I'm not, Sir. I appreciate and enjoy all music worthy the name, whether it be "The Lost Chord," as Clara Butt sings it, or "The Pagliacci Prologue," as Scotti does. Any one seeking to belittle new music because he likes the old is talking bosh.

GROWTH OF BARNARD.

Dean Gildersleeve Tells of a Successful Experiment.

Barnard College, Columbia University,
Office of the Dean, Jan. 23, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was possible twenty-five years ago for a woman to obtain in the great City of New York almost anything in the world she might desire, except a college education. To remedy this lack and to satisfy the demands of the ambitious young women seeking opportunities for higher intellectual training a group of public-spirited citizens founded Barnard College. Educationally a part of Columbia University, with the standard of its instruction guaranteed by that institution, it was entirely separate financially, supported by its friends. Unlike most colleges it was founded quite without endowment on the promise of fifty persons to subscribe annually $100 each for four years. With this modest guarantee in the Fall of 1889 the college opened its doors in a small private house at Forty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, and enrolled its first freshman class of fourteen students, with a few specials.

Thus founded on faith, to meet a real and pressing need, Barnard College has rapidly grown and prospered. Its graduates now number 1,100, and in its buildings on Morningside Heights it has at present nearly 800 students. The undergraduate body is a widely representative one, coming largely from New York, but with a considerable proportion from distant parts, from Oregon and Alabama, for example, and even from Honolulu and New Zealand.

The education which the college gives its students is of the sort traditionally called "liberal." It includes some prescribed work in English, in history, in natural sciences, in mathematics, in economics, in modern languages, in the classics, with a wide range of electives, and it requires of every student some rather extensive and advanced work in whatever subject she may select as her special field. The curriculum is designed to help its students develop into intelligent, well-balanced women, able to get the greatest possible amount of sane happiness out of life, and to be useful members of the community. The graduates whom Barnard has sent forth have justified its work. Hundreds of them are now serving New York as able and devoted teachers in the schools, skilled scientists in the research laboratories, zealous workers in many fields of philanthropy and social service, intelligent mothers, broad-minded and public-spirited citizens.

Besides its great value for personal development and happiness a college education is to-day practically indispensable for any woman who wishes to enter a profession. Urged on by these considerations, an ever-increasing number of women seek to obtain collegiate training amid the unequaled advantages that New York offers. With its present resources Barnard College can no longer receive and care for the students who apply for admission. If it cannot obtain from the friends of women's education a substantial increase in endowment and buildings the number of students must be limited and the college doors must be shut to many ambitious and able young women who are eager to enter.

In buildings designed for only 500 students the college is now caring for 800. It has no gymnasium; it has no auditorium large enough to contain its undergraduates; its reading room is sadly overcrowded; it lacks sufficient space for lunch rooms, rest rooms, studies, laboratories and class rooms; it needs an additional dormitory for students who live at the college.

Barnard is seriously handicapped also by shortage of endowment. Tuition fees pay scarcely three-fifths of the cost of instruction, and last year the college ran about $16,000 behind. To keep its teaching at a high standard, to pay fair salaries, to develop new lines of work demanded by the new needs of to-day, the college requires a million dollars additional endowment.

Barnard will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding in October, 1914. To commemorate the completion of a quarter century of service the college desires to raise a fund sufficient to enable it to be of still greater service to the community. To meet its immediate and pressing needs Barnard asks New York for $1,000,000 for endowment and $1,000,000 for buildings.

Bearing in mind the liberality of the American people where the education and the material and mental progress of women are concerned, I feel confident that they will respond generously to the appeal of Barnard. Surely the citizens of New York will wish to support a college in which women can obtain, in comfortable and healthful surroundings, an education of the highest standard. They will not force us to shut out able and ambitious students.

Contributions may be sent to George A. Plimpton, Treasurer, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York.

THE BALLROOM "RUSHER"

Wastes Time and Health in Frivolous Amusements.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the editorial page of THE SUNDAY TIMES the article by Mr. Sutherland states that society women of to-day are parasites. I think the accusation is correct, but Mr. Sutherland has omitted to remark also on the society men of the present day. The type of superficial, brainless, dancing man, squandering his health and flitting his time away night after night in a ballroom, instead of turning his attentions to earning a livelihood or making something of himself, is still more pitiable.

A large majority of men make a point of "rushing" the season's debutantes each year. Why? Simply because they are having numerous parties given in their honor. They accept all kinds of favors from a girl, are violently attentive, very often propose, and in less than three months tell her they prefer a blonde to a brunette and dash off. It is true that when a sensible man with high ideals comes along he is often laughed at by women for his so-called "old maidish ideas." On the other hand I know of many fine, cultured girls who are not appreciated by men. It depends just as much on the paternal as on the maternal side to bring happiness and have "good, old-fashioned American families," which we unfortunately see so few of nowadays.

IN THE PATH OF WRATH.

They have stood by the fountains of wisdom
Whose waters are strong and fair;
They have swept the spring
With a fleeting wing
And have flown to some otherwhere.

They have sat in the temples of learning,
They have listened and laughed, and then
They have turned away
From the light of day
And gone into darkness again.

It is not for the sightless to suffer,
The blind, from the scourge, should be free,
But the stinging blows
Should fall upon those
Who have eyes, yet refuse to see.

SOCIETY IS ACTIVE AS LENT APPROACHES

Many Entertainments Planned for the Days Before Ash Wednesday, Feb. 5.

LAST NIGHT'S FESTIVITIES

Mrs. Cass Gilbert, Mrs. J. W. Herbert, and Mrs. I. Brokaw Hostesses—St. Christopher League's Costume Ball.

Society is crowding the days with entertainments, owing to the beginning of Lent, which falls very early this year, Ash Wednesday coming on Feb. 5.

Mrs. Percy Rivington Pyne gave a small and early dance last night at 680 Park Avenue for her daughter, Miss Mary Pyne, the guests including many of this year's débutantes.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brokaw's dance at their Fifth Avenue residence was a small one, and the guests were nearly all young married people.

Mrs. Cass Gilbert gave a dinner for her two daughters, the Misses Emily and Julia Gilbert at her home in East Sixty-fourth Street.

Mrs. John W. Herbert gave a musicale and dance last night at her residence, 835 Fifth Avenue, for Miss Gertrude Herbert, whose engagement to Edward Delaney Dunn was recently announced.

The music room was decorated with American Beauty roses and azaleas, and sunburst roses were used in the other rooms. Leon Rennay, baritone, sang old French and English folk songs, and Miss Inga Sonpum, who was with the Opera Comique in Paris, danced folk dances in costume. About 350 guests were asked in for the dance, and a supper was served after midnight.

Mrs. Horace Brightman entertained with a small dinner and dance at her home, 3 East Sixty-third Street, for her nieces, the Misses Bessie and Grace Wilsen, and Miss Grovene Vail Converse, one of the season's buds. There were twenty guests for dinner, and about eighty came in later for the dancing. A buffet supper was served at 11:30.

The third of the three Sherry Dances was held at Sherry's. Mrs. J. Herbert Johnston, Mrs. Howard Henry, Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm, and Mrs. Edward Knapp received. Mrs. Eugene Philbin, Mrs. Wm. Cass Ladyard, Mrs. Henry Ilker, and Mrs. Howard Henry gave dinners before the dance.

The St. Christopher League gave its annual costume ball at the Plaza in the large ballroom. Mrs. William H. Harris and Mrs. John S. Baird were the patronesses of the evening. Many picturesque costumes were worn. Several dinners were given by hostesses before the dance, including Mrs. W. J. Curtis, Mrs. Ashton Clarkson, Mrs. Richmond Mayo Smith, Mrs. William H. Burr, Mrs. John B. Moore, and Mrs. Henry Clay Adams.

Mrs. John Porter Shannon gave a dance at her house, 145 West Fifty-eighth Street, for her daughter, Miss Margery Shannon. It was an early dance, with a supper served between 12 and 1 o'clock, and the guests included the Misses Eva Ingersoll Brown, Lucy Gordon, Harriette and Gladys McAlpin, Clarissa Pierson, Marjorie Smylie, Rosalie Smith, Frances Montague Ward, Marjorie Cleveland, Adelaide Browning, Dolly La Montagne, Dorothy Gibb, Abby Morrison, Marguerite Janvrin, Helen Hofstott, Dorothy Hurry, Vera Van Buren, Eloise Talcott, Marion and Diantha Fitch, Gladys Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Clyde Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus T. Kirby, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Frith.

Also Lauren Carroll, Howard N. Peck, Stephen Thaw, Willard Wadsworth, Putnam Morrison, Theron Strong, Angier Duke, Charles Inman, Lindell Bates, Robert Ingersoll Brown, and Robert Bigelow.

QUIET SHEPARD HONEYMOON.

Bride to Sign Her Name in Future Helen Gould Shepard.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard spent the day quietly at Lyndhurst, going this afternoon for an automobile ride of about twenty miles. The roads were bad so they did not stay out long. Telegrams of congratulation still continue to pour in, and Mrs. Shepard is busy acknowledging them. It became know to-day that Mrs. Shepard will sign her name in the future, Helen Gould Shepard.

Private detectives are still on guard and will remain there until Mr. and Mrs. Shepard go abroad.

Miss Castle to Wed Prof. Tozzer.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Castle of Honolulu, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Castle, to Dr. Alfred M. Tozzer, Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Harvard. No date has been set for the wedding.

MARSDEN—DISBROW.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Marsden of Baltimore have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Stevens Marsden, to Harold Ball Disbrow, son of Dr. and Mrs. Vanderhoef Morgan Disbrow of Lakewood, N. J. Mr. Disbrow is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1911, and is now a student in the Medical School of the Johns Hopkins University.

Marguerite Lemon's Reappearance.

Marguerite Lemon, who was a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company during the last two seasons of Heinrich Conried's regime, will make her re-appearance this evening after an absence of three years, as soloist with the Russian Symphony Orchestra at Carnegie Hall. After leaving the Metropolitan, Mme. Lemon went abroad and sang at Munich and Weisbaden. From there she went to Covent Garden, where she created the principal rôle in "Tiefland" during the season 1910-1911. In the Summer of 1911, during the exposition, she was leading dramatic soprano at the opera house in Rome.

DRAMATIC LEAGUE FORMED.

People's Institute to Raise Amateur Societies to an Educational Value.

Under the auspices of the People's Institute there has just been formed an organization called the Educational Dramatic League, which has for its purpose raising to an educational value the amateur dramatic societies existing in the schools, recreation centres, and settlements in the five boroughs. It will supply teachers who will train the players and organize clubs. Mrs. Emma Sheridan Fry, director of the Educational Players, will be in charge of the dramatic work of the league. She has just formed her class for teachers. Each year it is planned to hold a dramatic festival with a big production, probably of a Shakespearean play. For this production the cast will be selected from members of the clubs competing for the prizes.

Mrs. August Belmont has offered a prize of $25 for the best performance of Gilbert & Sullivan's "Pygmalion and Galatea" by clubs in the senior class, and Miss Anne Morgan has offered the same prize for the best performance of "The House of the Heart," by Miss Constance Mackaye. These prizes will be awarded this year, the registration of clubs to close on Feb. 15. Information may be obtained by writing the People's Institute, 50 Madison Avenue.

The members of the committee formed to conduct the affairs of the league are Dr. Frederic C. Howe, Dr. Edward Stitt, James L. Cushman, Franklin Sargent, V. Everit Macy, Percy Mackaye, Prof. Brander Matthews, Mrs. F. McNiel Bacon, Miss Kate Oglebay, Mrs. James D. Livingston, Mrs. August Belmont, Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Robinson Smith, Miss Elsie De Wolfe, Miss Rachel Crothers, and Mrs. Ray Swartz.

"The Master Mind" on the Stage.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Werba & Luescher's first dramatic production of the season, "The Master Mind," a four-act play by Daniel D. Carter, opened to-night at the Lyceum Theatre. The play deals with a criminal, but is not of the so-called underworld type. Edmund Breese was seen in the title role, and others prominent in the cast were Katharine La Salle, Elliott Dexter, Morgan Coman, Edward Gillespie, J. Archibald Curtis, Harry Neville, Dorothy Rossmore, William Riley Hatch, Walter Allen, and Sidney S. Cushing.

Lehigh to Dine Col. Goethals.

The dinner of the Lehigh University Club of New York City in honor of Col. George W. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, will be given at the Hotel Astor next Monday evening. In addition to Col. Goethals the speakers' list includes Ira A. Place, John Hays Hammond, and Rear Admiral R. E. Peary. Other guests include John A. Bensel, State Engineer; Dr. H. S. Drinker, President Lehigh University; J. Waldo Smith, Chief Engineer Board of Water Supply, and William R. Willcox, Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Louis N. Parker, author of "Joseph and His Brethren," now playing at the Century, sailed for England Wednesday on the Baltic.

Contracts were signed yesterday by H. H. Frazee and William Harris whereby "The Unwritten Law," by Edward Milton Royle, will be produced at the Fulton Theatre on the evening of Feb. 7.

"The Honeymoon Express," the next Winter Garden production, will have its first New York presentation on the evening of Feb. 1, opening in Albany the evening before.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Drury Lane pantomime, "Hop o' My Thumb," will be put on just before the Christmas holidays next season at the Manhattan Opera House.

Klaw & Erlanger arranged yesterday for two new plays by Ivan Caryll and C. M. S. McLellan, composer and author of "The Pink Lady" and "Oh! Oh! Delphine." The first is called "The Circus Rider," and the other is an adaptation of "Le Fils Surnaturel," by Grenet D'Ancourt and Maurice Vancaire. The two have nearly completed "The Little Cafe" for the same managers.

Christie MacDonald, at the conclusion of her present two weeks' engagement in "The Spring Maid" at the New Amsterdam, will begin rehearsals in the new Victor Herbert opera, which will be produced in New York early in March.

George M. Cohan played host to sixty crippled children at yesterday's special matinee performance of "Broadway Jones" at the Cohan Theatre, the visitors being in charge of Miss Julia L. O'Beirne, who conducts a school for them at 412 West Seventeenth Street.

Next Saturday afternoon and evening at the Berkeley Theatre a performance of "Marriageables," a farcical comedy by Alexander E. Ebin, will be given.

Wilton Lackaye will appear at the benefit to be given for the Jewish Maternity Hospital at the Astor Theatre next Sunday night. Next Wednesday he will deliever a lecture at the noonday meeting of the Eclectic Club.

Yesterday's matinee performance at the Hippodrome marked the 250th presentation of "Under Many Flags," which began its run there at the end of last August.

For the first time William Hammerstein will personally make a production, presenting in the near future at the Victoria Theatre, "Lead Kindly Light," a one-act playlet by Jack Lait, dramatic critic of The Chicago Evening American.

At the Plaza Hotel this afternoon, Leslie Faber, appearing in "Milestones" at the Liberty Theatre, will read the "Rubaiyet" of Omar Khayyam to music specially composed by Christopher Wilson. William Furst will be in charge of the orchestra, and Norman Wilks, an English pianist, will make his American debut.

Lee Morrison has engaged Olive Wyndham to play the title role in "What Happened to Mary," a comedy by Owen Davis, which will be produced for the first time in New Haven on Feb. 7.

On the evenings of Feb. 3 and 4, with a matinee on the 4th, the first performance of the morality play, "The Dreamer," will be given at the Madison Square Concert Hall in aid of the fund of the Catherine Lorillard Wolf Art Students' Club and Grace Church Hospital, by students of the General Theological Seminary. The play is by Mrs. Percy Dearmer, and the production will be staged by Ben Green.

FRANS HALS PICTURE SOLD FOR $150,000

Joseph Coeymans Portrait of 1664, Painted When Artist Was 80, Bought by J. N. Willys.

SALE OF A GREAT VAN DYCK

"Madame de Gottignies," a Remarkably Beautiful Portrait, Purchased by a New Collector.

In addition to the picture of "Pilgrim at Prayer," John N. Willys of Toledo has just acquired through the Reinhardt Galleries a fine portrait by Frans Hals. The price paid is reported to be $150,000. The sitter was Joseph Coeymans. He is represented as turned three quarters to the spectator and looking out of the canvas. He wears a large broad-brimmed hat and a white collar, and is dressed in a black figured velvet cloak, his hair is in loose waving curls and is worn quite long. The figure is shown half length. The picture is described in Hofstede de Groot's catalogue of Dutch Painters, and was exhibited in the Grafton Gallery Loan Exhibition in 1910. It was in the Sedelmeyer Collection and later in that of Maurice Kann. The date of painting is 1664, two years before the artist's death, when he was more than eighty years old. This also is the year in which he painted the "Regenten" of the old men's almshouse at Haarlem and the "Regentessen" of the old women's almshouse, with six and five figures respectively.

Dr. De Groot points out the development of the manner of Hals from the strong coloring and careful execution of his early period through the concentrated light and golden tone of the period when he was influenced by Rembrandt to the breadth and grayness of his latest period. "If we may judge of the mood of the artist from the tone of a picture," he adds, "then the gray coloring of Frans Hals's last pictures betray sad days and low spirits; a relic of the past, almost deserted by his friends with no inner moral support, the world is grey for him; he will no longer give it its fresh colors, will scarcely allow it its natural form. His fellow creatures only granted him the bare necessities of life, and so the old man in his last pictures only gives his figures drawing and color enough to make them appear like living beings. And yet how life-like they are; what a mighty paw has thrown them on the canvas."

The "Joseph Coeymans" is now hanging next to the "Pilgrim at Prayer" in the Toledo Museum, to which Mr. Willys has loaned his entire collection until he shall have returned from a trip to Europe which he is about to take.

The Scott and Fowles Galleries it was learned yesterday, have just sold a remarkably beautiful portrait by Van Dyck to a new collector of paintings in this city, whose name for the present is withheld. The subject is Madame de Cottigies, and the picture was obtained from her descendants. It was painted just after Van Dyck's return from Genoa and before he went to England, and is eloquent of the noble influences by which he was swayed in Italy, tempered to his own gracious personal style. This beautiful and dignified woman could not have had a happier fate than to be characterized by Van Dyck at this fortunate moment in his career.

The face is delicately painted, full value being given to the refinement of the features and the hands are exquisitely drawn. The hair, brown and fine, lies in soft curls about the head, the sensitive brows are arched, there is the hint of a double chin and the figure fills the dress with opulent curves. The over dress is of black satin with bands of silver ornament, the under dress is a warm white with a pattern in gold. Van Dyck can never have painted anything more superb than this soft shimmering pattern that appears and disappears in the folds of the material and defines its texture and weight.

The painting is remarkably pure with no sign of any hand but that of the master himself, and the interest is sustained through all parts of the canvas. It is one of the limited number of really great Van Dycks.

A Famous Frans Hals, Sold for $150,000

Portrait of Joseph Coeymans.

RARE ART OBJECTS ON VIEW.

Collections of the Rev. Dr. Hunter and Dr. Berl at American Galleries.

Two collections of much interest on view at the American Art Galleries are those of the Rev. Dr. Pleasant Hunter of Newark, N. J., and Dr. Richard Berl. Dr. Hunter has been collecting for many years. His collection is one of unusual excellence and charm to the lover of old blue and white pottery, old lustre, and other old tableware of early days.

The entire collection has been verified by Dr. Edwin Atlee Barber, Director of the Pennsylvania Museum, Philadelphia, author of "Anglo-American Pottery," who is an authority. Dr. Barber found in Dr. Hunter's collection things that were unusual even in his experience, and in a personal letter he mentions pieces which seldom come on the market, a Samuel Boyle creamware jug, an old Jersey City blue and white flowerpot and saucer, old Bristol glass and Bilston and Battersea enamel patch boxes.

An interesting set which has practical value as a coffee service, or it would be a delight for afternoon tea, is an old English lacquer coffee set. There is the large table tray of this, two small service trays, a cake basket, a coffee caddy, and sugar box. The foundation is black and the designs not crude as in many of these old things, but graceful and pleasing, with peacock, flower, and butterfly designs. The completeness of the set as well its perfect condition make it important.

There is a lot of pewter included in the collection which will interest the many people who are now furnishing their dining rooms with the place of silver, where it is more artistic with its soft, dull sheen. There are a number of people in the city who use pewter for table service and more who find it a great charm in their country homes, and will welcome this occasion to fill in chinks in their dinner or tea sets.

Dr. Hunter has some nice old mirrors, tables, a Martha Washington, with a desk attachment, an la few fine old chairs.

The Berl collection has also a good assortment of pewter, including many trenchers, or big plates, and a few pieces of nice old copper. The collection of silver is interesting, and a notable piece is a silver standing cup or hanap with cover. Scenes from the life of Henri II. of France are shown on it, and it bears the date of 1566. It was formerly in the possession of the Empress Eugenie, and came to its present owner on the death of a relative, Mgr. Bauer, who was the Empress's confessor.

There is a collection of antique clocks and watches, and one of armor, pistols, and daggers with walking sticks, an old dispatch box, a few pieces of furniture, and drawings. The Berl collection will be sold on the afternoons of Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 28 and 29, and the Hunter collection the three following days.

In addition to the collection of art objects the old and modern paintings belonging to the estate of the late Meta J. Conor-Wood are on view. The attributions are cautiously made. "The Bath" is "attributed" to Fragonard, the "Judgment of Paris" belongs to "the school of Rubens"; but there are some agreeable paintings among them, nevertheless, which will repay search on the part of would-be buyers.

BIJOU TO GO AT AUCTION.

Theatre to be Sold on Feb. 11—House of Many Successes.

Whether the Bijou Theatre will continue to exist as a playhouse depends on the disposition of the plot on which it stands when the property is put up at public sale on Feb. 11. With no reason given for the move, it was announced yesterday that the theatre and the abutting plot on Sixth Avenue would go under the auctioneer's hammer at the Real Estate Exchange in Vesey Street on that date, Joseph P. Day being in charge of the sale.

The Bijou Theatre occupies a plot at 1,237 and 1,239 Broadway, north of Thirtieth Street. It is at present owned by the Bijou Real Estate Company, which took title in 1909, the property having been transferred to that company by Albert I. Sire at the time.

The theatre was built in 1878 and was known then as the Brighton Theatre. It was for a time devoted to minstrel shows. Later it became Wood's Theatre, and after that was called the Bijou Opera House. Later the name was changed to the Bijou Theatre. It was for a time one of the most popular playhouses in the city, and many successful plays were produced there.

It was in the Bijou that Henry E. Dixey had his great run of 600 performances of "Adonis" in this city. "The City Directory" was seen there for a long time, and of late years the most notable success was "The Gentleman From Mississippi." The house is now being used for exhibiting the moving pictures taken in connection with the African hunting trip of Paul Rainey.

ACT "LORD FAUNTLEROY."

Bohemian Actors Appear for East Side Settlement House.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy," Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play, was given yesterday afternoon at the Lyric Theatre by a company of Bohemian actors for the benefit of the East Side Settlement House. An interesting feature of the production was that most of the players do not speak English with any fluency, and had practically to be taught the language of their rôles.

These actors are members of the companies which play at three theatres in the Bohemian sections of the city, performances being given every Sunday. During the week days they are employed at ordinary occupations, but on Sundays are recognized as the leading dramatic artists among their countrymen. The present production, the first time they have over attempted to play in English, was under the direction of J. M. Edgar Hart. This play was decided on to exploit 14-year-old Bertha Kauders, who appeared in the title rôle and was well received by the audience.

Among the plays that have been acted in Bohemian by these players are those of Ibsen, Hauptmann, Sudermann, Schnitzler, and Fulda. They have also performed "The Merry Widow" and "The Bartered Bride," the Bohemian opera.

"Barbiere di Siviglia" Sung Again.

"Il Barbiere di Siviglia" was repeated last night at the Metropolitan Opera House. The cast included Miss Hempel and Messrs. Macnez, Amato and de Segurola. Mr. Sturani conducted.

DRAPER NOT GRAVELY ILL.

Commissioner of Education Temporarily Incapacitated, Doctor Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Dr. Andrew S. Draper, State Commissioner of Education, was greatly disturbed to-day over printed reports that he was critically ill, and requested his attending physician, Dr. Erastus Corning, to give out an authentic statement. In compliance, Dr. Corning says:

"It is true that for many years past Commissioner Draper has suffered from chronic bronchitis, with its attendant circulatory disturbances; as in all such cases the chronic condition at times becomes acute. Under the ordinary conditions this produces a temporary incapacity for active work. The present period of disability has been lengthened, owing to the severe mental strain under which the Commissioner has been laboring.

"The destruction of the State Library and the other divisions of the Education Department at the time of the Capitol fire, the subsequent difficulties involved in carrying on the routine work of the department, the completion of the Education Building, and, finally, the strain of carrying to a successful conclusion the intricate programme of the dedication exercises, all made heavy demands on the Commissioner's strength."

As soon as the department was fairly settled in the new building Commissioner Draper consented to take as nearly an absolute rest as was possible. The improvement in his condition has been continuous, but it is not thought advisable for him to return to active work as yet.

E. R. Jackson Pleads Not Guilty.

Edgar R. Jackson, the convicted head of the Jackson Brothers Realty Company, pleaded not guilty to an additional indictment charging him with grand larceny, before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday, and will be placed on trial next Monday. Jackson is indicted for the theft of $23,000 from Dr. William B. Leeds of Yonkers. He is already under a five-year sentence for the larceny of $5,000 from Miss Mary Griffith of Akron, Ohio.

MORRIS BRINGS CONEY INTO TIMES SQUARE

LOTS OF FREAKS AND GAMES

The Wild Man, the Fat Women, the Albino, and the Rest of Them Take Up a New Home on Broadway.

The modern impresario knows no limitations. Wherefore William Morris, on the principle that if the mountain won't come to Mahomet, Mahomet must be brought to the mountain, has transplanted Coney Island, or something very like an equivalent therefor, to the very heart of the White Light district of New York.

It is obvious enough that for all its manifold delights Coney Island isn't just the sort of place the metropolitanite will seek in the Winter time. But, says the astute purveyor of amusements, he will enjoy the carousel, the Punch and Judy show, the side-shows, and the wonders of the earth at any season of the year so long as he may see them comfortably and with as little expenditure of time and money as is commensurate with the entertainment. And this sort of moralizing is responsible for the fact that some thousand or more people last night enjoyed many of the sensations of Coney Island in comparative comfort in spite of the fact that the rain was coming down and the weather anything but propitious for the sort of out-of-door sports for which Coney is renowned.

To attain this desirable end the New York Theatre, leased for two years by Mr. Morris, has been practically transformed. One gets the sense of the circus and the side show at the first glimpse of the flags of all nations floating from the roof, and the blare of brass as one enters is in itself most reassuring.

For the private view last night the preliminary vaudeville entertainment had been curtailed, but there was a beautiful display of kinemacolor in the theatre. Then everybody piled up to the roof as fast as the somewhat congested elevators could accommodate the crowd. There the sight was of a sort to bring memories of the blue skies and the "hot dogs," and though these particular details were necessarily lacking there was a variety of familiar things to make Wonderland seem like another Coney come to town.

The "ring the cane" devices, the slippery slide, the carrousels, not in commission last night but assuredly promised for today, and Crazyland, with its wonderful mirrors that elongate or condense the human figure until your best friend wouldn't recognize you and wouldn't want to do so—all these and many more amusing features served to interest an audience which is usually at "first nights," and was really enjoying something like a novel sensation.

Over in one corner a barker announced the glorious sights to be seen in the Oriental booth, where half a dozen gayly caparisoned women danced and sang in a barbaric fashion to the sound of barbaric music. By way of contrast a troupe of Indians performed elsewhere, and the albino gentleman raised his voice to describe the peculiarities of the pink-eyed people, of whose rare beauties he was certain that he was a very fine example.

Two fat women vied for popularity, and the wild man with quills in his nose, a fixed stare, and very little else in the way of adornment, proved to be one of the most popular features in the show. These are but a few of the sights of "Wonderland, which further commended itself to last night's big crowd after they caught a glimpse of the splendid dancing floor and heard a good orchestra providing the sort of music that just naturally starts feet trotting.

WILL NOT WED SCOTTI.

Charlotte Ives Admits Her Engagement to Opera Singer Is Broken.

The engagement between Charlotte Ives, the actress, and Antonio Scotti, the opera singer, has been broken off. Miss Ives, who is living with a friend at 254 West 85th Street, admitted as much yesterday, but Mr. Scotti was more reticent, declaring that his private affairs were not for the public.

The engagement was announced during the Summer, shortly after the friendly relations which had always existed between Miss Farrar and Mr. Scotti were broken off. It had always been supposed that these two were engaged, and many times it has been rumored that they were married.

The Rev. Dr. Eben Burt Parsons.

The Rev. Dr. Eben Burt Parsons, 78 years old, for more than twenty years the Registrar of Williams College and the Secretary of its Faculty, died at his home in Williamstown, Mass., Thursday night. Dr. Parsons was born in Pittsfield, Mass., and was a graduate of Williams College. For a while in young manhood Dr. Parsons was professor of mathematics in Cooper Institute, this city. Dr. Parsons wrote books pertaining to the scholarship fraternity Phi Beta Kappa.

GUSTAVE LUDERS'S DEATH.

Stricken with Apoplexy Just After Withdrawal of His Latest Work.

Gustave Carl Luders, composer of many musical successes as "King Dodo" and "The Prince of Pilsen," and whose last piece was "Somewhere Else," now at the Broadway Theatre, died suddenly early yesterday morning of apoplexy in the Times Court Apartment House, 245 West Fifty-First Street. He had been greatly troubled by some of the newspaper criticisms of his latest opera, although the critics generally had praised the music in the piece. Its withdrawal from the Broadway was announced shortly before his death.

Mr. Luders, who lived at the Hotel Seymour, was with his wife and daughters on Thursday evening. He left them to keep an engagement with theatrical friends in the Times Court Apartment House. He was stricken in the apartment of Mitchell Obray and died before the arrival of Dr. Matthew Beattie of 238 West Fifty-First Street, who was called when the composer was taken ill. Dr. Benjamin Wolf, who lives in the Times Court Apartment, was also called but Mr. Luders was dead before either physician arrived.

Mrs. Luders went to Mr. Obray's apartments and arranged for the removal of the body for which Coroner Holtzhauser, after hearing the report of the two physicians, gave a permit.

Mr. Luders was born in Bremen, Germany, on Dec. 13, 1865. Among his operatic compositions were such well-known and successful pieces as "The Burgomaster," "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Shogun," "Woodland," "Marcelle," and "The Fair Co-ed." He was a member of the Lambs and other clubs.

George Malcolm Clark.

George Malcolm Clark, President of the Clark & Wilkins Company, fuel dealers, died yesterday after a long illness. He was 66 years old, and was a native of Tioga County, Penn. Mr. Clark was a graduate of Mansfield Classical Seminary, of which his father was the founder. During the civil war he was a drummer boy of one of the Pennsylvania regiments. He had lived in New York since 1865. Mr. Clark was prominent in Masonic circles, and is survived by a widow and two sons. The funeral will be held at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the Clark residence, 10 East 128th Street.

D. L. Robinson, Manager, Dies.

David L. Robinson, former manager of several Manhattan and Brooklyn theatres, died yesterday at his home in the Ashford Apartments, 131 West 110th Street, following a general breakdown. He was 44 years old. Mr. Robinson was successively the treasurer of the Empire Theatre in New York and Montauk, Gotham, Novelty, and Orpheum Theatres in Brooklyn. Later he became manager of the Colonial and Alhambra Theatres in Manhattan, and of the Brighton Beach Theatre. Mr. Robinson is survived by his widow and two daughters.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Depressed by Adverse Turkish News—Trading in Lighter Volume.

Whatever incentive might have existed for a continuance yesterday of the recovery which set in after Thursday morning's decline was offset by the adverse news from Constantinople. That news was not necessarily conclusive on the question whether renewed hostilities will precede peace in Southeastern Europe, but it, at least, again raised the question of a resumption of fighting and in a way which the securities markets, and more particularly those of Europe, could hardly be expected to ignore. It was at Berlin that the greatest effect of the unfavorable Turkish news was exerted, but all the bourses were more or less disturbed. The money markets, as well as the stock markets, showed the effect of the threatened continuance of the armed conflict between the Ottoman forces and the Balkan confederates.

Before our market opened, American stocks were depressed in London by Continental as well as by English selling and over-night losses of a point or more were recorded at the opening here in several of the leading stocks. A good deal of the lost ground was made up later, but this recovery lacked sufficient vigor to maintain prices against a resumption of selling in the afternoon. It was perhaps significant that the day's irregular fluctuations were accompanied by a considerably reduced volume of transactions. This may suggest that traders would have been more disposed to carry further the recovery of the previous afternoon, but, unable to do that in the face of the unsatisfactory news from abroad, they reduced their operations to a smaller compass.

The gold exports of the week appear to have offset by far the larger part of the cash gained from the interior. If to-day's bank return bears out yesterday's currency movement estimates, the net addition to reserves will be small, so small in fact as to be easily offset, so far as any change in the surplus reserve is concerned, by a moderate increase in deposits. The low rates for call money were a continued incentive for a shifting of out-of-town loans in this market to the banks here. There will be no cause for surprise if this movement has been carried on this week on a sufficiently large scale to increase reserve requirements to the full extent of the net cash gain, unless this proves larger than was indicated yesterday. Higher discount rates in Europe found natural reflection in a further rise in sterling exchange rates here. Demand sterling has risen nearly three cents since the last week in December and is now rapidly approaching a figure at which continued gold exports may be expected to put a check on any further rise. The outflow of gold has not prevented a sharp advance in exchange, for the reason that the gold export movement was started considerably ahead of the time when it was called for by the position of the exchange market itself. Nevertheless the steady advance in sterling exchange reflects a situation which suggests a further considerable movement of gold from this to other markets. We are not inconvenienced at this time by these drafts on a redundant reserve and in due course the additions which are being made to the gold supply of Europe should help the markets there to meet their money problems.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2@2¾ per cent., with the last loan at 2 per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 2¾ per cent.

Time money rates were at 3½@3¾ per cent. for sixty days, 4@4¼ per cent. for ninety days, and 4@4½ per cent. for four, five, and six months, and 4½@5 per cent. for a year.

Commercial paper was quoted at 4½@5 per cent. for best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $309,078,804; balances, $12,137,305; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $217,493.

The local banks have lost $6,078,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 4¾ per cent. for short bills and 4⅝@4 11-16 per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 4 per cent.; and Berlin, 4¾ per cent. Money was 3½@4¼ per cent. in London, and 4 per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 20½ centimes, and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 48 pfennings.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, $4.8840; demand, $4.8775.
Paris—Cable, 5.16⅛ plus 3-64; check, 5.16⅞ less 1-32.
Berlin—Cable, 95⅜ plus 1-64; check, 95¼ plus 1-64.
Switzerland—Cable, 5.18¾; check, 5.19⅛ less 1-32.
Holland—Cable, 40.35; check, 40.31.
Belgium—Cable, 5.19⅜ plus 1-16; check, 5.19⅝ less 1-16.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', 60 days, $4.8370; 90 days, $4.8185.
London—Commercial, 60 days, $4.83⅜; 90 days, $4.81½.
Paris—Commercial, 60 days, 5.20⅝ less 1-32; 90 days, 5.22½.
Berlin—Commercial, 60 days, 93⅜; 90 days, 94 1-16.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

Boston, par; Chicago, par; St. Louis, 25c premium; St. Paul, 55c premium; San Francisco, 50c premium; Montreal, 15⅝c premium.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Two New Departures.

The Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain System says it is establishing the most extensive chain of demonstration farms yet undertaken by an American railroad. This company has already located five large demonstration farms and expects soon to have a sixth in operation. The farms range from twenty-five to forty acres each, and work on them will be conducted along the same lines as on Government land. All the farms will be under the general supervision of L. A. Markham, Commissioner of Agriculture for the Missouri Pacific, who was formerly in the service of the Government's agricultural department. The St. Louis & San Francisco has gone further than the extension of the utilitarian idea; it has introduced a novel propaganda in railway work by engaging a special lecturer to preach the beautification of houses and lawns. The new teacher first visited California to gather data on the manner in which the residents of that State have rendered their homes so attractive, and he is now working along the 'Frisco's lines with a stereopticon lecture.

Railways as Educators.

It will not be surprising one of these days to learn that one of the big railways has set an example for the others by the appointment of a new Vice President "in charge of agricultural matters," or as "supervisor of farm efficiency." The friendly rivalry among the big transportation systems to see which can make life most attractive and remunerative for the farmers located near its lines has now attained such a prominent place in the companies' policies that it is worthy the attention of a Vice President, at least. In the "good old days" the President thought he was fulfilling the duties attached to his position if he kept the transportation machine in good running order and saw to it that there was no traffic going by other lines which might just as well go over his road. Nowadays a good live executive is expected to create new traffic by showing the farmer how to get two bushels of grain where he has been getting but one. James J. Hill and his son, Louis Hill, have been fostering this idea among Great Northern officials; Howard Elliott has gone about addressing farmers' gatherings in towns adjacent to the Northern Pacific's line; President Finley's addresses on cotton culture and the habits of the wicked little boll weevil would fill volumes; W. C. Brown of the Central and F. D. Underwood of the Erie both have their farms in the Middle West, where they spend several weeks each Summer showing the natives how to handle agricultural implements; the Denver & Rio Grande runs a small agricultural college over its lines in the shape of a special car fitted up as a classroom, and carrying instructors from the State colleges; B. F. Yoakum not only shows his neighbors in the Southwest how to farm, but takes them on trips to other sections to show them how others farm, and what kind of roads they build to get their produce to market; and so it goes. There is hardly a railroad President who is not studying farming on the side.

Traction Stocks Idle.

With all the exictement over the closing of the subway agreements there were sales on the Stock Exchange of only 200 shares of Inter.-Met. common and 600 shares of the preferred. As for Brooklyn Rapid Transit, there was not a single quotation. The only sale of B. R. T. reported yesterday was an odd lot on the Consolidated.

***

American Can Rumors.

Since American Can common betrayed its market friends by breaking from 47 to 25½ almost without a pause to allow the holders to lift their heads for a fresh breath, the issue has been in disfavor with the traders. For several weeks no one seemed to have any interest in Can, beyond a morbid curiosity as to whether or not it had broken through 20. In the last few days the old tip concerning a plan to pay off all of the preferred dividends which have accumulated has been taken out and polished up for use again. Can common closed Thursday night at 33, and sales of 27,000 shares in yesterday's rather heavy market only brought about a recession of ⅞.

Illinois Central's Dividend.

As everybody who reads the financial section of the newspapers knows, the Illinois Central had about as hard a time last Winter as any railroad could have without giving up the ghost. Following the discovery that its repair bills had been padded by dishonest employes came the shopmen's strike, which cut into earnings from above and below, by keeping down the amount of business offered and making the expense of handling the traffic that materialized in spite of the strikers abnormally heavy. Before the company had recovered a disastrous series of storms added new worries. The usually ample surplus over the 7 per cent. dividend was converted into a deficit of four and a quarter millions at the end of 1912. Somebody in the financial district seems to have learned this for the first time yesterday. On sales of only 3,400 shares the price broke from 127¼ to 121. A report that this foreshadowed a cut in the 7 per cent. dividend rate at next Wednesday's meeting was quickly denied by Directors. They pointed out that business was much better than it was last year. For the first five months of the new fiscal period the Illinois Central's gross gained $2,247,000, and its net income, after taxes, $780,000.

Unusual Dividend Record.

There are not many offices which can boast a complete set of Illinois Central reports, or even a record of its dividends. It has a better dividend record than any other road in the United States. Chartered in 1850, the company early acquired the dividend habit, and by 1858 had paid an extra stock dividend of 10 per cent. By 1871 the company had distributed $20,000,000, or almost the full amount of its capital stock. For many years the road paid 10 per cent., in 1880 the rate was cut to 5½, but 6 per cent. was paid in 1890. There was a payment of 5 per cent. per annum for nine years, but this was increased to 6 per cent. in 1901 and again to 7 per cent. in 1905. The Union Pacific holds about $33,000,000 of the stock in its treasury.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday copper was easy, showing a fractional decline. Tin was dull and slightly lower. Lead and spelter remained unchanged.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

Stand. Copper—	Friday. Bid.	Asked.	Thursday. Bid.	Asked.
Spot	15.50	..	15.62½	..
January	15.50	..	15.62½	..

Spelter	7.00	7.15	7.00	7.15
Tin	49.85	50.00	50.00	50.25

The following table of prices obtained yesterday on the London Metal Exchange for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These figures compare with Thursday's close:

	Friday. £ s. d.	Thursday. £ s. d.
Copper, spot	69 5 0	70 10 0
Copper, futures	68 10 0	70 15 0
Pig tin, spot	225 15 0	226 5 0
Pig tin, futures	223 15 0	225 0 0

The market finished steady. Spanish pig lead, £16 17s 3d, down 6s 3d. Spelter, £26 2s 6d, unchanged. Cleveland warrants, 65s 4½d, down 1s 1½d.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Issues Show Greater Activity—New St. Paul Bonds Rise.

A decided increase was shown yesterday in the trading in outside securities, with no marked changes, however, in the final prices of the day. United Cigar Stores of America lost ¾ of a point for the day after transactions in eight hundred shares. The new St. Paul convertible 4½s were traded in for the first time and showed considerable activity at advancing prices.

OUTLINE A SYSTEM FOR RETAIL PRICES

Only Five in Every 100 Retailers Succeed Because of Faulty Methods, Credit Men Say.

A DECIMAL PLAN THE BEST

Bulletin Issued by Credit Men's Association Shows How Profits and Expenses May Be Computed.

The National Association of Credit Men has issued a bulletin which asserts that statistics show only five in every hundred retailers in this country are able to stay in the race. The credit men contend that improper methods of determining profits and selling costs are responsible for most of the failures. The bulletin says:

Notwithstanding a common impression to the contrary, the retail merchant has to contend with problems bearing on his success or failure no less serious, complex and difficult to anticipate than those that must be solved by the successful jobbing house. Retail merchandising presents an open field to all, with no educational nor selective restrictions, but with one condition considered essential—though it is frequently absent—that there be adequate capital. Many who choose this vocation to gain their livelihood, placing at the risk of the game their capital, are untrained, inexperienced, and ill-adapted to meet the exacting conditions of retailing. Statistics prove that only five in every hundred who make a start at retailing are able to stay in the race.

The first fundamental principle in successful retailing is to provide in the sale price of any article or in the total of annual sales, a profit sufficiently liberal to cover the direct charges against the business: overhead or ascertainable expenses, interest on capital invested, contingencies, and a reasonable surplus. The first charge against a business is overhead, or ascertainable, expenses, and may be detailed in part as rent, light, heat, wages, advertising, insurance, and freight. The second charge is reasonable interest on capital invested. The third charge is for contingencies, and here is found the seat of much trouble, because contingencies are unforeseen, impossible of exact calculation, but are annual occurrences, and must be provided for. They may be detailed partially as follows: Natural depreciation of stock, depreciation through mistakes in buying or overbuying, dishonest employes, losses by individual bad debts, special sales or extra advertising in backward seasons.

These three charges constitute what is commercially known as gross or operating expenses, and the fourth charge, a reasonable surplus, is commercially known as net profit. Assuming that the retailer into whose hands this may fall has had his interest aroused in this fundamental principle of successful merchandising, the question will naturally be asked:

"How is the gross profit which comprises the operating expense and the net profit to be calculated into the selling price?"

Elaborate and helpful tables have been compiled and generously distributed by some business houses which recognize that the seller should co-operate with the buyer in making a success of the latter's business, but we believe that it is not so much a carefully worked out formula that is required as a plan which may be quickly appreciated and utilized by the retail merchant as a part of his clerical system.

There is a simple decimal plan which we are led to offer in this connection which has also been advanced in pamphlets and books treating definitely of retailers' interests. It must here be borne in mind that confusion and mistakes would likely occur if the gross expense were figured upon sales and the net profit upon cost. There should be uniform calculation.

The plan is this: Add the operating expense and the net profit in percentage figures, deduct the total reached through this addition from 100 per cent., and divide the cost of the article by the difference obtained.

This plan is of uniform application, and is merely converting an old decimal rule to an important service in the accountancy system of a successful retail business.

With suggestions regarding the determining of expenses, the bulletin concludes: "If the business is entirely new, the merchant must carefully estimate the ascertainable expenses, provide reasonably for contingencies, add interest upon the capital to be invested, and calculate the operating expense, which is the addition of these three items upon a conservative estimate of probable annual sales.

"In the case of a running business, the previous year's sales or an average of two or more years' sales and the previous year's operating expense, or the average of two or more years' operating expenses, may be taken as a basis for calculating the probable operating expense of the year to be provided for."

WHALEY TO QUIT N. Y. C.

Terminal Manager Is Appointed Traffic Head of New Haven Road.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—A. R. Whaley of Providence was elected Vice President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in charge of transportation, at a meeting of the Directors here to-day. He succeeds H. J. Horn, who is to become operating Vice President of the Boston & Maine Road.

Mr. Whaley is at present manager of the Grand Central Terminal and General Superintendent of the Electric Division of the New York Central.

He is 50 years old, and was born in Rhode Island. In 1877 he became a freight brakeman on the Providence & Worcester Railroad. He served as baggageman, conductor, station master, assistant train master, and general yard master, and upon the road's consolidation with the New Haven System in 1891 he was put in charge of train crews, with headquarters in Providence.

In 1898 he was made general agent of the terminals at Providence, and in 1899 was promoted to the Superintendency of what had then become the Worcester Division of the Consolidated Railroad. In this connection he played a prominent part in the electrification of the Providence, Warren & Bristol Line of his division.

Afterward Mr. Whaley became Superintendent of the New York Division of the New Haven Railway, in charge of the operation of that road from New York to New Haven.

In 1907 Mr. Whaley assumed his present position, and took charge not only of the operation of the Grand Central Terminal and the electrified zone of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, but of the multitudinous detail involved in the reconstruction of the terminal, and managed everything incident to the reconstructed property.

TRUST LAW MISAPPLIED.

Mail Order Houses Charged with Defeating Purpose of Sherman Act.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 24.—"The Sherman anti-trust law, as applied in a number of cases against retail lumber dealers, is being employed to defeat the very purpose for which it was intended," said L. O. Boyle, former Attorney General of Kansas, to the Convention of the Southwestern Lumbermen's Association to-day.

"The mail order houses are back of the suits against the retailers, in which it is charged that the retailers maintained black lists against certain dealers," said Mr. Boyle. "The Sherman law was enacted against great combinations of capital, to prevent them stamping out competition. Here we have great combinations of capital employing this law to squelch small independent dealers."

Buys Rochester Drug Stores.

The Riker-Hegeman Company, which owns more than eighty drug stores in New York, Boston, and other Eastern cities, has purchased from the Dake Drug Company of Rochester, N. Y., its two Main Street stores.

Appointed D., N. & P. Receivers.

DENVER, Jan. 24.—D. C. Dodge and S. M. Perry were to-day appointed receivers for the Denver, Northwestern & Pacific Railroad, by Federal Judge R. E. Lewis. The receivership was asked by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York.

STEEL TRUST NOT DISSOLVING

Judge Gary Denies Reports That It Would Voluntarily Split Up.

Chairman E. H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation issued yesterday this denial of reports that the Corporation would voluntarily dissolve:

"There is no foundation whatever for the published statement that 'the Steel Corporation is going to seek voluntary dissolution, and that it will apply to the Supreme Court for directions how to go about it.' The question has not been up for consideration by the Board of Directors, or the Finance Committee, or the officers of the Steel Corporation."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The rumor said to be current in Wall Street that the United States Steel Corporation is seeking a way to dissolve into its component parts and will next Monday go into the United States Supreme Court and ask for directions was pronounced "crazy rot," by a prominent official of the Department of Justice to-night when the matter was for the second time within a week called to his attention.

"It can be accepted that the United States Steel Corporation is not going into the United States Supreme Court to ask directions in regard to dissolution. There is no Federal statute under which a course is authorized just as there is no Federal statute under which trusts may be organized. If the Steel Trust wanted to dissolve voluntarily it would do so in New Jersey.

DISCUSSION AT CITY CLUB.

Education Association Considers Board's Relation to Government.

The Public Education Association at its conference at the City Club last evening discussed the question:

"What is the existing legal regulation of the Board of Education to the municipal government?"

The speakers were Deputy Controller Mathewson, Commissioner Abraham Stern, Dr. Frank P. Bachman, Leo Everett, and Frank B. Gilbert, chief of the law department of the State Education Department. In addition Dr. Frank Goodnow of the School Inquiry, and Thomas E. Finnegan of the State Education Department were invited to speak.

Names New Tea Censors.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Secretary MacVeagh appointed to-day the following new Tea Board to establish standard samples of pure tea, free of coloring matter, to govern importations during 1913, beginning about May 1: R. C. Morrison, Chicago; Charles B. Platt, San Francisco; H. G. Woodworth, Boston; E. R. Rogers, Tacoma, Wash.; C. E. Wyman, St. Paul; Herbert Perry, New York City, and George F. Mitchell, the Treasury Department's tea expert. The board will be convened in New York City Feb. 3, when it will select the standards.

Bumper Crops In Three Countries.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Wheat production in Argentina, Australia, and New Zealand this season is one-third greater than in the previous season, totaling 321,000,000 bushels, according to information received by the Department of Agriculture to-day from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The production was 130.7 per cent. of that harvested last season. In all three countries bumper crops appeared to be the rule.

Increases Stock to $40,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 24.—The Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company to-day filed an amendment to its charter with the Secretary of State, increasing its capital stock from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000. It paid a filing fee of $10,000.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Regarding the present position of trade Dun's Review says:

Fundamental conditions continue very satisfactory and, except in the securities market which has displayed more or less uncertainty, there has been no change in the general feeling of confidence. Current reports from leading mercantile and industrial centres are especially cheerful, both as to present operations and the immediate outlook. The remarkable Winter weather is producing different effects in different localities and branches of business, causing some recession of activity in certain trades and increase in other quarters. The absence of heavy snow over the Eastern part of the country has been very favorable to railroad traffic, and in the first two weeks of January gross earnings gained 15.3 per cent. over 1912, when the same roads, owing to adverse weather, reported a loss of 7.1 per cent. as compared with 1911.

In dry goods there is a continued conservative progress, with price advances announced in certain lines. Increasing activity is reported in shoe trade. Statistics of bank clearings reflect the prevailing activity in commercial and industrial channels, total exchanges this week being 8.2 per cent. larger than last year and 11.5 per cent. above 1911. It is a notable and significant fact that at the very time of this large development in domestic trade our foreign commerce continues to expand.

Bradstreet's says:

Weather conditions and tariff talk have made for more irregularity in trade reports this week, while financial feeling has reflected marked changes in sentiment proceeding from peace negotiations progressing in the Near East. Moisture in the form of rain or snow has been more widely distributed this week than for a long time past, but this, while beneficial to Winter wheat as a whole and the Southern and Southwestern Winter-sown cereals, has retarded demand at retail throughout wide areas and resulted in a continuance of flood conditions or of fears of damage in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys.

In other sections, notably the East and Southeast, the weather has been too mild for the best interests of retail trade, which, however, has been artificially stimulated by clearance sales. Jobbing trade has varied with the sections affected, but, generally speaking, orders catering to current needs have been of good volume, and hesitancy in the wholesale lines has largely been because of a desire to see more clearly into the full scope and effect of tariff changes, which at present have textile schedules for their chief object.

Taken as a whole, a trade, wholesale and retail combined, fully equal to or slightly in excess of last January, which was a month of dullness, is indicated, and the sections best situated are those with past good crop results, such as the Southwest, the Northwest, and parts of the Central West. In the Southeast trade and collections drag, while in the East and Northeast active occupation and good spending power of labor makes for a good, steady turnover.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

KNITTED SILK TIES.

Manufacturer Says There Has Been No Decline in Sales.—New Offerings.

Despite the difference of opinion prevailing in local haberdashery circles regarding the position of knitted silk neckwear, there has so far this year, according to a representative manufacturer, been no appreciable change in the volume of business done in staple lines retailing at $1.50 to $4. Novelties, he asserted, were selling better than ever.

"Knitted neckwear offers too wide a field for it to die out," he continued. "New things are being brought out all the time, among the latest of which are full-fashioned, open-end scarfs in a number of fancy Jacquard effects. Bias-stripe effects in two, three and four tones, in which the stripes cannot be curled regardless of the strain to which they are subjected, and French ombré effects in six and eight different shades are also shown. Knitted ascots are popular with the better class trade. One of the most novel offerings of the season is a crocheted scarf with Jacquard figures knitted in instead of embroidered. Knitted bat wing ties in accordion and crochet effects are being well taken for full dress and street wear."

DRY GOODS ARE ACTIVE.

Handkerchief Lines, in Colors, to be Feature of Coming Season.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"There has been a great deal of genuine enthusiasm in the dry goods business during the week. Sales for both immediate and future business are ahead of those of the same week last year.

"Roadmen are out with handkerchief lines for future delivery, and the volume of business booked at this early date surpasses all previous records. Orders placed on handkerchiefs have come mostly from buyers in the larger cities. Colors are a feature of the handkerchief styles for the coming season.

"Prices on Amoskeag staple ginghams were advanced to 6¾ cents this week. All cotton dress goods prices remained very firm, and deliveries on reorders are late, and many manufacturers will be delayed from thirty to forty days in delivering present orders.

"Woolen serges remain scarce and orders are being placed with manufacturers at value for deliveries extending into May and June."

MILLINERY RETAILERS BUSY.

Buyers Here In Large Numbers, and Many Novelties Are Offered.

Retail buyers are coming to the local millinery market in increasing numbers, and more activity is generally reported in this trade. Some of the importers have already had formal openings; others are still waiting for late shipments from Paris and getting in readiness for the season's influx. The bulk of the buyings is expected to be placed earlier than usual this season on account of the early Easter. The advance orders booked to date are generally said to compare very favorably with those of a year ago, and in some instances are considerably larger.

The feature of the Spring showings is the great number of novelties and the bright colors that predominate. Bulgarian shades are especially popular, and shapes, feathers, flowers and trimmings of all kind, are shown in various striking combinations. Small shapes are receiving the bulk of the attention. Trimmings are bought more liberally than in a number of years.

HEAVY KNIT GOODS SALES.

Practically All the Mills Have Full Capacity of Orders.

A few of the out-of-town buyers are still in the local knit goods market attending to the details of orders previously placed and covering their requirements for Fall, but the bulk of the buying has now been done and activity is gradually diminishing. The question of deliveries on Spring merchandise is still uppermost in the thoughts of buyers of both underwear and hosiery, and selling agents have received numerous requests to hurry shipments. With the exception of a few that turn out only lightweight good, all the mills are behind from a month to six weeks, on deliveries, due to the fact that Fall business continued so late they were unable to start on the production of Spring merchandise as early as usual.

The markets are both very strong and advances from 2½ to 5 per cent. on certain lines have been made during the week. Buying has been heavy and practically all the mills are sold up far ahead.

PRINTCLOTHS MORE ACTIVE.

There was more activity in the local printcloth market yesterday, with a much stronger demand reported for the wider goods. Printers seemed to be more inclined to place orders. Considerable trading was done in 38½-inch, 64-60s, and 39-inch, 80-80s, at 5 and 7 cents respectively for deliveries three or four months ahead. Quite a block of 38½-inch, 64-56s, changed hands at 4⅞c. The day's quotations follow:

27-inch, 56-52s	3 1-16c	38½-inch, 64-60s	5½c
27-inch, 56-56s	3¼c	38½-inch, 64-64s	5¾c
27-inch, 64-60s	3⅝c	39-inch, 68-72s	5⅞c
28-inch, 64-60s	3⅞c	39-inch, 72-76s	6⅜c
28-inch, 64-64s	4c	39-inch, 80-80s	7c bid
38½-inch, 60-52s	4 11-16c

Brown sheetings, Southern standard, 8@8½c; brown sheetings, 4-yard, 56-60s, 6½c; brown sheetings, 3 yard, 7¼@7½c; brown drills, standard, 8@8½c; denims, 9-ounce, 14@17½c; tickings, 8-ounce, 13¾c; standard prints, 5½c, and standard staple ginghams, 6¼@6¾c.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Shelton Electric Company, manufacturers of vibratory appliances, massage machines, and electric hair-dryers, now at 13 West Forty-second Street, have engaged new quarters for a term of years in the building at 4 East Forty-second Street. They will occupy the entire first floor.

H. Wolff & Co., importers, are now located in the building at 20 East Twentieth Street.

The following officers of Berg Brothers, importers and jobbers of notions, 44 Elspenard Street, were elected at the recent annual meeting of the stockholders: President and Treasurer, David Berg; Vice President, Philip Berg; Secretary, M. P. Berg, and Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, Leopold Hirsch.

Korones Brothers, wholesale jewelers, now at 46 Maiden Lane, will take new quarters in the Lorsch Building, 37 Maiden Lane, about March 15.

Samuel Phillipson & Co., wholesale general merchandise, formerly located at Twelfth and Johnson Streets, Chicago, have just moved to their own new building at 828 West Twelfth Street, that city.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The call for beaded bags, buttons, and bandeaux in this market is quite unprecedented, and the feeling prevails in the fancy goods and notions trade that the demand for these goods will be even greater next month, when the buyers arrive in the local market.

Novelty ribbons in narrow widths are in good demand in millinery circles. There is an unusually good call for this merchandise in picot and flowered edges.

Imported Numadi feathers are selling well for Spring, and prices abroad have been advanced more than 50 per cent., it is said, on account of the limited supply obtainable and the increase in the demand.

Ribbed hosiery is still scarce and mills making this line are far behind on deliveries.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

An international commission has been appointed to examine into works in connection with the navigation of the Upper Rhine between Strasburg, Basel, Schaffhausen, and Lake Constance. The President is M. C. A. Jolies, Engineer in Chief and Director of the Rijkswaterstaat at Arnhem, (Holland.) The cost of the scheme for the improvement of the Upper Rhine is estimated at $3,500,000.

Kerosene oil is now consumed by the world to the extent of a million gallons daily. The United States output in 1912 was 220,000,000 gallons.

Copper production in the United States in 1912 attained a new high record—1,249,000,000 pounds, worth $200,000,000, an increase of 151,000,000 pounds over 1911.

Coal production in the United States in 1912, according to the Geological Survey, was 550,000,000 tons, surpassing the previous high record of 1910 by 10 per cent., and over double the production of 1900.

CROCKERY MARKET ACTIVE.

Larger Orders Reported—Scarcity of Merchandise in Retailers' Hands.

Buying was quite active in the local crockery and glassware market this week, and in many instances the individual orders were reported to be larger than usual. This feature was attributed both to the prevailing scarcity of merchandise in retailers' hands and the fear of still higher prices on certain lines following the recent advances.

Import orders for dinnerware, particularly English, were in several cases nearly double those for the corresponding week of a year ago. Japanese wares were said to be moving better than ever before. Manufacturers of lamps, plateaux and other special lines also participated in the activity.

According to the Crockery and Glass Journal's reports, the domestic potters continue busy, with new business more plentiful than at this time in 1912, despite the advances named. The glass exhibition in Pittsburgh features the week in that field. Buyers were reported to be also active at the show.

LARGE FREIGHT CAR ORDER.

Pennsylvania Asks for Bids on 12,300 to Cost About $16,000,000.

The Pennsylvania Railroad system asked for bids yesterday on 12,300 new freight cars, which will cost approximately $16,000,000. Of these 2,300 will be to replace worn-out cars, and 10,000 will be in addition to the present equipment. The replacement will in all cases be cars of 100,000 pounds capacity, whereas the worn-out cars had only an average capacity of 60,000 pounds, there will be a net addition to the carrying capacity of the company of about 40,000 pounds a car. The replacements and additions will represent a net increase in carrying capacity of 545,000 tons.

The lines east of Pittsburgh will utilize 5,000 of the steel gondola cars, 1,300 wooden side gondola cars, and 1,000 refrigerator cars. The lines west of Pittsburgh will use 3,000 steel gondola cars, 1,000 wooden side gondola cars, 500 refrigerator and 500 box cars. It is expected that the gondola cars will cost about $1,200 each, the refrigerator cars $2,000 each, and the box cars $1,300 each. These purchases will be addition to orders placed in 1912 for a total of about $20,000,000 worth of freight cars.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Cuban Scrap Iron Cut by Treaty—Sapphires Not Always Gems.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that the reciprocity treaty with Cuba was sufficiently broad to cover scrap iron when it granted a reduction of 20 per cent. ad valorem on "products of the soil or industry of Cuba." The Collector at Philadelphia exacted full duty under paragraph 118 of the Tariff act of 1909.

F. B. Vandegrift & Co., and O. G. Hempstead & Son protested. Judge Fischer said that it was a close question whether scrap iron was a product since it results from wear and tear, but that the treaty should have a broad interpretation.

The General Electric Company gained duty at 20 per cent. on pieces of sapphire for bearings for motors. The Collector at Boston took duty at 50 per cent. for semi-precious stones. Judge Sharretts decided them to be non-enumerated manufactured articles.

Small pocket mirrors imported by W. C. Horn Bros. & Co. were held dutiable under the act of 1909 at 45 per cent. ad valorem as "mirrors." The importers asked 35 per cent on toys.

NEW YORK 'PHONES SLOW.

Much Quicker Service Up-State—Albany Answers to Calls Take Longest.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Tests of the speed of telephone operators, made by Inspectors of the Public Service Commission in various parts of the State, show that it takes longer to answer a telephone call in Albany than in any other city visited by the Inspectors. The average for Albany in 1912, according to the commission's report, was 6.4 seconds. In 1911 it was 5.5 seconds. In New York City, which has the largest telephone system in the world, the average was 5.4 seconds in 1912 and 6.6 in 1911.

Tests in other cities showed: Syracuse, 6.1 seconds; Watertown, 4.7; Ithaca, 4.6; Dunkirk, 4.4; Binghamton, 4.3; Cortland, 4.3; Jamestown, 4.2; Elmira, 4; Olean, 3.9; Rochester, 3.6; Corning, 3.6; Buffalo, 3.3; Batavia, 2.8.

NOT TOO LOW A TARIFF.

Democrats Won't Cut Duties to Hurt Business, Says Underwood.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Chairman Underwood of the House Committee on Ways and Means announced emphatically at the tariff hearing to-day that there was no intention of cutting the rates of duty so low along competitive lines as to ruin the business interests of the country. He took exception to intimations he attributed to Republican members that the Democratic majority of the committee purposed to make rates that would disturb business prosperity.

"I deny that there is any such intention," he said, following remarks of Representative Payne, ranking Republican member of the committee.

The committee, which heard the testimony of many manufacturers and importers on the flax, hemp, and jute schedules of the tariff, was not disposed to question the competitive character and luxury classification of many of the laces, embroideries, and other articles in the schedule. Mr. Underwood took occasion to agree as to some of them that their competitive status seemed to have been sustained, which is in favor of approximately the same rates on many items.

The entire schedule is one of the most profitable in the whole tariff scheme, and produced last year more than $49,000,000 of revenue, with duties averaging above 45 per cent. ad valorem. Some of these articles will be reduced to stimulate competition and bring revenue.

Witnesses on the wool schedule will testify on Monday, and sundries will be taken up on Wednesday.

The free list, administrative features, and miscellaneous matters will wind up the hearings on Jan. 31.

366 Business Failues This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 366 business failures in the United States, against 343 for the previous week and 436, 345, 295, and 311 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 134, New England, 36, Southern 91, Western 56, Northwestern 16, and Far Western 33. Canada had 43, against 37 for the preceding week. About 80 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 9 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

HERMAN LICHTENSTEIN, manufacturer of monuments and headstones, 117 Delancey Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $2,200 and assets of $20.

HANUS FINDS SCHOOL SYSTEM DEFICIENT

Head of Investigating Experts Says That Reorganization Is Needed Here.

WORK TOO BUREAUCRATIC

Would Wipe Out Board of Superintendents Altogether and Put Examiners on Efficient Basis.

The long expected report of Prof. Paul H. Hanus of Harvard University, head of the group of educational experts, who have been making a study of the New York City public school system was made public in part yesterday. The reports of the experts find the New York City school system gravely deficient in many respects, and recommend sweeping changes, amounting almost to a complete reorganization, in order to fit the schools to the practical needs of the majority of pupils.

In its report to the Board of Estimate, the Committee on School Inquiry, consisting of President John Purroy Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, Controller William A. Prendergast, and Borough President Cyrus C. Miller of the Bronx, explains that the part of the Hanus report made public yesterday consists of only Prof. Hanus's summary of some of the findings of the educational experts who conducted the investigation, with a summary by him of the general reforms recommended on the basis of those findings. The reports of the individual experts, it was explained, would be made public one by one, with an introductory summary of each by Prof. Hanus.

Eleven Specialists Employed.

Eleven specialists were employed by the Committee on School Inquiry under Prof. Hanus, each for a particular study and each nominated by him and working under his supervision and direction. These specialists and their subjects were:

Dr. Frank P. Bachman, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Cleveland, Ohio, "Statistical Studies," "Promotion, Non-promotion, and Part Time," "Intermediate Schools," and "Method of Estimating the Need of Elementary School Teachers;" Dr. Edward C. Elliott, Director of the School of Education of the University of Wisconsin, "The System of Supervision and the Board of Examiners;" Dr. Jesse Burks, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, Philadelphia, "The Compulsory Attendance Service;" Dr. Herman Schneider, Dean of the College of Engineering, University of Cincinnati, "Vocational (Industrial) Schools;" Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Director of School Affiliation and Assistant Professor of Education, University of Cincinnati, "Problems in Organization and Administration of High Schools;" Dr. Calvin O. Davis, Assistant Professor of Education, University of Michigan and Inspector of High Schools, "The Course of Study in High Schools;" Dr. Frank V. Thompson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Boston, Mass., "Commercial Education;" Dr. Henry H. Goddard, Director, Department of Psychological Research, New Jersey Training School for Feeble-minded Boys and Girls, "Ungraded Classes;" Stuart A. Courtis, head of Department of Science and Mathematics, Detroit Home and Day School, Detroit, Mich., "The Courtis Tests in Arithmetic;" Dr. Frank McMurry, Professor of Elementary Education, Teachers' College, Columbia University, (a) "The Quality of Classroom Instruction," (b) "The Course of Study," (c) "The Supervision by the Principals;" Dr. Ernest C. Moore, Professor of Education, Yale University, "The Board of Education and Local Boards."

The report of Prof. Moore was rejected by the Committee on School Inquiry, on the ground that many of its assertions were not supported by evidence. Another report will be filed in its place, and is now under preparation by other experts.

The Committee on School Inquiry also employed other experts to report separtely from the Hanus report on the physical plant and business administration of the schools.

In submitting to the committee the monographs of the eleven experts, Prof. Hanus summarizes the most important of the conclusions reached by them.

Thorough Reorganization Needed.

"It is clear," he says, "that in spite of the progress the public school system of New York City has made since the consolidation, it is seriously defective. It needs thorough reorganization in respect to its administration by the Board of Education and the supervisory staff; and in respect to its general system of supervision.

"The Board of Education needs a clear conception of its functions, and should come to close quarters with its work. In the general system of supervision, helpful co-operation under leadership should replace bureaucratic control.

"The Board of Superintendents fulfils no useful function, and should be abolished.

"The Board of Examiners is decidedly efficient, but needs reorganization to improve and maintain its efficiency.

"The quality of the teaching in the elementary schools, at least, is, in general, not good.

"The courses of study for elementary schools and for high schools need thoroughgoing revision, and flexibility should replace rigidity in their administration.

"The compulsory attendance service is inefficient; it emphasizes police functions rather than preventive measures, and the staff needs reorganization on a functional basis.

"The recognized advantages of intermediate schools in relieving congestion have not led to the further establishment of such schools, and no attempt has been made to realize the exceptional educational opportunities these schools afford.

"Promotions and non-promotions are not studied so as to yield a real basis for a maximum rate of promotion.

"Part-time classes should be abolished.

"The estimated need of teachers for elementary schools and for high schools is not based on indisputable and well-organized data.

"The provision for industrial education is so meagre as to be almost negligible; neither industrial nor commercial education is so maintained as to secure the necessary effective co-operation of industry and commerce, and co-operative and continuation schools are wholly absent.

"Habitual self-scrutiny and an appeal to well-conducted investigations and experiments to secure the necessary data to confirm or refute educational opinion and furnish the regulative for all the activities of the school system and for its adequate financial support are lacking."

Prof. Hanus explained that, while there were as yet no universally accepted standards in education whereby the adequacy or inadequacy of educational aims and practices could be judged, it was possible by studying the practices of progressive school systems throughout the country to formulate the aims that determined their activities and that such formulations by different individuals would agree in representing in the main what the American people wanted their schools to do.

"I have attempted such a formulation," he said. "It has been accepted in most particulars by my associates, and in the absence of a universally accepted standard of what instruction in public school systems should offer, it has been used, together with the conclusions reached by my associates in their study of details, to estimate the adequacy or inadequacy of New York City's educational offering, so far as that offering was studied by us.

Outlines the General Needs.

"This attempt to formulate the aims and principles underlying the contemporary provision for and tendencies in American education should include the following:

"Public education should train efficient citizens—men and women who recognize and appreciate the common interests of our democratic society and are able to promote their progressive development.

"Public education should strive gradually to emancipate each pupil from external restraint and guidance, and thus render him self-directing—intellectually, morally, and physically stable, alert, vigorous, and active. Together with the instruction public education offers, it should therefore insist throughout on discipline that is wise, kindly, and firm, including appropriate punishment when it is needed—a discipline that insists on progressive conformity of conduct to insight, including habits of steady application and reasonable achievement.

"Public education should strive to render each pupil economically intelligent and efficient. It should direct each pupil's attention to a vocation to which he may reasonably aspire."

To reach these ends the public schools of this or any other American city, according to Prof. Hanus, must be so constituted as to provide means of appropriate and so far as possible complete general development for the pupil, and various kinds of vocational training adapted to the needs, tastes, and future callings of all pupils who pass at once from school to their life work, and for those who wish to improve themselves after they have gone to work.

Pictures the Model School.

With this end in view, Prof. Hanus outlined what the model school should provide as follows:

I. The elements of general culture, comprising

(a) A satisfactory command of the school arts—the three r's.

(b) An insight into, appreciation of, and power to deal with (1) the recorded ideals and experience of the race; and (2) all worthy interests of contemporary life, so far as they can be rendered interesting, intelligible, and accessible to children and youth of school age—that is to say, the school programme (programme of studies) must cover:

(a) The school arts—reading, writing, arithmetic.

(b) Language and literature (modern and ancient.)

(c) History, government, and economics.

(d) Art (pictorial and plastic art, constructive art, and music.)

(e) Mathematics.

(f) Natural science.

(g) Manual arts and domestic arts.

(h) Physical education, including physical training and athletics.

(i) Vocational guidance in

I. Kindergartens.

II. Elementary schools, with differentiated upper grades, and well articulated with the

III. High schools, having as wide a range of electives (administered under wise guidance) as possible.

2. Vocational training (training for specific social service) at the upper end of the elementary school in industrial and commercial schools, whether called secondary schools or not, in

(a) Day vocational schools for normal pupils over fourteen years of age, whether they have completed an eight years' elementary school course or not, and who will not go to a high school.

(b) Day co-operative and continuation schools (vocational) for pupils fourteen to eighteen years of age who cannot afford or will not take the time to attend a day vocational school.

(c) Evening continuation schools, vocational and non-vocational, for pupils over eighteen years of age who are at work during the daytime.

(d) Vocational high schools—vocational schools of secondary grade.

(1) High schools of commerce.

(2) High schools of practical arts (technical high schools.)

(3) Agricultural high schools.

In addition to this, however, he declared, the American public school system must also take cognizance of the needs and requirements of its abnormal or exceptional children, and he recommends the establishment of separate schools or classes for cripples, anaemic and tubercular children, incorrigibles and truants, blind, deaf and mentally defective children.

"New York City," he adds in conclusion, "meets the foregoing standard of educational opportunity only partially, and in some respects hardly at all."

'THE MONEY GETTER' CAUGHT

Eight-Year-Old Athlete Reaped a Harvest in Saloons.

Respectability in the form of Agent McLaughlin of the Children's Society has overtaken Morris Hindin, eight years old, known to the east side as "Morris the Money Getter." So great was the money getter's fame as an acrobat in the saloons where he did "stunts" in return for what change he could acquire afterward that it got to the ears of those whose duty it is to keep little boys from demoralizing environments.

Policeman Willis of the East Fifth Street Station found Morris in the neighborhood of Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue. When he was taken before Mr. McLaughlin of the Children's Society yesterday he showed his prowess as an athlete. First he doubled up like a porcupine. Then he turned a "flip" and followed that by balancing himself on his head. In that position he bumped across the floor.

Later the boy was taken before Justice Hoyt in the Children's Court, where he said he lived at 537 East Thirteenth Street. He told the Justice that he frequently made from $1 to $2 a night by his performances, and gave the money to his father. His father, Samuel Hindin, asserted that the boy had given him but $1 several months ago. He said he understood his son spent his earnings on cigarettes and older boys who accompanied him on his nightly exhibition rounds.

Morris was then remanded to the custody of the Children's Society until Jan. 28, when he will be examined again.

Another boy, who was found by Policeman Knapp walking along the New York Central tracks at Spuyten Duyvil, said that he was on his way to Nebraska to fight Indians. He was identified by the society as George Mastriano, 11 years old, of 514 Morris Avenue, the Bronx. The society has fourteen records against members of Mastriano's family.

RINTELEN WINS WILL FIGHT.

Retrial of $100,000 Estate Contest a Victory for Nephew.

Joseph C. Rintelen won his fight to have set aside the will of his aunt, Miss Elizabeth S. Rintelen, who died in the Summer of 1911, leaving an estate valued at about $100,000 to the family of the late Frank Schaefer, a truckman living in Woodhaven, L. I., when a jury before Justice Benedict in the Queens County Supreme Court, Long Island City, last evening returned a verdict sustaining young Rintelen's contest. The jury found that Miss Rintelen was not of sound mind nor mentally capable of making a will when she signed the document purporting to be her will on Dec. 11, 1908.

This verdict for the time being disposes of an action which aroused considerable interest throughout Queens and Brooklyn. Miss Rintelen was the daughter of the late Adam C. Rintelen, who years ago made a fortune in the Bronx. She was adjudged an incompetent on July 13, 1904, on the application of Schaefer, who took her to his home in Woodhaven, and then again on Dec. 28, 1905, she was declared competent, also on the petition of Schaefer. It was between that period and her death that she made her will in favor of the Schaefer family, naming Miss Rose Schaefer as executrix and leaving $1,000 to her nephew Joseph C. Rintelen on condition that he did not contest the will. Surrogate Daniel Noble admitted the will to probate, and several months ago on a trial before a jury the will was upheld. This verdict was set aside by the Appellate Division, which sent the case back for retrial. The attorneys representing the Schaefer family will take an appeal.

"BARONESS" LOSES ESTATE.

Transferred to Her Sisters When She Married von Koenitz.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard decided yesterday that the property of Louise Ewen von Koenitz, who married "Baron" Boto von Koenitz, is to remain in the hands of the two sisters of the "Baroness." Because she had feared that Von Koenitz might get possession of her property, which is estimated at more than $375,000 in bonds and stocks and an unknown amount of real estate, it seems that the "Baroness" had in 1910 transferred all her property to her two sisters, the Misses Eliza M. and Caroline Ewen, reserving for herself only the income of it for life. Later, when she obtained an annulment in May, 1911, of her marriage to von Koenitz, she asked that the property be returned to her. One of the sisters, Miss Caroline Ewen, consented, but the other refused and took the matter to court. In making his decision the Justice said:

"It seems to me that when Louise by deed absolute on its face conveyed the real property to her sisters, she thereby lost all power to in any way control any disposition of that property which her sisters might make and she has no power thereafter to impose any conditions."

A Child Labor Church Service.

A special service in the interest of the protection of children from the dangers of child labor will be held in the French Church of the Holy Spirit, (Eglise du Saint-Ssprit) 45-47 East Twenty-seventh Street, to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. Speakers will be Dr. Gardner of the Polyclinque of New York; Prof. Meyland of Columbia, and Miss J. J. Eschenbrenner of the National Child Labor Committee. The service will be under the direction of the pastor of the church.

MRS. THAW OPPOSES HABEAS CORPUS BILL

Asks State Bar Association Not to Press Measure Aimed Against Her Son.

EX-GOV. BOIES JOINS APPEAL

Says Thaw Is Not In Prison as Punishment and Should Have a Chance to Prove Sanity.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24.—Fearful that the New York State Bar Association will take action at its State meeting this year, calling on the Legislature to debar the criminally insane from the benefit of the act of habeas corpus, which would stop Harry K. Thaw from further efforts at seeking his release from Matteawan, or any other institution for the insane in New York State, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, his mother, has addressed a letter to the members of the New York State Bar Association, which reads as follows:

To the members of the New York State Bar Association:

I am informed that the same committee of your honorable body, to whose action in 1910 reference is made in the inclosed letter of ex-Gov. Boies, is about to make another report at your meeting in Utica.

As I am personally referred to in its report of 1910 (see proceedings of New York State Bar Association, Vol. 33, Page 390), it will, I know, not be deemed improper or presumptuous for me to address you upon the subject. I do this, however, simply to bring to your attention the following letter of ex-Gov. Horace Boies of Iowa, himself a distinguished jurist and still a member of the Bar of the State of New York.

I will only add that, since it is apparent that every report of your committee has been dictated by a desire to prevent the release of my son from a hospital for the criminal insane, I trust that I may be permitted to express the hope that your body may not be influenced to recommend legislation which I am advised may fairly be characterized as ex post facto legislation.

I trust, also, that you may hesitate long before you wear the appearance of prejudging any application which I or any other petitioner may make to the courts, or the appearance of seeking to tamper with their conscience or other independence.

Yours Very Respectfully,
MARY COPLEY THAW.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20, 1913.

In the open letter of ex-Gov. Horace Boies of Iowa, which Mrs. Thaw inclosed with her own, the writer asks the members of the Bar Association not "to shut the doors of the courts of your State against one particular individual—Harry K. Thaw." He severely criticises the language of the report of a committee of the association, recommending changes in the laws to prevent successive applications for the writ of habeas corpus by persons confined in the State Asylums for the criminal insane as unprofessional, in that, among other things, it characterizes the shooting of Stanford White as "a foul and cowardly murder," whereas (says Mr. Boies), it was "an act of overwhelming misfortune" of Thaw's, "that should excite the sympathy, instead of the revenge, of every human mind." After developing his thesis that Thaw "was not sent to the asylum for the purpose of punishment, that instead thereof, he was sent for the purpose of humane treatment, and as a protection of others against the acts of an insane man." Mr. Boies says:

"You know the very day he recovers his reason he is entitled to his liberty. You also know that to lend your great influence to deprive him of that right would be an ignoble act, if not a monstrous crime.

"What I want to see for this man is a fair and impartial trial of the only question that has not already been settled in his case by solemn adjudication of competent courts, and that is, the question of the present condition of his mind. If he is now sane, he is as much entitled to his liberty as any other living man. If, on the other hand, he is still insane, and his freedom would endanger the lives or persons or others, he should be confined, not for punishment, but for his own benefit and the safety of others."

TO WORK FOR MOUNT VERNON

Society Formed to Build Up City—Water Supply Taken Up.

Well-known bankers, merchants, real estate brokers, railroad men, and city officials attended a dinner in Elks Hall, at Mount Vernon last night and formed an organization for the purpose of "boosting" Mount Vernon. H. S. Dickson of the First National Bank was Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, and Mayor Edwin W. Fiske was toastmaster. They resolved to try and double the population of the city, to obtain more rapid-transit facilities and to work for the interest of the city in general.

Mayor Fiske said that at a conference yesterday with the Board of Water Supply of New York, it was practically decided to allow Mount Vernon to tap the Catskill water supply. If the price to be paid to New York City cannot be decided upon it will be fixed by the State Board of Water Conservation. Among the other speakers were President Leverett S. Miller, of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company; Francis A. Stratton, President of the Westchester Lighting Company; Joseph S. Wood, L. V. Babcock and P. V. Lockwood, of the New York Central System.

WILL OF A COUNTESS FILED.

Widow of Count Charles de Montsaulnin Had Property Here.

The will of Anna Elliot Morris Zborowski de Montsaulnin, widow of Count Charles de Montsaulnin, of 5 Rue Nitot, Paris, France, was filed for probate yesterday at the Surrogates' Court. The estate of the Countess, who died Jan. 6, 1912, is not estimated, the petition merely saying that it is more than $10,000 personalty and more than $10,000 realty.

The will is dated March 26, 1912, and says that another will had been drawn disposing of property in England and France. Two daughters, Anna Marie Madeleine de Montsaulnin, wife of Count Roland du Luart, of 185 Rue de la Pompe, Paris, and Marguerite Diane Solange de Montsaulnin, wife of Vicomte Herve de Gourcuff, of 62a Rue Pierre Charron, Paris, receive all the property in the United States in equal shares.

MARSHALLS CHOOSE A HOTEL

Will Not Have a House While In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Vice President-elect Thomas R. Marshall and Mrs. Marshall have determined not to take a house in Washington but will live in a hotel during their four years' residence here after March 4. Accommodations have been engaged by the Vice President-elect's secretary, Mark Thistlwaite, in a hotel within three blocks of the White House.

The decision of Gov. and Mrs. Marshall to settle down to hotel life is taken by Capital society to mean that they will not entertain much the coming Administration and there is disappointment in consequence.

Held for Chicago Diamond Murder.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Jan. 24.—George Cramer, wanted in Chicago in connection with the murder of Joseph H. Logue, a diamond merchant, was arrested here early to-day. He stoutly maintained his innocence of the murder. Chicago detectives said a letter signed by Cramer, who has been convicted of burglary, was found among the effects of Logue, requesting the latter to sell sixty pounds of silver.

DICTOGRAPH IN COURT.

One Set Up to Show How Extortion Evidence Was Obtained.

A demonstration of the work of the dictograph was made before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday, when one was set up in court and its workings explained to the jury in the case of Mrs. Frances Dio, on trial for attempted extortion.

Mrs. Dio is a fortune teller living at 190 East Third Street. She is accused of having attempted to extort $1,000 from Dr. Samuel Tandlich of 624 Lexington Avenue. The principal witness against her was Max Erlich, a lawyer, who represented her in dealings with Dr. Tandlich, and whose conversation was recorded by the police by the use of a dictograph, which had been placed in Dr. Tandlich's office.

According to the complaint, Dr. Tandlich had been receiving threatening letters. One of them instructed him to leave $1,000 with Mrs. Dio. Dr. Tandlich told his troubles to the police, and two detectives visited Mrs. Dio. She said a man who was boarding with her had sent the letters. The detectives told her she should advise the boarder to send a lawyer to see Dr. Tandlich. They then went back to the Doctor's office and installed a dictograph. After Erlich had visited Dr. Tandlich Mrs. Dio was arrested.

Erlich testified yesterday that he acted simply as legal advisor for Mrs. Dio, and had no knowledge that she ever attempted to blackmail the doctor.

In order to demonstrate how it was possible for the detectives to hear the conversation which took place in the doctor's office, Assistant District Attorney Bostwick introduced the dictograph in evidence. The trial will be continued today.

FILIPINOS GOOD PRINTERS.

Only a Few Americans Left Now In Manila Government Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The evolution of the personnel of the Bureau of Printing of the Philippines from an all-American force in 1902 to one containing 94 per cent. of Filipinos, is the basis of a report by John S. Leech, Director of the institution. Of this native element apprentices constitute 63.63 per cent.

Mr. Leech says the shop is graduating workmen who would be a credit to their trade in any country. By a system of instruction in office organization and management the more promising apprentices are being fitted for positions requiring administrative and executive ability.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Builder Buys Old Flats in East Ninety-sixth Street for Apartment House Site — The Old Whitney Mansion Being Demolished—Activity in the Bronx and Suburban Market.

Closely following the large speculative purchase made by Klein & Jackson of a 100-foot plot on the south side of Ninety-fifth Street, 100 feet east of Fifth Avenue, yesterday from James A. Farley comes another large deal in that upper Fifth Avenue locality, the buyer in this case being Mr. Farley. From John W. Brice he has purchased through Duff & Conger the row of five old-fashioned flats at 58 to 66 East Ninety-sixth Street, adjoining the six-story Woodward Hall apartment on the southeast corner of Madison Avenue.

The plot just acquired by James A. Farley has a frontage of 100 feet by 100.8 deep. The property has been held at $150,000. No plans for immediate improvement are contemplated, but unless sold to a builder the new owner will improve the property in the near future with a twelve-story apartment. Ninety-sixth Street is a wide thoroughfare and offers an excellent opportunity for a high-class improvement of this character in that neighborhood.

Tearing Down Whitney Mansion.

Wreckers began yesterday to tear down the famous Whitney mansion on the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. The building with the adjoining one at 732 Fifth Avenue have been sold for less than $1,000,000 by the new owners to the C. H. Southard Company, which has received the contract to tear down the buildings, and the work will be completed within fifty days. The property will be utilized for business uses.

The new owners, known as the 734 Fifth Avenue Company, of which August Heckscher is the head, took title to the property a few days ago, having purchased the plot from Harry Payne Whitney for about $2,000,000, and they have just given a mortgage for five years for $1,750,000. It is estimated that it will cost about $10,000 to tear down the present dwellings.

Operators Buy the Decker Building.

The eleven-story Decker Building at 33 Union Square has been sold to Lowenfeld & Prager by William F. Decker of New York and William Maucher of Neustadt, Germany.

The lot on which this structure stands, 30.6 by 150 feet, with a right of way in the rear to Sixteenth Street, was purchased a year ago by the new owners from Justice John Clinton Gray, Mrs. Alice S. Wheelock, and Mrs. Mary A. Kemeys subject to the lease of Decker & Maucher.

By the purchase of the building Lowenfeld & Prager now become the sole owners of both land and building. The Douglas Robinson Charles S. Brown Company were the brokers.

Old East Side Buildings Sold.

The three old buildings at 57 and 59 Catharine Street and 3 Monroe Street, forming the northeast corner of the above thoroughfare, have been sold by the Howard Crosby estate to Lowenfeld & Prager for speculation. The structures occupy a plot 47.9 by 99.7, by irregular. The buyers have also contracted to purchase from the Crosby estate, the four-story building, on lot 25 by 87.6, at 205 East Broadway, between Jefferson and Clinton Streets. The properties have not changed hands for half a century. The firm of Leonard J. Carpenter negotiated both sales.

The Private Dwelling Market.

H. K. Brightman has sold to a client of Phillip Steinman & Son for occupancy, one of the King model row of private dwellings, at 239 West 139th Street, on a lot 19 by 100 feet.

Pennington Whitehead, as trustee of the Haggerty estate, has sold 621 West 138th Street, a three-story stone front dwelling, on lot 15 by 99.11, located 285 feet west of Broadway.

The Mary Jane Stafford estate has sold to Lewine & Kempner, 332 West Twentieth Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 92. A. A. Hageman was the broker.

John C. Clancy & Co. sold 333 and 335 West Fifty-eighth Street, two four-story and basement dwellings, on plot 42.10 by 100.5, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues.

St. James Court Sold.

The St. James Court, a seven-story elevator apartment house, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Ninety-second Street has been sold to an investor by the Leicestershire Realty Company, of which Franklin Pettit is President.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Solon Singer has purchased from Holzwasser & Co., 1,359 and 1,361 Fifth Avenue, two five-story flats, on a lot 50 by 100 feet, located between 113th and 114th Streets. No. 1,361 has been resold to Isaac Huthoff for investment. Phillip Steinman & Son negotiated both transactions.

William Goldschmid has sold for Jacob Schleich the five story flat situated at 110 East Eighty-ninth Street, 25 by 100 feet, to John Scharsberger for investment.

Wallace & Meyers in conjunction with Lowenthal & Davis have sold for Albert F. Mando 229 East Sixtieth Street, a four-story double tenement on lot 20 by 100.5, to a Mr. Davis for investment.

The Kenton Realty Company (Fisher and Irving I. Levine and I. H. Kempner) has sold 858 Tenth Avenue, a five-story building on lot 25.2 by 80.6, to an investor.

Bronx.

The Bronx County Construction Company has sold to a client of Arthur Weyl and Company the one-story taxpayer on the southeast corner of 166th Street and Boston Road. The building occupies a plot 106 by 98 by irregular, and the property has been held at $60,000.

The John W. Cornish Construction Company has sold to an investor for occupancy the one-family dwelling, 1,822 Marmion Avenue, east of 175th Street.

Brooklyn.

The Alco Building Company has recently sold the following two-story one-family brick dwellings at Mapleton Park: No. 2,162 Sixty-sixth Street to H. S. Murphy; 2,143 Sixty-seventh Street to W. S. Talmadge; 2,032 Sixty-third Street to J. W. Brown; 2,108 Sixty-seventh Street to J. Paskl; 2,030 Sixty-third Street to H. Schneider; 2,034 Sixty-third Street to J. W. Barker; 1,956 Sixty-fifth Street to Joseph Miller; 1,954 Sixty-fifth Street to Edward Miller; 1,980 Sixty-fifth Street to Mrs. Cohick, and 2,101 Sixty-seventh Street to Mr. Aron.

Famous Wooley Farm Sold.

The John T. Wooley farm, consisting of about ninety acres at Lake Success, near Great Neck, Long Island, has been purchased by a prominent physician of Manhattan.

The William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., place adjoins the Wooley farm on the west, while on the north are the summer homes of Elverton R. Chapman, Payne Whitney and Joseph P. Grace. Along the eastern and southern lines is the Motor Parkway. The buyer plans to erect a spacious home in the centre of the property. G. Smith Stanton, the broker in the transaction, reports the price as $2,000 per acre.

Long Island.

The Queens Land and Title Company has sold at Massapequa to C. A. Finninger a plot 40 by 100 in Main Street, to W. R. Taylor a plot 100 by 100 in Central Avenue, to C. F. Gilpin a plot 40 by 100 in Central Avenue, to D. C. Fryor a plot 40 by 100 in Franklin Avenue, to A. D. Ives a plot 60 by 100 in Pittsburgh Avenue, to Ellis & Bouse a plot 120 by 100 corner of Central and Grand Avenues.

The McKnight Realty Company have sold on the Estates of Great Neck to J. Hines of Great Neck a plot having a frontage of 80 feet on Cedar Drive and a depth of 121 feet. It is the intention of J. Hines, to erect a residence upon said plot from plans drawn by George J. Hardway.

To F. C. Ward of Oneonta, N. Y., a plot with a frontage of 60 feet on Hillside Avenue, having a depth of 135 feet. The purchaser will erect a residence of Dutch colonial type.

The same company has sold at Cedarhurst to Miss Nellie Byrne a plot having a frontage of 40 feet on Cedarhurst Avenue 150 feet north of Maple Street.

Recent Buyers.

Edward E. Hannan is the purchaser of Convent Avenue and 151st Street, sold by the Bruce estate.

$100,000 Home for Working Girls.

Plans for a hotel for working girls to be erected for Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller. It will be known as the Anthony Home, and will be built at 119 and 121 West Twenty-ninth Street, west of Lexington Avenue, seven stories high, with a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 88.9 feet.

The façade will be of brick and limestone in a Colonial design. The hotel will provide accommodations for about 100 girls, whom it is intended to board and room for about $3.50 per week. Valentine & Kissam, the architects, estimate the cost at $100,000.

Montgomery-Ward Company to Locate in Bush Terminal.

The Montgomery-Ward Company of Chicago, one of the largest mail order houses in the West, are reported to have closed an agreement to rent a large area of space in the Bush Terminal Company's plant in South Brooklyn, and will be its largest single tenant.

The terms of the lease or the amount of the space to be occupied by the firm, which takes the location for its branch in the East, could not be ascertained, but it is understood that it will occupy several floors in the largest building in the terminal.

To Remodel Old Armory.

Plans have been filed for preparing the old Twenty-second Regiment Armory, in the block bounded by Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth Streets, Columbus Avenue and Broadway, for the First Battery, which is soon to occupy the building. New windows will be installed in the Columbus Avenue side, and arches built in the Sixty-eighth Street side and stalls put in on the first floor at an estimated cost of $25,000. Elisha H. Janes is the architect.

Commercial Leases.

The Duross Company has leased for the Motor Mart Company of New York, represented by the John J. Clancy Company, to the Pacific Motor Car Exchange Company the store and basement containing 18,000 square feet on the southeast corner of Broadway and Sixty-second Street for a term of years.

L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co., Inc., have leased the store and basement at 465 and 467 Broome Street to the Knit Goods Exchange for Carstein & Linnekin, and the store and basement at 106 Prince Street to Litt & Nelson for a term of years.

The Victor Levi Realty Company has leased for Morris S. Herman to a client the store and basement at 68 and 70 Grand Street for a term of ten years at an aggregate rental of about $20,000.

COMMITTEE HOSTILE TO PIER EXTENSION

Won't Override Stimson's Opposition to Sulzer and Goldfogle Bills.

NEW YORKERS URGE CHANGE

Say Extension Would Not Injure Commerce — Stimson Quotes Mayor Against the Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—It became apparent to-day at a hearing before the House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce that the committee would not indorse bills introduced by ex-Representative Sulzer and Representative Goldfogle of New York for an extension of the pierhead lines of the North River from the Battery to Thirtieth Street. Members of the committee let it be known that they would not report these two bills or either of them favorably, as long as the measures were objected to by the Secretary of War. In the opinion of the committee the problem of pier extension in the Hudson at New York should be handled by the Secretary of War in collaboration with the New York Harbor Line Board, composed of army engineers. It is likely, however, that the members of the committee will go to New York soon to study the pierhead problem at first hand.

The committee's hearing was given for the benefit of a delegation from New York and New Jersey which wanted to make argument that one or the other of the bills should pass. This delegation consisted of State Engineer John W. Bensel, Frank S. Gardner, representing the Board of Trade; Judge Charles F. McLean, Wilmerding Rug of the Produce Exchange, P. A. S. Franklin, Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine Company; A. J. Grimes of the Erie Railroad Company, Mayor Campbell of Hoboken, and President Frank P. Dalzell of the National Board of Steam Navigation.

In the course of the hearing a letter was read from Secretary Stimson to Chairman Adamson of the committee, objecting to the bills on the ground that they were imperfectly drawn, and would prevent a satisfactory solution of the pierhead problem, and saying that to carry out their provisions would narrow the fairway of the North River so as to injure commerce. Testimony by Mayor Gaynor that the Sulzer bill did not have the support of the City of New York was quoted by Mr. Stimson.

Secretary Stimson's letter to Chairman Adamson was written on Jan. 23. It follows:

I have the honor to say that at a hearing before me on Friday, Jan. 17, upon some of the questions involved in said bill the city authorities of New York, represented by Mayor Gaynor, repudiated the proposition contained in the bill to move the pierhead line further out into the river, and stated that the City of New York did not ask or want such an extension.

I submit herewith the report of the New York Harbor Line Board on this bill. From this it appears that the New York Harbor Line Board has held public hearings, has carefully considered the subject, and has reached the conclusion that the bill be unfavorably considered.

Among its other features the bill proposes to narrow the existing fairway of the Hudson River at its narrowest point between Castle Point and Chelsea by the difference of 100 feet. The New York Harbor Line Board reports that the width of the fairway of the Hudson at that point is already the minimum required by the considerations of navigation, and that no further advance in the line should be permitted. They point out that the width of the Hudson at that point has already been reduced to a little over 50 per cent. of its original size, and that the velocity of the tidal currents in the river have been increased to over four miles, or an increase from 60 to 87 per cent. They say that this increase has required a corresponding increase of power for all self-propelled boats using the river, with an increased cost of operating expense, and that any further increase will have an especially injurious effect upon commerce which will use the new barge canal, where spe ed is restricted to four miles an hour, and where the power of the vessels using it will be correspondingly low, thus making it difficult for such vessels to navigate points around New York City.

Finally, I have the honor to state that the pier head line of the Manhattan shore of the Hudson is receiving careful attention by the Chief of Engineers and myself based upon reports made to me by the New York Harbor Line Board. Hearings have been held before me which have been attended by the municipal authorities of the City of New York, including the Mayor, and by the Commissioner recently appointed by the States of New York and New Jersey to consider the same question. I have every hope that a solution may be found through the co-operation of the Federal and local authorities which will satisfactorily solve the problem of finding terminal facilities for the shipping vistng New York Harbor without further narrowing the fairway of the Hudson and without further injury to the great waterway upon which the prosperity of that city and the welfare of the main port of the Nation uutimately depends.

I sincerely hope that your honorable body will not by approving a bill which on its face shows itself to be hasty and imperfect, and which the report of the Harbor Line Board disapproves of in important particulars, and which the municipal authorities of New York disfavor, render more difficult this work upon which we are now enaged in earnest co-operation.

It was understood from the testimony of Col. Black, the United States Army Engineer, who appeared for Secretary Stimson, that, while Mr. Stimson's objections were directed speciwically to the Sulzer bill, they applied with equal force to the bill of Representative Goldfogle.

State Engineer Bensel told the committee that while there was difference of opinion among engineers who had studied the New York Harbar problem, the pier extensions provided for in the pending bills would not interfere with commerce. The provision in the Sulzer bill for extending piers 100 feet might accomodate all the steamers if put into effect, he said. Mr. Bensel thought that present conditions made it necessary to have some such extension.

F. P. Dalzell informed the committee that in his thirty years of experience in the towing business in the Hudson he had never found the river congested. In this he backed up Mr. Bensel. Mr. Dalzell said the proposed pier extensions would not increase liability of accident.

Mr. Grimes insisted that the provisions of the Sulzer bill were necessary to shipping interests.

Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York to-day introduced a bill appropriating $250,000 for the improvement of the Upper Channel in New York Harbor. The plan, which has the approval of the Government engineers, contemplates a total expenditure for this purpose of $473,000. As explained to-day by Mr. O'Gorman, the engineers have approved a project for transferring the present anchorage grounds on the west side of the channel to the shoal on the east side of the channel, excavating the shoal to the needed depth and providing a fairway over the site of the present anchorage with a width of 2,000 feet and a depth of 40 feet.

Mr. O'Gorman said that the plan set forth in his bill, with the approval of the engineers, supplanted another suggestion for retaining the present anchorage grounds and excavating a deeper channel at a cost of $740,000.

PUSHED UNDER SUBWAY TRAIN

Cars Start, but Child Is Saved by Quick Pull at Bell Rope.

Marie Salvad, a four-year-old Italian girl living at 542 West Forty-eighth Street, narrowly escaped serious injury last night at 6:50 o'clock when she fell to the tracks between two cars of a Subway train at the Seventy-second Street station. Just as the guard on a southbound local was closing an end door a six-foot man appeared and seized the door, which had not yet been completely closed, and pulled it open. A crowd rushed to enter, and Marie, who was with her grandmother, Catherine Maggie, was carried along with it. She stumbled and was thrown to the tracks.

The train started, and but for the presence of mind of E. M. Mattson, a compositor, the girl would probably have been killed. He pulled the bellrope and the train came to a stop after it had gone two car lengths. The child was lifted out, and Policeman Emil Panevin was called. Dr. Sayles, who took the child to the Polyclinic Hospital, said that her condition was not serious, although she was suffering from contusion of the head and laceration of the scalp.

CLOSING TIME NEAR AT THE MOTOR SHOW

The Commercial Vehicle Section Ends To-night—Attendance Large and Interested.

GOVERNMENT ROAD EXHIBIT

Other Features of the Garden and Palace Exhibition—Contest Association Plans.

Although it was drawing to its close the commercial vehicle section of the Thirteenth National Automobile Show at Madison Square Garden and Grand Central Palace showed no signs of flagging in quantity or quality of attendance last night. Indeed there was an increase, if anything, in the number of visitors at the two big buildings, where truck and tractor, delivery wagon and light business car will hold undisputed sway for another night. Dumping bodies were raised and lowered here and there; demountable bodies showed how much of the truck owner's time and money they could save; from the balconies came the crackling of sparking devices and in the basement of the Garden machine tools fashioned automobile parts busily.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the show is that of the United States Department of Agriculture, showing the method of construction of many different types of roadway. More than a score of models of macadam, dirt, bithultic, concrete and other forms of highway present this subject in graphic form. Other small models show road rollers and stone-crushing plants in operation and many photographs, showing road conditions in all parts of the country, add interest to this most useful exhibit. Careful preparation is manifest in all the various cases which make it up and the visitor can hardly fail to learn from it much of road work which he could not otherwise discover without a deal of traveling and first-hand investigation. This exhibit is on the balcony in the Palace.

As evidence of the economy of motor against horse-drawn apparatus in the small town fire department, I. T. Kirby, Chief of the Marshalltown, Ia., department, has submitted a report on the work of a motor hose and chemical wagon. This report shows the cost of maintaining a team from April 1, to Dec. 1, 1911, and of maintaining the motor apparatus during the same months of 1912 as follows:

Cost of team, including feed, shoeing, harness, and veterinary, $331.35; cost of automobile, including gas, oil, light, and repairs, $25.17; cost of automobile per fire, 30 cents; cost of horses per fire, $4.80; balance in favor of automobile per fire, $4.44; balance in favor of automobile per year, $471.96.

The salesmen at the Kissel Kar stand at the show have been making capital out of this record, as the automobile was of their make.

People have not been slow to recognize the fact that self-starting and electric lighting systems mark the most distinct automobile advance of the year. They have shown marked interest in exhibits of these systems, therefore, at both parts of the show. One of the stands that has drawn visitors at the Palace is the Westinghouse, where the ignition lighting generator and the separate starting device are shown mounted on a slate panel with the head, side and tail lights, the spark plugs, control levers, and switches, all placed in their relative positions. A single circuit wiring system is one of the display's features.

In the pleasure car field the Reo is putting forward an improved starter which is said to have been made highly efficient by worm gear attachment to the clutch shaft just forward of the transmission, by which it is possible to propel the car without turning the motor. Another self-starter of a different type is that of the Abbot-Detroit. It is a small electric motor mounted on the engine base, and connected to the crank shaft by a train of gears. It is not connected with the lighting or ignition systems. The switch can only be operated when the spark is fully retarded.

SULZER CLIMBS CAPITOL.

Clambers Over Scaffolding to Top of Building to Oversee Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The nerves of Gov. Sulzer were tested to-day when he ventured to the top of the Capitol on the west wing, over scaffolding and loose boards, to observe the work of reconstruction completed since the fire in March, 1911, and to see how much remains to be done.

The Governor was accompanied by Michael J. Callanan, of the firm of Callanan & Prescott, the Capitol contractors, and John A. Hennessy, the new Executive auditor, who is to check up the Capitol work for the information of the Governor.

Several large bills have been held up to give the Governor an opportunity to examine the work.

The contract was made on a percentage basis, the contractors to receive 10 per cent. commission on the cost of the reconstruction work.

Already $1,500,000 has been spent, and Mr. Callanan estimates that another million will be necessary to restore the building. The Governor and his commission of inquiry have expressed the belief that a percentage contract is more wasteful than a contract awarded on competitive bidding.

Mr. Callanan told the Governor, and later testified before the Commissioners, that a percentage contract was less expensive, and that the present contract was decided on against the objections of the contractors.

As a witness before the investigators to-day, Mr. Callanan admitted that he assigned men to the Capitol work at the request of politicians. He said, however, that at least a million dollars had been saved for the State as a result of the percentage contract.

Dr. Fritz Reichmann, State Superintendent of Weights and Measures, whose department Gov. Sulzer likened to "the fifth leg of a dog," was also a witness before the board of inquiry. The investigators were not convinced by the statements made by the Superintendent. The abolition of the department will be recommended by the committee.

GOVERNOR IN GOOD HEALTH.

Denies Reports of Illness, but Fears That He's Growing Too Fat.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Gov. Sulzer is in good health and spirits. He said so to-day when a visit from Dr. John H. Cosby of New York gave color to reports that he was beginning to show the effects of overwork.

"There's nothing in that," the Governor said. "Dr. Cosby was here, but he is not my physician. I'm working hard and enjoying it."

"It is said you have lost eighteen pounds since you came to Albany," he was told.

"On the contrary," Mr. Sulzer replied, "I've gained three pounds, and it worries me."

Several days a week the Governor remains in the Executive chamber until late in the evening and takes up other work when he goes to the Executive house. Dr. Cosby urged the Governor to observe the eight-hour day and take an afternoon off occasionally.

"It isn't necessary for me to do that," the Governor remarked.

Hatt to Clinton to Serve Term.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Samuel S. Hatt, the lawyer who was convicted of embezzling trust funds and committing forgeries to victimize women, to the extent of $250,000, was taken to Clinton Prison to-day to serve a sentence of nine years and nine months. Mr. Hatt is 65 years of age.

ROOSEVELT URGES STATE STRIKE ACTION

Wants a Commission to Go Into Working Conditions of Girl Garment Makers.

TELLS WHAT HE FOUND

In Letter to Assemblyman—Waistmakers and Men's Garment Workers Settling Differences.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in a letter sent yesterday to Michael Schaap, Progressive Assemblyman from the Thirty-first Assembly District, urged that the Legislature immediately authorize a commission to inquire into the conditions of work in the wrapper, kimono, and white goods trades. The letter was written as the result of the Colonel's recent trip through the east side, where he interviewed many of the workers who are now on strike in these trades, and was further influenced by conversations with men and women conversant with the strike situation.

According to Col. Roosevelt's letter the Legislative Committee of the State Progressive Party will soon introduce bills favoring the creating of minimum wage boards in the various industries in which women and children are employed. A special State investigation commission is urged at this time, the Colonel stated, in order to help the passage of these bills.

In addition to the minimum wage boards the Colonel came out strongly in his letter for the adoption of such protocols of peace as have been adopted in the cloak industry and the dress and shirt waist industry. He favored collective bargaining as distinct from individual bargaining, and said that the little girls employed in the kimono, wrapper, and white goods industries were "absolutely helpless" without this provision. Wherever a "protocol of peace" is adopted, the Colonel said, the Federal Department of Labor ought to keep an eye on the observance of such an agreement.

A large part of the letter is devoted to a criticism of the stand taken in the white goods strike by Harry A. Gordon, attorney for a number of white goods manufacturers. Mr. Gordon, in a statement made to Col. Roosevelt, reviewed the situation from the employers' point of view, pointing out in particular why these manufacturers were opposed to any protocol in the white goods industry and to trade unionism as applicable to their business.

For Collective Bargaining.

Col. Roosevelt, admiting Mr. Gordon's contention that there are some good shops in the trade, adds:

I emphatically dissent from the position taken by Mr. Gordon as representative of the manufacturers in their attitude toward trade unionism. This position, in effect, is that taken a number of years ago by a certain gentleman in the anthracite coal trade, and then since known as the "Vicegerent of God" position, the position that the employer ought to treat his employes well and humanely, but should be held responsible only to God and his own conscience for his actions—a position taken throughout history, not only by absolute monarchs who were good, but by absolute monarchs who were bad. The manufacturers represented by Mr. Gordon express their emphatic opposition to the protocol or memorandum of agreement in the cloak, suit, and skirt industry between the manufacturers and the union, signed Sept. 2, 1910. As I am submitting this attack by Mr. Gordon on the protocol in question, I must also add that his allegations of fact are challenged by such persons as Miss Wald, Henry Moscowitz, William H. Schieffelin, Julius Henry Cohen, and others whose names can be given. The persons named are working continuously under the protocol and know whereof they speak. Moreover, Mr. Gordon states that his organization will not deal with or recognize the union. To my mind, this is the critical point of difference. No man can inquire in the most cursory manner into the situation as it actually exists among these kimono and white goods workers without realizing that these young girls are absolutely helpless if they are obliged to bargain for their rights individually. They must possess the right of collective bargaining, and they must be able to establish for themselves relations with kindred organizations which will support them when they are wrongfully treated. Moreover, in my judgment, there must be a Government body like the United States Department of Labor, whose business it shall be to oversee the actual workings of the industry under these different agreements.

Speaking of his investigations of the conditions which brought on the strikes in the kimono and wrapper and white goods industries, Col. Roosevelt gave this account of what he had seen to Assemblyman Schaap:

I visited bodies of girl strikers in Henry Street and in St. Mark's Place, and choosing at random listened to the stories of the different girls. In Henry Street the girls were mostly recent immigrants from Southern Spain and from the Turkish Empire. Those from the Turkish Empire could not speak English, and although they were of Jewish faith they could not speak Yiddish, so that they were peculiarly helpless under our conditions here. Some of the girls were fourteen and fifteen years old, others sixteen, seventeen and eighteen. The wages were in one or two cases as low as $3 a week, and up to $5.50 and $6 and $8 a week. I was informed that there were girls who worked for $2.50 a week, and there was one I saw who worked for $3.31 a week, and two or three who worked for $3 a week. One girl of fifteen earned $5 a week, but had to pay $30 for the machine on which she worked. Another, who had to pay $32 for a machine, worked from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. and mentioned that in summer she was charged 10 cents a week for ice water. Another girl who was earning $5 a week had a father in the hospital, and out of the $5 a week was supporting two young children, her brother and sister, in addition to herself. These young girls from Turkey represented the lowest and poorest paid workers that we saw; their fathers and brothers, being ignorant of English, find it difficult to get employment, and the girls often support the whole family on their scanty sweatshop earnings. Some of the girls out of the miserable pittance paid them have themselves to pay for repairs to machines and for thread and needles.

In St. Mark's Place the girls looked healthier and as if their lives were lived under better conditions—better conditions of course being a purely relative term, for the conditions as to many of the girls were very bad also. They spoke English. Many of these girls did not live at their homes, and in such cases the owner of the house in which they lived, whom they generally spoke of as "the missus," charged them $3 a month for lodging, and sometimes of a place in a bed with other girls. I was informed that often three or four girls slept in one bed. One such girl was earning $4.50 a week, $18 a month. Out of this she paid $3 for lodging, $2 a week or $8.50 a month, for breakfast and supper; leaving $6 a month for dinner or the midday meal, for car fare, for clothing, for medicine when sick, for dentist, for oculist, as well as for recreation, if there was any. I mention the oculist particularly because the conditions of work are such that the eyes of many of the girls are affected.

State Should Act.

"I do not think that either the National Government or the State Government can afford to ignore this question," the Colonel concludes. "We cannot as a community sit in apathy and permit these young girls to fight in the streets for a living wage and for hours and conditions of labor which shall not threaten their very lives. I very earnestly urge that a State investigating committee be appointed to inquire into the conditions of work in the wrapper, kimono, and white goods trades, (the shirtwaist and dressmakers' investigation being proceeded with under their own protocol.)

"I ask that the State not only further this idea, but follow it by State action creating such boards in such industries where they have not been created freely by the action of those in the industry itself. The Legislative Committee of the Progressive Party will present to the Legislature carefully prepared bills providing for minimum wage boards, and the investigation for which I ask will, I believe, furnish additional grounds for demanding the passage of such bills."

The influence of Col. Roosevelt's interest in the strikers has already been felt, according to Miss Gertrude Barnum of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, in furthering individual settlements. Miss Barnum had an hour's conference with the Colonel at the Outlook offices yesterday, but refused to discuss the conference. It is generally said that the union must be satisfied this year with individual settlements, but that another strike will in all probability be called in a year or two with the express purpose of obtaining an agreement in both the white goods and the kimono and wrapper industries.

The white goods manufacturers, particularly, are well organized, and are opposing any protocol through the Cotton Garment Manufacturers' Association. They say that they are not opposed to an investigation of their business. Over 200 of the largest manufacturers of women's undermuslins are members of the association.

"It is planned to so spread the standards maintained by the better firms in this organization," said one of the Directors of this association yesterday, "that all of the shops will in a short time be made to adopt methods suitable to the workers. We will open permanent headquarters in the near future, with the purpose of bringing about co-operation and better understanding of conditions of work."

Indications point to a speedy settlement of the controversy that has grown up among rival camps of manufacturers in the dress and waist industry since the signing of the protocol last Saturday. The independent manufacturers, it was said yesterday, agreed to come into the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association provided they received representation on the Executive Board and the Board of Grievances provided for under the terms of the proctocol. Such arrangements, it was said, on behalf of President Floersheimer of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, could easily be made.

By next Monday morning, it was predicted, 90 per cent. of the workers in this industry would be back at work under the new standards of wages and hours. In the mean time, a public retraction is demanded of the manufacturer who said that he had reliable information that $10,000 had passed to union representatives for calling off the strike.

There will be a meeting of the contractors, the union, and the United Manufacturers and Merchants Association at the Bar Association to-night and it is probable that this conference will practically settle the strike of the 110,000 workers in the men's and youths' garment industry.

Mr. Cohen, counsel for the manufacturers, said yesterday:

"In going over the prices paid for making men's garments, it was found that the margin of profit was so small that, if the manufacturers agreed to give a 10 per cent. advance immediately on present wages on this year's contracts, it would be so disastrous that the manufacturers might just as well keep their shops closed for the season. These facts were brought out before the union's representatives, and it is believed that at Saturday night's meeting they will be prepared to meet the manufacturers in some sort of a compromise."

TWO SHOT IN STRIKE RIOTS.

Guns Are Fired Freely in a Double Clash in Williamsburg.

Two garment workers who had refused to join the strikers in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn were shot yesterday in the course of the fiercest rioting that has so far marked the garment strikes. Both of the men were seriously wounded.

The shooting affrays occurred in two separate riots. The first was near the factory of Schum Brothers, 175 Boerum Street, and started when John Grasberger, 41, of 18 Lexington Avenue, approached the factory to begin the day's work. A mob of 300, hidden behind one wing of the factory, sallied out and attacked him. There were many shots, and Grasberger fell to the ground. A man in the factory called up Police Headquarters, and a riot squad came on the run from the Stagg Street Station. The police dispersed the crowd and rescued Grasberger. He was removed to St. Catherine's Hospital with two bullet wounds in his thigh.

From the Schum Brothers factory the same squad of police continued to answer another riot call at Moore and Morrell Streets, where a thousand pickets were attacking a number of Manhattan strikebreakers who had come to Williamsburg in an automobile.

One of the men in the car got up and flourished a revolver. He threatened the pickets, but they continued to surge about the automobile, and then the shooting began. According to witnesses, a hundred shots were fired. When the police arrived with drawn guns they succeeded in clearing the streets. Joseph Millstein, 18, of 187 Varet Street, was found lying unconscious, with a bullet in his neck. The police arrested Benjamin Wilson, 21, of 160 Bleecker Street, one of the occupants of the car, and Paul Sampson, 20, of 109 West Sixty-second Street. They were held for examination to-day. Millstein was rushed to St. Catherine's Hospital. Many other smaller riots were reported in Brooklyn.

William Klein, attorney for Frankel Brothers, clothing manufacturers, appeared before Justice Hendrick in the Supreme Court yesterday with a plea to make permanent the temporary injunction preventing picketing in front of the Frankel Brothers' establishment at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. Mr. Klein said that notwithstanding the injunction strikers continued to march by the establishment and intimidate his workers. Justice Hendrick declared that he would hear argument on this, as well as on others pending, on next Tuesday, and he warned the union's representative that he would send to jail any strikers found disobeying the court's order.

The news of Justice Hendrick's warning soon spread over the city, and there was a let-up in rioting in the lower Broadway and Cooper Square district when work ceased last night. Altogether about twenty arrests were made yesterday, as against thirty to fifty on previous days.

Samuel Berger of 124 Cannon Street and Nicholas Moroglotter of 222 Sullivan Street were arrested on the complaint of Abraham Kastner of 104 Second Avenue, who charged that these men had upset in the gutter two cans of beef stew intended for workers in the factory of Alfred Benjamin & Co., 440 Lafayette Street. Kastner had a contract to supply the non-strikers with stew, he said, so as to render unnecessary any going out for luncheon. Magistrate Herman in Essex Market Court fined each of the men $10. The offenses were serious, he said, since workingmen had been deprived of the necessaries of life.

Yette Siegel of 4 Orchard Street, Bessie Wahl, Helen Wahl, all of 173 Second Street, and Minnie Knittle of 224 East Third Street, were convicted yesterday in Special Sessions of assault committed a few weeks ago at Broadway and Spring Street. They were fined $25 each, and after a few hours' delay the fines were paid by friends.

WOULD PROTECT GIRL STRIKERS

Investigators Say Attempts Are Made to Lead Them Into White Slavery.

Following reports made by special investigators of conditions surrounding many of the striking girls and young women of the various garment trades, in which it was stated that attempts had been made to take advantage of the poverty, distress and suffering of many of the girls by suspicious characters lounging around the meeting places of the strikers to lead them into white slavery, Miss Grace E. J. Parker, Secretary of the North American Civic League for Immigrants at 95 Madison Avenue, announced yesterday that she was trying to interest wealthy women noted for their philanthropy in forming a protective committee for the youngest girls. In a statement from charity workers it was said that hundreds of the girls and women on strike were known to be penniless and dependent upon boardinghouse keepers or their friends for food and lodging.

It was also said that these matters had been called to the attention of Secretary Whitin of the Committee of Fourteen, who had presented the facts to the Police Department. Mr. Whitin said last night that all he knew of the subject was a letter he had received from the Rev. Dr. John P. Peters, rector of St. Michael's Church, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, an anonymous communication which the clergyman had received from a woman.

Mr. Whitin did not take up the matter with the police, he said, but forwarded the communication to Miss Maud Minor, secretary of the New York Probation and Protective Association at 38 West Tenth Street. She said in reference to this:

"Our charity workers are doing all they can to protect the girls, and I do not know of a single case thus far warranting arrest or indicating that any girl has been tempted from a moral life by the loungers who frequent the strike headquarters. Certainly there is threatening danger to these girls, for the cadets have been seen around the meeting places of the strikers, but the philanthropic women and charity workers have held meetings and advised the girls in every way possible."

Mrs. Walter Wile, Secretary of the Women's Trade Union League, 43 East Twenty-second Street, said she had never known of a strike of women workers like the present in which so many of the girls were without homes or protecting relatives. Another hall was opened yesterday by the Women's Trade Union League in Allen Street, where tea and sandwiches were furnished free to all the strikers. This makes nine halls maintained for them.

POLICE STATION AIR BLUE.

The Rev. Dr. Day Complains of Profanity He Heard There.

The Rev. Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Superintendent of the Labor Temple, who was arrested for interfering with an officer on Thursday evening at a disturbance by strikers and strike breakers at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street and who was subsequently discharged in Night Court, wrote a letter to Police Commissioner Waldo yesterday in which he complained of his treatment by the police. Dr. Day particularly resented his ride in a patrol wagon with "a half dozen well-soaked drunks" and from the whole of his experience he became convinced, he told Commissioner Waldo, that the police needed their Commissioner's attention. He wrote:

"The treatment that I received from the Lieutenant of the Thirty-fifth Street station was anything but manly. In the first place he was so profane in his speech that the air was fairly blue. There was no one brought to the station, except myself, who never before was arrested, and a young man eighteen years of age who was perfectly sober and quiet, while the attitude of the Lieutenant was that of a man trying to overawe a lot of cut throats and criminals. His conduct toward the officers in the station was of the very meanest kind. That, however, is their affair, not mine."

Dr. Day charged in his letter that the use of the telephone had been denied, but that the police had subsequently told his wife that that privilege had been offered and refused. The discourtesy and profanity on the part of the Police Lieutenant, he said, were entirely uncalled for. Dr. Day was arrested at 7 P. M. and he had no chance to get a thing to eat, he said, until he was discharged in Night Court at midnight.

FIRE ON HOLD-UP MEN.

Detectives Rush to Aid of Process Server and Catch Three.

Armed with some subpoena slips, which were designed as invitations to the Grand Jury room, William L. Murphy, a process server attached to the District Attorney's office, was walking along 135th Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, about 10:30 last night, and was straining his eyes in his effort to find a certain house number, when three men stepped up to him. He started to back away, when one of them snatched at his watch and another hit him over the head with a blackjack, which descended so heavily that he dropped on the sidewalk. He remained conscious just long enough to give one shrill blast on his police whistle.

The sound was heard by Lieut. O'Connor and three detectives from the staff of Inspector Sweeney, who at that very moment were looking for burglars behind a fence down the street. They raced toward Murphy, and, according to their story, saw three men running at full speed toward the Madison Avenue Bridge across the Harlem River. They opened fire, and the three halted. When Detective Siegner neared the group one of them kicked him in the pit of the stomach and drew a gun. Then came a free-for-all fight that ended finally when the police were reinforced by a group of negroes.

The three men arrested said they were Louis Parco of 338 East 112th Street, John Marco of 308 East 113th Street, and Angelo Merino of 186 Lincoln Avenue, the Bronx. All were charged with robbery and assault and Marco was accused of violating the Sullivan law against carrying weapons. Murphy's watch was found on the sidewalk near the spot where the arrests were made.

MEXICAN TRUCE FOR PEACE.

Federals and Rebels to Discuss Terms for Submission to Madero.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 24.—An armistice of five days made by the Mexican federals and rebels to permit of the informal discussion of peace terms became effective to-day. Peace commissioners from Chihuahua city are waiting at Villa Ahumada, between the State Capital and the border, for the arrival of the rebel representatives.

Gen. Inez Salazar is expected to head the revolutionary faction, while Col. Francisco Castro of the 28rd Infantry will be a member of the federal commission. Col. Castro and representatives of the State Government and business interests are already at the selected neutral ground. Only permission to receive the rebel proposals has been granted by the Mexican Government.

TWO DIE IN CHANNEL CRASH.

Steamer Princess Clementine In a Collision Near Dover.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The mail steamer Princess Clementine had a narrow escape from disaster in the English Channel to-night when crossing from Ostend to Dover.

The vessel near the English side went into collision with the Norwegian bark Helmdal, which was damaged so badly that she became waterlogged. The crew of twenty on board the bark were rescued by men from the Princess Clementine. The second officer and a seaman of the latter vessel were drowned, however, in the lowering of a boat to go to the assistance of the bark's crew. The Princess Clementine's bows were badly stove in by the collision.

HIT BY CHAMBERS'S AUTO.

Author Not in It at the Time—Young Woman Victim Recovering.

While crossing Fifth Avenue between Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth Streets at 7 o'clock last night Efima Caye, a native of Athens, employed as a maid at the Hotel Plaza, was knocked down by the mudguard of an automobile driven by Charles H. Pine, chauffeur for Robert W. Chambers, the author, who lives at 43 East Eighty-third Street.

The young woman was picked up and taken in the automobile to the Presbyterian Hospital, where the surgeons said that she had not received any serious injury and would be sent home to-day. Mrs. Townsend Ashmore of 144 East Fifty-sixth street was in the automobile at the time.

On the White Star liner Majestic which arrived last night, two days late from Southampton, was the Princess Loewenstein-Wertheim, who was Lady Ann Saville. She was accompanied by Hughes Massie, her secretary, and brought over an automatic balancing bed of her own invention which she declares will prevent sea sickness. During her trip over on the Majestic she suffered because she could not get her patent bed. A similar contrivance tried 28 years ago on the steamship Berlin, did not prove a success.

HIGHBRIDGE CASHIER EXPECTED TO RETURN

Directors of Bank He Looted Say They Will Get Him When He Is Wanted.

BROKERS DENY LOANS TO HIM

And Say No Bonds Were Received from Him—His Transactions by Personal Checks.

HIGHBRIDGE, N. J., Jan. 24.—Abram L. Beavers, the defaulting cashier of the First National Bank of this place, is still missing, and the closed bank is now in complete charge of National Bank Examiner Alvin L. Fowler.

The amount of the shortage cannot be known exactly until Mr. Fowler goes over the records and checks up the securities of the bank in the safe deposit vaults of the Coal and Iron National Bank of New York, but it is estimated at between $70,000 and $100,000.

District Attorney Vreeland said that he had not decided what he would do, but that the usual course of procedure would be for him to apply for a warrant charging the missing cashier with embezzlement.

The written confession, which is now in the possession of the bank's officers in Highbridge, although it was made in New York, will be taken in charge by Bank Examiner Fowler. Although some of the Directors have had no hesitancy in telling in general terms what it says they refuse to disclose the text of it.

Although they made no effort to detain Beavers, the Directors of the bank, who admit that they do not know where he is now, declare that they believe no trouble will be experienced in getting him when he is wanted. In explanation of their failure to prevent his departure they say that the cashier had made the utmost restitution he and his wife could possibly make by turning over to the bank all their property, amounting to about $25,000, and that the initiative should be taken by the Federal authorities or by the company that bonded him for $10,000.

The beginning of Beavers's downfall, according to his confession, was in the loss of between $8,000 and $9,000 in a South American diamond mining venture. This he is said to have considered a legitimate investment, but last Fall he came to the realization that the money was gone beyond recall.

Charles I. Hudson of the firm of C. I. Hudson & Co., gave out the following statement yesterday:

"Mr. A. L. Beavers opened an account with our firm several years previous to the organization of the First National Bank of High Bridge. He was one of the most highly respected men in Glen Gardner, N. J., and the vicinity. He was one of the movers in establishing the Tuberculosis Sanitarium, a man prominent in church work, and of irreproachable personal habits.

"We purchased, on his order, various bonds in the months of October and November on the New York Stock Exchange, on which we received the customary margin. No bonds were received from him, so no money could have been advanced on any bonds except on the actual purchases made.

"We have violated no law of the New York Stock Exchange. The law in question does not permit dealings for clerks of banks or for employes of fellow members. Mr. Beavers was an officer of a bank, and dealings are permitted for officers of institutions.

"All transactions and checks received were personal. We received no bank checks or cashier's checks, and at no time did Mr. Beavers act for other than his personal account. Neither did he ever submit any cashier's checks or other checks other than his own as additional margin on his account."

WOMAN BEATS HIGHWAYMAN.

Not Satisfied When He Breaks Away, but Has Him Captured.

Special to The New York Times.

BOONTON, N. J., Jan. 24.—Refusing to release her hold on her hand satchel which a tramp attempted to take from her, Mrs. Augustus W. Rolker last night took a gold chain from her neck, on which was hanging a heavy locket, and beat the highwayman across the face with it until he let go the satchel. As soon as he let go she beat him with the satchel, which was laden with merchandise. When the robber attempted to run away Mrs. Rolker tripped him and shouted for help. He ran into a cellar, where he was captured.

Mrs. Rolker had had a large check cashed late in the afternoon at the Boonton National Bank, and was returning to her home at Mountain Lakes when she noticed a strange man sitting in the car opposite her. When she got off he, too, alighted and followed her closely until they came to an isolated section, where he clutched the satchel. When captured and arraigned before Police Justice Josephus E. Dixon the prisoner said his name was Joseph Delinsky. He refused to tell where he came from. He was sent to Morristown to await the action of the Grand Jury.

WILLING TO DIVIDE WITH THIEF

Girl Tries to Give Money to Man Who Robs Her, but Police Take Him.

Men and women, hurrying to work, stopped yesterday morning at Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street to watch a young man, who knelt on the sidewalk at the feet of a young woman. He had taken a purse, containing ten cents from the young woman's pocket while they were passengers in a west-bound Fourteenth Street cross-town car. As he alighted from the car, the young man was seized by Detectives Casassa and McKenna. The young woman, Miss Elenore Hubbard, was inclined to be lenient.

"I'm out of work—broke," pleaded the young man, tugging at the young woman's skirt.

"I found a transfer in the street at Third Avenue, but that would take me only part of the way. I was going uptown to Eighth Avenue and 135th Street, where I could get employment."

Miss Hubbard opened her purse, extracted one of two nickels and was proffering it to the youth when the detectives interfered.

The prisoner was taken to Police Headquarters. He said he was Henry Brenner, 19 years old, a salesman of 57 Second Avenue. Later he was arraigned in Jefferson Market Court, pleaded guilty, and was held for trial in General Sessions.

KILLED AT INWOOD CROSSING.

Two Injured with the One Dead When Long Island Train Hits Auto.

One man was killed and two others severely injured at the Lord Avenue Crossing of the Long Island Railroad in Inwood, Nassau County, just outside of Far Rockaway, at 7:25 A. M. yesterday, when a two-car east-bound motor baggage train struck an automobile.

The dead man is Lynn Fisher, 48 years old, married, of Inwood. The injured are Herbert Cornell, chauffeur, and Chauncey Cornell, both of Bayview Avenue, Inwood. They are in St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockaway, and both will recover.

The three men were in the employ of Mullin & Cornell, furniture dealers of Far Rockaway. They were familiar with the railroad crossing, having passed over it many times a day on their way to and from their homes. The crossing is protected by a crossing bell, as well as a danger signal, and the view of the crossing is unobstructed in both directions. It is believed, therefore, that the man in the automobile tried to beat the train over the crossing. The bell, it was said, was ringing furiously long before the automobile approached the tracks.

Apparently the chauffeur saw that the train must hit the car, for just before the front wheels struck the track he turned the wheel sharply. The turn was too short, and the car was prevented from running parallel to the tracks by a fence. In a moment the train struck the rear of the automobile and carried it, as well as the fence and seventy-five feet of the third rail, with it for many yards. The automobile was completely smashed, and the train crew picked Fisher and the injured men from the wreckage. The accident caused a delay of about an hour on the Rockaway Beach Division.

CONSPIRACY CASES WAIT.

Bronx Bill Again Factor in Postponing Criminal Trial.

Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday allowed the cases of seven indicted men, charged with forming a trust to drive independent builders out of the Bronx, to go over until the Court of Appeals shall pass on the Bronx County bill.

The indicted men are Charles Bohland, Daniel Lahey, Thomas Mulligan, and Peter Comes, members of the Mason Builders' Association; Adolph E. Klotz, a building contractor and member of the Building Material Men's Association, and Samuel Torrey and Edward McRedmond, walking delegates from the Bricklayers' Union. The complainant witness is Edward O'Connor, a contractor of 1,214 Simpson Street, the Bronx, who says they interfered with his contracts.

Ex-District Attorney William Travers Jerome appeared in behalf of the defendants and argued that the Grand Jury which indicted the men had no legal authority to do so, as the standing of the Bronx County bill had not been decided.
